Several New Faces Slated On "U" Board

Five or Six Changes Due After Sale Tomorrow

Five or six new directors will be elected to the board of Universal Pictures Corp. tomorrow following the transfer of control from Carl Laemmle to Standard Capital Corp. and Charles R. Rogers.

New members of the board will include J. Cheever Cowdin and Lawrence Fox of Standard Capital, Rogers, C. M. Woolf and Herbert Wilcox. The latter two represent the British interests which are participating in the Universal option financing. Erpi and Eastman Kodak, other participants in the financing, will have representation through the two Standard Capital executives and a possible sixth nominee for the board. The addition of a sixth new member is said to be still under discussion. Likewise, no final decision has been made on the election of Rogers, whose post as executive vice-president in charge of production may make it impractical for him to leave the studio regularly to attend meetings in the east. WPA Census Count Under Bureau Fire

Washington, March 31.—Difficulty in securing adequate personnel and resultant delay in the taking of the second census of business and amusements is being experienced because of the fact that the work, undertaken with WPA funds, is under the control of the WPA instead of being directed by the Census Bureau, it was disclosed today.

Hearings on the Department of Commerce supply bill, made public this morning, show that the $8,077,000 assigned for the census by the WPA could have been used more efficiently had the work been turned over to the Census Bureau.

Nat Levine Denies Resignation Report

Hollywood, March 31.—Rumors that he intends to quit Republic have prompted Nat Levine to issue a formal denial. He points out that he owns 50 per cent of the producing company, Republic Prod., Inc., of which he is president.

By Rail and Air

Will H. Hays left for Hollywood yesterday to remain there two weeks.

Al Lichtman, back from Bermuda and entirely recovered from the flu and bronchial pneumonia, leaves by air for the M-G-M studio shortly. This will be his final conference on the 1936-37 program after which he will set the date for the annual sales convention. At the present time it looks like Chicago.

S. R. Kent sails for the Continent April 21 accompanied by Joseph M. Schenck. A Twentieth Century-Fox sales meeting in London impends.

Gradwell L. Sears, A. W. Smith. Jr., and S. Charles Einfeld, vice-presidents all of Vitagraph, take the sky route to Hollywood tomorrow. The new season's schedule is the reason.

John D. Clark goes west in the near future on Twentieth Century-Fox's new lineup after which he, too, will set plans for the company's sales parley.

Joseph H. Moskowitz of the same company is eyeing western train schedules. He will head for the studio in about a week.

Jeffrey Bernerd of Gaumont British is due in from Hollywood this morning.

Barney Balaban, just returned from Waikiki, and his brother, John, as well as Jules Ruben of Great States Theatres hie themselves back to Chicago in a few days.

E. V. Richards, Jr., of Saenger Theatres is another visitor.

Ditto for George W. Trendle of Detroit.

All in and out by the end of the week.

LOEW GOES INTO CHICAGO, DETROIT

Takes Over Management Of United Artists Theatres There

Loew-M-G-M have concluded arrangements with United Artists Theatre Circuit under which they will take over operation of the United Artists theatres in Chicago and Detroit, marking for the first time the entry of these companies in both cities. The deal is effective on the expiration within a year of the present management operating agreements for the two theatres held by the Paramount subsidiaries, B. & K. and United Detroit Theatres.

The deal will include an M-G-M preferred product supply for the two houses. The Detroit theatre has had this in the past but the Chicago house has concentrated on United Artists and Paramount pictures. Both houses are understood to have United Artists franchises which continue their supply from that company.

Reports yesterday indicated that Loew's-M-G-M may have acquired a stock interest in the two houses from either Paramount or United Artists Circuit, but Joseph M. Schenck, head of the latter company, said that no stock sale is involved in the deal. He

Funds Sought For New U. S. Trust Probers

Washington, March 31.—Establishment in the Department of Justice of a new unit under the anti-trust division to investigate situations concerning which no complaint has been made but where there exists the possibility of anti-trust law violation, was suggested last month to the House Appropriations Committee by Assistant Attorney General John Dickinson, it was revealed today with the release of the testimony taken during consideration of the department's appropriation bill for the coming fiscal year.

It was explained to the committee by Dickinson that while during the last fiscal year nearly 1,500 complaints were received, there are a number of situations regarding which no complaint has been made, but where investigation might disclose anti-trust law violations. While no mention was made of the fact, it is generally understood that this information has been secured through a detailed study of NRA codes. If the Department of Justice is to undertake "fishing expeditions" of this nature, Dickinson said, an additional fund of $100,000 will be necessary to set up the organization.

NRA Dies Today with Only Former Employes Mourning

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

Washington, March 31.—With only its former employes as mourners, NRA tomorrow will be buried in history with the expiration of the last vestige of legislation originally adopted in June, 1933.

The expense of the experiment in industrial regimentation has never been calculated, but it is estimated that it ran into many millions of dollars.

Every segment of the film industry felt the effects of Government control under the code approved by President Roosevelt Nov. 27, 1933, and effective until the Supreme Court declared the codes invalid last May in the "sick chicken" decision.

Whether the President has entirely abandoned his plan for control of the industry has never been divulged, but the possibilities of further legislation along that line have been held out at intervals, notably in his message to Congress on relief March 18, in which veiled suggestions were made that, unless business accepted its share of the relief problem by increasing em-

Yates Considering British Laboratory

By BRUCE ALLAN

London, March 31.—Herbert J. Yates, president of Consolidated Film Industries, Inc., is reported to be considering various sites for the construction of a British Consolidated laboratory. It is indicated that he will make a decision on a site before his departure for New York on April 4, the most likely sites being Denham and the Iver district.

Unconfirmed reports here have linked Yates with various plans to finance studio operations.

ITOA Federal Suit Against Majors Due

Bernerd Is Pleased By G. B. Sales Here

CHICAGO, March 31.—Jeffrey Bernerd is pleased with the way G.B. sales are going in this country, he indicated here today during a stopover on his trip east from the coast.

"We're getting the deals we want," he said. "Exhibitors are realizing the box-office value of G.B. pictures."

Bernerd has just closed a percentage deal for G.B. product in Fox houses and has also secured an adjustment on this year's pictures, putting them on a percentage basis instead of at low rentals.

Soundmen Now Under IATSE Jurisdiction

HOLLYWOOD, March 31.—Soundmen will henceforth be under the jurisdiction of Local 695, I.A.T.S.E. Soundmen's Union in accordance with the terms of the settlement of this jurisdictional problem today at Washington, D. C.

The soundmen comprise the last of the labor groups to come under the I.A.T.S.E. closed shop arrangement. Negotiations have been in progress for several months.

Zukor in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, March 31. — Adolph Zukor arrived here today for conferences with John E. Otterson and other Paramount executives.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

Hollywood, March 31.

THE stages are on the way. In six months, the construction job will be completed. Then Sol Wurtzel moves from Twentieth Century-Fox's Western Avenue plant to Westwood Hills, there to concentrate all activity on the one lot while Wurtzel's old bailiwick will be utilized for standing sets and the like. Around this studio the word is that the anticipated savings from the joint housing plan will run $500,000 a year through elimination of overlapping department heads, reductions in wages by shrinking the labor index, transportation charges and more of the same ilk. . . .

The two lot consolidation also will mark an end to the more or less autonomous regime maintained by Wurtzel where bread-and-butter films on the Twentieth Century-Fox program have been turned out while Darryl F. Zanuck shaped his plans about furnishing caviar and roast. For, to all intents and purposes, Wurtzel has been traveling largely on his own. He meets Zanuck at six o'clock every evening to discuss developments and plans, it is true. The budget, of course, is set for him and Zanuck knows, in a general way, what Western Avenue is doing. However, he has been permitting Wurtzel to proceed on his way, meeting and solving his own problems once the production outline has been roughed out. . . .

And a job has been delivered. Wurtzel is an old hand at making pictures. There may be romance in him, but it is difficult to find any manifestations in his technique of running his end of the Twentieth Century-Fox enterprise. He is an indefatigable worker, knows what his pictures cost—which is no trick—but also what they gross. He has been with the original Fox company from the days when. From Bill Fox to Winnie Sheehan to McIntyre and Clarke, Tinker and Rowland, Rockett and Sheehan again and now Zanuck, Wurtzel has passed through many administrations in a land where the survival of one marks the survivor a veteran. . . .

He is the official producer of the B product, the admittedly cheaper grade of film designed to even off the program's A content. But, let us remind you, there are apt to be surprises which nobody can dope out in advance, Zanuck or Wurtzel or anyone else. The fixed designations as to quality often fool those who designate them and, as this Hollywood series already has pointed out several times, A may emerge from the laboratory as B and in reverse as well. That's for time and film to determine, not this yarn or Wurtzel. . . .

And so, in keeping with his plotted course for these many years, Wurtzel's commitment for 1936-37 will run to a total of twenty in series of four each. The popular Charlie Chans, a staple of the lineup, will continue. In five years, Wurtzel has made eleven. Awaiting release is "Charlie Chan at the Circus." Planned are "Charlie Chan at the Racetrack," "Charlie Chan with the Navy," and "Charlie Chan at College." Some of these may be on the current schedule. Four Girl Comedies, about which final decision has been fluctuating, have been amply discussed. Claire Trevor, Dixie Dunbar and Arline Judge would appear in the group. . . .

"Every Saturday Night," first of the Jones Family quartet, slipped through as a surprise. Zanuck knew it was being made, but that was all. After he took a look, the series was set. Jane Withers is down for four, her current and immediate activity including "Public Nuisance No. 1" and "Salomy Jane." These constitute the admitted B product. The remaining four of the total twenty are being set up as A. One will be "The Mercy Killer," which George Marshall will direct; another, "The Holy Lie." . . .

One of the interesting tidbits about Wurtzel has to do with the youngster known as Shirley Temple. The adorable one had appeared in "Stand Up and Cheer." There was no realization of what was to come. Even Earle W. Hammons, who had Shirley in two-reelers for Educational, didn't know. Then came the loanout to Ben Schulberg for "Little Miss Marker" chiefly, as this reporter gets the facts, because Fox failed to wax excited and so had not bothered to hunt for Temple stories. Shirley burst upon Fox and the world in "Little Miss Marker" and action popped thereafter. . . .

Winnie Sheehan ordered his producers to get Temple yarns. Whether by diligence or a stroke of good fortune, Wurtzel made

To Greet Jolson

Al Jolson will be met at the Grand Central station tomorrow by a Scotch band from Yonkers and a group of girls dancing a la Bacchante—whatever that is. Warners' publicity department knows.

After Jolson recovers from the shock he will be escorted along 42nd St. to Broadway and up to the Strand, where, by coincidence, "The Singing Kid" will open Friday night.

The bagpipes are going to skirl songs like this: "You're the Cure for What Ails Me," "I Love to Sing -A," "Save Me Sister," and maybe "Mammy."

20th-Fox in Appeal Of S. & C. Decision

Twentieth Century-Fox, through Louis Nizer, has filed an appeal from the recent decision of the N. Y. Supreme Court in favor of Springer & Cocalis and Consolidated in an action brought by Twentieth Century-Fox. The decision, seen as having widespread distribution significance if it is upheld, would make the distributor's overage on a group of designated percentage pictures dependent on the earnings of the entire group, rather than on the earnings of each picture individually.

Fox sued the circuit on a 1934-35 contract for 58 films at a flat rental of $2,750 per picture for 30 of the circuit's houses. A clause called for a 50 per cent overage on six pictures to be allocated by Fox. Fox asked $18,000, allegedly due under that clause. The circuit contended that it had made a profit on only two of the six, that the loss on the other four more than offset the profit, and claimed the right of the cumulative accounting. That claim was upheld by the court.

No Change in Sales Plan, Says Schaefer

United Artists plans no change in sales policy at this time with respect to the assessment of score charges on exhibitors in the Philadelphia territory, it was indicated yesterday by George J. Schaefer, vice-president and general manager in charge of sales for U. A., in commenting on the protest resolution passed recently by the board of managers of the M. P. T. O. of Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey and Delaware.

Schaefer declared that the company's national sales policy on score charges has been in effect since last August. The board had urged all exhibitors in the territory to register a protest against the imposition of score charges.

Sue 20th-Fox on Picture

Morgan Wallace and L. S. Lawrence filed suit in Federal court yesterday against Twentieth Century-Fox, alleging plagiarism in the film "Thanks a Million." The plaintiffs charge that Wallace copyrighted a story, "Congratulations," sold it to Lawrence for stage production, and granted him 50 per cent of any film rights. They charge the Fox film is an infringement of the Wallace story.

Lesser Sets Smith Films

HOLLYWOOD, March 31.—Sol Lesser has closed a three-way deal with Frank H. Spearman, creator of the character, for a series of 12 "Whispering Smith" stories. The stories will be published by Doubleday-Doran, serialized on the radio, and made as pictures by Lesser. Lesser is now seeking a player for the role on the air and screen. The pictures will be sold in the same manner as the "Charlie Chan" series, but Lesser has not as yet closed a releasing deal.

Condemn 120 Billboards

BOSTON, March 31.—Commissioner of Public Works William F. Callahan has condemned 120 billboards under regulations that recently went into effect after litigation had been dropped.

the line ahead of the others. The result was "Baby, Take a Bow," that memorable attraction which W. G. Van Schmus allowed to slip out of his Music Hall hands and into Howard Cullman's for the Roxy. Van Schmus never doubled back on the same mistake. Made as a James Dunn-Claire Trevor vehicle with Shirley also in it, "Baby, Take a Bow," cost about $150,000 and grossed $800,000 domestically. The excitement was something by this time and next took form in "Bright Eyes"—cost $225,000, domestic gross $1,300,000, world gross, $1,800,000. From that point on, the Temple fable must be familiar to all hands. . . .

Emphasizing the vagaries of production and also the general fallacy of setting up rules defining what will or will not go calls for another story. It's about Will Rogers, Sheehan and Wurtzel. It is said of Rogers that Will, always independent, was fussy about stories; that time was when he and Sheehan failed to see matters eye to eye. Whether Wurtzel and Rogers hit it off on a more agreeable plane or whether Westwood Hills turned over the comedian to Western Ave. in a move to eliminate the Hollywood impression Wurtzel was making only the cheap film or whether a combination of both, the facts are Rogers went to Wurtzel for a series. And this is what happened. . . .

Western Avenue produced "Judge Priest," "Handy Andy," "Life Begins at 40" and "Steamboat 'Round the Bend." The second cost $285,000, grossed between $900,000 and $1,000,000; the third cost $350,000, grossed $1,000,000; the fourth cost $355,000, did $1,200,000. "In Old Kentucky," the final Rogers was produced by Sheehan. Now whether or not Wurtzel again got a break will be a matter of opinion. The facts are Rogers had been doing an approximate $600,000 domestic business. The pictures Wurtzel produced were all $1,000,000 each and over. It may have been Rogers' natural growth as an attraction; certainly, in large measure, this was true. It may have been things in the product. The conclusion is what you make it. . . .

Certain it is that Wurtzel has earned his spurs as a manufacturer of salable, down-to-earth pictures turned out at a price. Owl-like in one respect, at least, is his wisdom about negative costs. "Pictures," he thinks, "should be made at $200,000 or $500,000 and over. The in-betweens represent the loss and the gamble in production." This space is not so certain about his higher bracket when it recalls the $500,000 and beyond negatives which have done about as much and, in some instances, less than lower bracket attractions. On the cheaper type, however, Wurtzel is entirely correct. Any circuit operator with a long view of what takes place at the box-office will step up with verification on request. . . .

To Market New Device

HOLLYWOOD, March 31.—Plans to market a new invention which is said to eliminate side seat distortion in theatres are being carried out by Light, Inc., of which Major James D. Fletcher, former theatre man, is a shareholder. The invention is known as Stereo-Lite, and embodies a method of projecting two different images on the screen at once, separating them with a beam of light. The device is said to give the projected image greater depth, and calls for no change in the present method of taking or showing pictures. Donovan Foster, the inventor, was recently killed in a motor accident.

Para. Signs Irene Dunne

HOLLYWOOD, March 31.—Paramount has signed Irene Dunne to a three-picture contract. The studio has no story in mind as her first assignment, and Miss Dunne plans to leave for New York shortly to look over plays. In addition to Paramount, Miss Dunne has commitments at Radio and Columbia.

M-G-M Re-Signs Three

HOLLYWOOD, March 31.—M-G-M has given new term contracts to the song writing team of Nacio Herb Brown and Arthur Freed, and to Richard Thorpe, who directed "The Voice of Bugle Ann." Brown and Freed are preparing a new "Broadway Melody," and Thorpe has been assigned to direct "Gram."

Theatre Panic Averted

NEW ORLEANS, March 31.—Warren Sales, owner of the Garden, prevented what might have been a fire panic when, under his direction, his audience filed slowly from the theatre following a gasoline explosion three doors distant.

Terry Expands Company

Paul Terry, undertaking a reorganization and expansion of TerryToons, has effected a 15 per cent increase in production personnel and negative investment. TerryToons have 10 more cartoons for Educational release this season.

Imperial to Handle Cinecolor in India

HOLLYWOOD, March 31.—Cinecolor, Inc., has closed with Imperial Film Co., of Bombay, India, giving Imperial exclusive rights to the Cinecolor process in British India, Ceylon, Burma, Afghanistan, Iraq, Persia and the Straits Settlements, including all the Malay States. Imperial is headed by Khan Bahadur Ardeshir M. Irani, film pioneer of India, who plans to produce a series of educational films in color.

Imperial will build a special Cinecolor laboratory in India. Wolff M. Henius has been signed as head of the foreign department and export manager, as well as chief of the laboratory. He arranged the deal here and is receiving final training in color photography at the local Cinecolor laboratories.

"Doctor" 2nd Week Closes at $55,000

"The Country Doctor" demonstrated staying powers at the Music Hall by grossing $55,000 in its second week.

"Petticoat Fever" was the only other Broadway attraction to develop any strength in the general Lenten weakness. It reached $38,000 at the Capitol.

"Brides Are Like That" took $8,500 at the Strand; "Preview Murder Mystery" was weak at the Rialto with $6,500; "Charlie Chan at the Circus" failed to stir up any excitement at the Center on a take of $8,000, and "Follow the Fleet" garnered a mild $6,400 at the Palace.

ployment, further steps might be taken along these lines.

That the Administration might make another effort to regulate business is seen by observers in President Roosevelt's reappointment of George L. TAMPA, March 31.—Two local projectionists, Woodrow Jones and C. L. Bailiff, have formed Peninsular Enterprises to operate theatres. Three houses have been acquired thus far, in Plant City, Winter Haven and Zephyrhills. They are seeking two other theatres.

OMAHA, March 31.—Members of the Nebraska-Iowa M.P.T.O., meeting here today, discussed a resolution on the Pettengill Bill but deferred final action in the matter until the next meeting which is slated to be held within 90 days.

Billy Mauch to Warners

HOLLYWOOD, March 31.—Warners have signed Billy Mauch, twelve-year-old actor, to a long term contract. Mauch played "Anthony Adverse" as a boy, and his next assignment will be in "Angel of Mercy."

Ask Copyright Protection on Music Records

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, March 31—Extension of copyright protection to phonograph records as a means of preventing the abuse of their use by broadcasters was asked of the House Patents Committee today by representatives of the manufacturers, who charged that many small radio stations were using records without so designating them, and playing popular compositions so frequently that their sale was killed.

Sales of 500,000 to 1,000,000 copies of a popular record were not unusual before the advent of broadcasting, it was declared by H. A. Huebner, representing the Brunswick and Columbia companies, but today 100,000 is a high figure, seldom attained. It was claimed that the manufacturers lose money on the majority of records, Huebner citing a recording made by a well known artist who received $350 for her performance, after which a total of 1,162 copies were sold, the income being $418.32, on which royalties of $46.48 were paid. Since the total cost of production was $512.68, the company took a loss of $94.36.

The four-cent royalty paid by the two companies is equivalent to 10 per cent of the manufacturing cost of the records, he said in asking for retention of the present license, but it was revealed by W. R. Altschuler, of the American Record Corp. that his company pays only one and one-quarter cent a side under an agreement with the publishers, who have looked upon records as a means of exploitation.

In the event that copyright protection is extended to records, it was promised, only a reasonable fee would be asked of broadcasters, but would be coupled with a limitation upon the number of times a record could be used within a given period. Unless this protection is given, it was declared, the record industry may be forced out of business.

Protection of the type proposed is accorded records abroad, it was said by Isabel Marks of Decca Records, who told the committee that the British manufacturers last year collected £20,000 for the use of records in broadcasting. Decca Records paid royalties of $60,000, while the American Record Corp., which distributed 6,000,000 copies last year, paid royalties of $70,291. Both of these companies make 25-cent records.

Exhibitors will be given an opportunity to present their views on the copyright legislation April 13, when Ed Kuykendall, president of the M. P. T. O. A., will be heard. The final two days of the hearing will be devoted to the producers and distributors.

explained that the Paramount interest was in subsidiary management companies equally owned with United Artists Circuit. The interest in these companies, it is understood, involves only the operating agreement and becomes non-effective with the expiration of that agreement in a year. A new agreement, similar to those now held by Paramount subsidiaries, is to be worked out with Loew's.

B. & K. manages the Chicago theatre through Randolph Operating Corp. and George W. Trendle of United Detroit Theatres manages the house in Detroit. In the latter city the choice of M-G-M product has been playing the United Artists, usually on two-week stands, while the one-week runs of M-G-M go to the Michigan, also operated by Trendle. The new agreement is regarded as most likely to affect the B. & K. Chicago, flagship of the Loop, which has been getting that city's choice first run of M-G-M product.

expected for some time as part of the I. T. O. A.'s fight against the sales practice.

No action has been taken yet in Municipal Court here on the suit for $61 brought by RKO Distributing Corp. against the Ridgewood Amusement Co., operating the Star, a Harry Brandt house in Brooklyn on a claim on a short subject contract. In an answer, Ridgewood charged major distributors with violations of the New York state anti-trust laws, and that it was forced to take the short subjects in order to obtain the distributor's features.

With respect to the planned Federal court action, it has not yet been determined whether the action will be filed by one theatre or a group.

Sunday Flood Shows Bring Weak Grosses

HARTFORD, March 31.—Theatre managers who have been pleading for early openings on Sundays were repudiated at the box-office last Sunday, when 15 two-o'clock matinees were given under special dispensation of Mayor Spellacy for the benefit of flood sufferers. Varied programs were given all over town, at regular prices, with small attendance everywhere.

Beautiful spring weather was blamed, but it will be difficult, some of the managers think, to argue from now on in behalf of theoretical multitudes of Hartfordites who are demanding pictures on Sunday afternoons. Under the present law, doors open at 4:30 and shows begin at 5 o'clock. All local theatres have reopened, following renovations due to the flood, when necessary. The Palace, the lone exception, was slated to close because of lack of product.

Cincinnati Houses Unharmed

CINCINNATI, March 31.—Although the Ohio river remains at flood stage, and still is out of its banks along a wide front, the only amusement enterprise to be affected is Coney Island, a river resort, which is under several feet of water. All theatres are located on high ground several blocks from the river, and are in no possible danger, even in event of an unprecedented rise. However, considerable theatre attendance has been diverted through sightseeing.

Emanuel Sees Hope Of One Phila. Unit

PHILADELPHIA, March 31.—In an open letter occupying a full page in the latest issue of The Philadelphia Exhibitor, Jay Emanuel points out that a conciliatory attitude now characterizes the reaction of the I. T. O. and the M. P. T. O. of Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey and Delaware, regarding the formation of a single exhibitor unit in the territory.

Emanuel, declaring he himself has no desire for office in any new body, urges all exhibitors to work for a single organization. Charles Segall, president of the I. T. O., in a letter to Emanuel, declared the officers are ready to resign if that move will bring about the formation of one independent organization.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Small Town Girl"

(M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, March 31.—Hunt Stromberg again delivers a production which ably lives up to M-G-M's strong advance campaign. It should bring satisfactory results everywhere. In addition to a plot with wide appeal, the picture offers a performance by Janet Gaynor which should place her anew in the front rank of name attractions. Teamed with Robert Taylor, Miss Gaynor offers a characterization which, while similar, is at the same time different from her previous efforts and demonstrates conclusively her complete understanding of acting nuances.

Miss Gaynor—the small town girl—has learned from experience every thought which is likely to occur to the people with whom she lives. Seeking relief from the monotony of her surroundings, she meets Taylor returning from a football game and marries him, practically without courtship, following a football victory celebration.

On the morning after Taylor takes his bride to the home of his parents, Lewis Stone and Nella Walker. It is decided that, for the sake of appearances, the couple will live together for six months, after which a divorce will be arranged, permitting Taylor to marry his former fiancee, Binnie Barnes.

It is during this six-month period that Miss Gaynor proves that she, rather than Miss Barnes, will make the better wife for Taylor. Although this conclusion is obvious from the start, the methods and events by which it is developed are told with unflagging interest.

Director William Wellman has handled the situations and a large cast skillfully, getting excellent performances, not only from the leads, but also from Andy Devine, James Stewart, Edgar Kennedy and Frank Craven, not to forget an extremely interesting Chinese interpretation by Willie Fung.

John Lee Mahin and Edith Fitzgerald have imparted vitality to their adaptation of the Ben Ames Williams novel, inserting many dialogue and situation laughs.

Aided by the benefit of newspaper serialization, plus the strength of the picture itself, top results seem assured.

Looking 'Em Over

"The Unguarded Hour"

(M-G-M)

The stage origin of this story of English aristocratic life is apparent in the extensive use of dialogue to describe off-stage action, but the result is pleasant entertainment. The cast is perfect, the settings sumptuous, the situations neatly handled. What it lacks in basic story values is made up for by smart handling of details.

Franchot Tone is about to reach the summit of his career, having been assured an appointment as attorney general, when his wife, Loretta Young, receives a blackmailing threat involving some letters written before his marriage by Tone. The payment of the money on the Dover cliffs involves Miss Young as the witness needed to clear a man of murder.

At the height of the trial Tone receives a similar blackmailing threat and comes under suspicion of the murder of the girl to whom he had written the letters. The unraveling of the mystery keeps the suspense alive to the end.

Roland Young, as a friend of the family, is highly entertaining. Lewis Stone, as the Scotland Yard head, also a friend of the family, is effective. Dudley Digges gives a fine portrayal as the pathetic, badgered witness seemingly on the way to the gallows. Tone and Miss Young are in roles suited to their well known talents.

Sam Wood deserves a bow for his direction. Howard Emmett Rogers and Leon Gordon wrote the screen play from Ladislaus Fodor's play.

"Silver Spurs"

(Universal)

A good western with the exciting qualities that are necessary to keep the fans satisfied and the other audiences entertained. Buck Jones is the moving spirit and does an excellent job. While the story rambles, it is suitable for Saturday matinees and double bills.

The action starts early when a railroad station is held up. A strongbox consigned to a bank is stolen by a gang, led by an individual named Silver Spurs. Muriel Evans, who is waiting for her father at the station, is an eye-witness. Jones arrives soon after the holdup and takes Miss Evans to her father's ranch. From this point the plot interweaves with the elements of romance, a murder, cattle rustling and an exciting fight, and, when the bad men's hideout is discovered, plenty of noisy gunplay. Jones and Miss Evans take part in these events as required.

Rounding out the cast with convincing performances are Robert Fraser, Denny Meadows, George French and Beth Marion.

The story is from an original by Charles Alden Seltzer. Ray Taylor directed. Spectacular riding sequences and the generally fine outdoor photography were handled by Allan Thompson and H. Kirkpatrick.

"The Leathernecks Have Landed," at the Globe Theatre this week, is not the usual sentimental story built around an arm of the Government's defense service. It is a two-fisted drama of adventure that has the illegal gunrunning of China for background. The picture opens as a minor comedy, but it quickly develops speed and action and ends on a very exciting battle sequence between the Marines and a group of Chinese bandits in uniform.

Lew Ayres, Jimmy Ellison and Maynard Holmes are the three musketeers of the Marine Corps concerned in this particular series of adventures. They represent privates Davis, MacDonald and Waters, who are always getting into trouble because of Davis's penchant for getting into fights while on liberty.

Fight Fatal to Pal.

While stationed in Shanghai Davis gets into serious trouble and is courtmartialed out of the service. He had promised his buddies that he would keep the peace so that MacDonald's chances for a commission would not be endangered, since McDonald and Waters were always coming to Davis' rescue. But circumstances over which he and his hot temper had very little control lead him into a fight with a belligerent Russian that ends in Waters' death.

Davis elects to stay in Shanghai until his friend's death is avenged.

The Russian has disappeared, but after several months a stranded blonde from Brooklyn tips Davis off to Drenov's hideout. The ex-Marine goes to the Pacific Supply Company's warehouse unarmed to fight it out with his friend's murderer, but when the latter pulls a gun on him Davis manages to turn the muzzle before the shot is fired and the Russian is instantly killed.

Becomes Gun Runner.

The boss of the warehouse catches Davis redhanded but when he hears the boy's story, instead of turning him over to the police he offers him Drenov's job of running guns and ammunition through the Shanghai cordon into the country.

When the Marines are sent up country to locate the gun runners and come upon the Pacific Supply cache at the same time that the Chinese bandits arrive to collect their guns, Davis heroically tries to keep the Chinese from getting possession of the ammunition and blows the storehouse to pieces rather than have any of the guns or bullets used on his old buddies.

The action is fast and snappy and all the members of the cast, including Isabel Jewell, who furnishes the romance, give creditable performances.

THE marines and the inevitable Brooklyn blond never fail to excite the imagination of the movie producers.

Here they are again, in a blood and thunder, rip-roaring melodrama which is packed with action.

IT IS MR. LEW Ayres, the Marine who itches for fights, who provokes most of the uproar. He raises enough to be courtmartialed out of the service. But in reliable old Shanghai, among the reliable old gun-runners, he is able to emerge hero from an elaborate battle for a honor of the U. S. Marines.

The plot is not too fresh, but it is violently active. Fights, battles and tumult animate the tale, which concentrates on man's devotion to man rather than mushy romancing.

THE MEN, THEREFORE, will enjoy it particularly. It is well-made, well-acted and exciting.

Ayres is supported by a company of familiar and colorful players. Isabel Jewell provides the indispensible feminine interest. James Burke, J. Caroll Naish, Jimmy Ellison are prominent in the cast.

"The Leathernecks Have Landed"—Globe

At the Globe Theater the United States Marines and Mr. Lew Ayres once more demonstrate the comforting theory that one good, upstanding American can lick any fifty foreigners, particularly if they are low, shifty Chinese revolutionists. In the interest of international amity, the heroic leathernecks leap upon the sinister Orientals with machine gun and hand grenade and perform a very handsome job of liquidating the rebel horde. As nearly as one could figure from the plot, the rebels were merely concerned with getting hold of some ammunition they had purchased and fighting the enemy forces of the Nationalist government, but they made the great mistake of encroaching on the land of an American mining firm,

Mr. Ayres is seen as a dashing young marine with an exuberant love of fighting and a capacity for getting into scrapes. It appears, however, that he really was not always responsible for his brawls and usually fought to defend the honor of the corps. One night in Shanghai one of his pals was killed by a rascally Russian and, although Mr. Ayres was innocent, he was discharged from the marines in disgrace. Thereupon he took vengeance upon the killer, became a gun runner for the rebels—they are called rebels and bandits interchangably, by the way—and then when he saw his former companions in arms getting ready for action against the Chinese he experienced a change of heart and became a hero.

Mr. Ayres plays the young marine pleasantly enough and Miss Isabel Jewell again portrays with realistic earnestness her familiar role of a girl down on her luck. James Burke and J. Carrol Naish are vigorous villains and Jimmy Ellison and Mavnard Holmes likable marines.

THEY go in for serious stuff in "The Leathernecks Have Landed," which, as you may gather, is all about the United States Marines, and especially a few of them, and specifically one of them named Red Davis.

EXCELLENT

METER

The Globe's new movie — a Republic production — is to be recommended for its interesting backgrounds, and the fact that a somewhat different yarn n the usual run of sea-soldier ha.

Lew Ayres ives an acceptable account of Davis, the marine who's chucked out of service because he's found guilty of disorderly conduct, causng the death of his ship buddy.

Then there are Jimmy Ellison, James Burke, J. Carrol Naish (he's the villain—and a black one!), Clay Clement, Maynard Holmes, Ward Bond, Paul Porcasi, Claude King and Christian Rub in supporting roles.

When Davis is forced to resign from the force, he joins up with an outfit of gun-runners, illegally supplying ammunition to the Chinese rebels. It's after he has proved his loyalty to the U. S. by saving his marine pals from death at the guns of the Chinese—risking his own life to do so—that he's reinstated, and Director Howard Bretherton calls a halt on Seton Miller's story.

During the film's last half, there are a number of crackerjack fist fights. And the business of blowing up the ammunition barracks is pretty thrilling besides.

There's no static in the swift-paced meller at the Globe. There are elements which may be lacking, but they don't include action. Of that there is plenty. And because of its exciting speed, the fact that there's always something going on, and the interesting portrayals of principals and support, the film makes very passable program entertainment.

You may expect excitement and not be disappointed when Lew Ayres, a U. S. Marine with a chip on his shoulder, is turned loose on 'Frisco shore leave with two pals equally ready for fight or frolic. But this brawl is nothing to the one that follows, with Shanghai as its locale, and here the action turns tragic, with one of Lew's buddies being slain in the fracas.

This misadventure causes the hero's dismissal from the corps, and subsequently he becomes involved with a hard-bitten gang of filibusters intent on smuggling arms and ammunition to a mob of bandits terrorizing the interior. Thus it happens that Lew is on the wrong side when the terrorists and the Marines finally clash, which gives him the chance for regeneration in sifting loyalties, saving the day for the leathernecks and finding reinstatement with the sea-soldiers.

Ayres gives a straight-from-the-shoulder characterization of the two-fisted, hot-headed Marine, and Isabel Jewell wins further distinction as a pathetic pariah of the China seas. Lots of sympathy goes out to Jimmy Ellison and Maynard Holmes, Lew's comrades-in-arms, while James Burke and J. Carrol Naish are properly hateful villains. The direction is sharp and vigorous.—R. C.

U. A. and Loew Deal Surprise To Paramount

Question Is Raised as to Legality of Move

Paramount officials yesterday were perplexed over the action of the United Artists Theatre Circuit in concluding a deal for operation by Loew's of the United Artists theatres at Chicago and Detroit, effective next year. The circuit's right to consummate such a deal without consulting Paramount which, through subsidiaries, claims a half ownership in the houses, was frankly questioned and legal advice was sought.

Y. Frank Freeman, Paramount theatre head, said that his company holds half interest in Randolph Operating Co., which owns the leasehold on the United Artists, Chicago, up to the fall of 1939. The same company holds an agreement for management and operation of the house by B. & K. No extension of the agreement be-

Allied Unit Plans Fight on Clearance

CHICAGO, April 1—Plans to halt the granting of an extra week's clearance between C and the first week of release when new contracts are drawn up were instituted at the meeting of the Allied board held here today.

Allied and independents are strongly opposed to the declared intention of distributors to give B. & K. clearance this year. A group of Allied members will meet tomorrow to form a booking combine. When their plan is completed it will be voted upon by Allied members. If it is accepted, Allied will seek to form a combine to break down the B. & K. buying power. Eighty theatres are expected to join in the move.

Aaron Saperstein is acting in an advisory capacity.

GTE Reorganization Hearing to Be Apr. 28

WILMINGTON, April 1.—Hearing on the petition of the reorganization committee of General Theatres Equipment, Inc., asking for an order for sale of assets and receivership property of the company, was set for April 28 by Chancellor Josiah P. Wolcott in Chancery Court here today. The petitioners are acting under a plan of agreement and reorganization of August 31, 1935.

Wardour St., London, Buzzes With Rumors of Company Deals

By BRUCE ALLAN

London, April 1.—Wardour St. and its bypaths are resounding daily with rumors, chiefly wild and essentially without foundation, of impending deals of magnitude.

Cross-sectional opinion, checked as carefully and as conservatively as it can be, appears to recognize that several big moves are on the wing. Where, when and with whom, however, are something else again.

The presence here of A. C. Blumenthal of New York lends a certain amount of credence to reports concerning new promotions; the principal conversation as to it concerns his having to do with a possible transaction involving Gaumont British. Be that as it may, in at least one direction the rumors have prompted one comment. Arthur Dent of British International today denied John Maxwell was tied in with any moves, discussed, or contemplated, pertaining to G. B.

The silence so far maintained by Herbert J. Yates is viewed in some garrulous quarters as potentially, if not actually, significant. He appears to have several plans in the offing, aside from his survey of laboratory sites. Detail is lacking.

G. B. to Increase U. S. Films to 28

G. B. will increase its American feature release to 24 for the new season, Jeffrey Bernerd, head of distribution for Gaumont British, said yesterday on his return here from Hollywood. The company's release list in America this season was confined to 16 features.

The list, he said, calls for "A" type product exclusively and will be bugeted accordingly. No definite arrangements have been completed, he said, for G. B. production activities in this country at the present time. He expressed satisfaction over the company's American distribution showing and said that the company would go

RKO-Van Beuren Cartoon Deal Off

RKO yesterday gave formal notice to the Van Beuren Corp. that it would not renew its deal for distribution of the latter's "Rainbow Parade" color cartoons next season.

The decision results from RKO's recent acquisition of the Walt Disney cartoons, effective with the completion of his current releasing arrangements with United Artists, but does not affect RKO distribution of any other Van Beuren subjects. For the past six years RKO has distributed 46 Van Beuren shorts annually, of which 13 have been color cartoons. Because of some uncertainty as to whether or not Disney could complete

Pathe Plan Is To Reorganize For Producing

Two New Units Forming, Kolbe Divulges

That Pathe Film Corp., organized last August as successor to Pathe Exchange, Inc., and the Time Magazine interests are dickering for the formation of two new companies, one of which will include production and distribution, was learned yesterday.

Under the plan, according to information, March of Time will be included in the deal, and a new management will be placed in control. This, however, was inconsistent with the facts.

Ned E. Depinet, president of RKO Dist. Corp., said the releasing arrangement with his company is for a period of years and March of Time definitely is committed to RKO for next season.

Depinet added that the report had

The payment completes delivery of the $5,500,000 option price placed on the Laemmle securities, $1,500,000 of which was deposited to Laemmle's credit with the Manufacturers Trust Co., March 14.

Following the transfer today, Laemmle plans to leave for the coast and retire from activity in the industry. He plans to return in June en route to Europe for an extended vacation.

FWC Projectionists Again on Union Scale

LOS ANGELES, April 1.—Projectionists in all Fox West Coast houses today went back on the full union wage scale. The circuit signed an agreement with Local 150, I.A.T.S.E. late yesterday which restored salaries to the 1933 level. The new contract extends to Sept. 30, 1938.

The I.A.T.S.E. unit is now conducting negotiations for similar wage boosts with Warners and independents.

Tax Judgment Is Filed

A judgment for $332 was filed in N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday by the N. Y. State Tax Commission against the Big "U" Film Exchange, Inc., of 630 9th Ave. The judgment was for back taxes for 1933 and 1934.

A. J. Lewin Signed

HOLLYWOOD, April 1.—Albert J. Lewin, M-G-M associate producer for the past twelve years, today signed a new long-term contract. His first will be "Marie Antoinette."

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

Hollywood, April 1

THE facts: Judge Charles I. Bogue has held that Warners voided their pact with James Cagney by failure to properly bill him, as per contract, in "Ceiling Zero" and "Footlight Parade." The performer's suit to obtain release from the producer was predicated on an alleged oral agreement that he was not to appear in more than four pictures in any one year. Any right to test validity on that ground was waived by his appearance in five in 1935, thereby presumably indicating his willingness to work on that sort of basis. So the court observed. . . .

The Warner stand, Jack L. as spokesman:

"The issues in this case were simple and clear-cut. The court in its decision has held that our contract with Mr. Cagney was not invalid and that he had no legal basis for his claim that the contract should be canceled at this time because of any defect or irregularity in that contract. When Mr. Cagney declined in December of 1935 to render further services to us under his contract dated October 4, 1932, he did so, as the court has held in effect, without legal justification. He was suspended by us at that time because of his refusal to work. His contract, including options, has a long time to run and we intend to protect our interests throughout.

"However, the court has likewise found that subsequent to the time when Mr. Cagney, without legal reason, refused to continue his services for us, he had been billed in advertising matter in connection with the picture 'Ceiling Zero,' in a manner contrary to the billing clause in his contract. Our company contended that such errors in billing were entirely inadvertent and that our contract provided definitely that 'no casual or inadvertent' failures to comply with provisions of the contract regarding billing should constitute a breach thereof. Whether the error claimed to have been made in the advertising was a deliberate breach, or whether it was merely a minor incident, purely casual and inadvertent in its nature, is a question which will in due course be placed before the Supreme Court of the State of California, to which we intend to appeal.

"Whether the advertising matter concerning the picture 'Ceiling Zero' put out by certain local theatres under the particular circumstances disclosed in this case can be said to be a breach of the customary billing clause as it appears in Mr. Cagney's contract with us as the producer of the picture is a question of great importance to the entire motion picture industry.

"We are naturally disappointed in the present outcome of the case but as a matter of conviction and principle intend to prosecute and appeal in due course to the highest court in the State."

The interpretation: The industry, unknown to many of its constituents, so far has bumped and scraped its way over dangerous shoals as a consequence of this action. In finding for Cagney on the basis of billing, there is an object lesson for advertising men, cautioning them again on the sharp necessity for strict observance to obligations imposed upon them by accurate observance of contract terms. On that ground and whether or not it was sufficient to hold the Warners had violated their agreement, opinion may vary. At least, the court, as it should have, followed the written agreement and drew its findings from the signed document. . . .

It goes far beyond, does this situation and it ties in very neatly with a current state of mind in Hollywood. It deals with the very mad scramble for names, no matter at what price, visible and invisible, and it divides the responsibility for inordinately excessive negative costs between the producer who succumbs to the technique and the agent who drums it up. Faster and faster is the day arriving in production where important players, looking around them and noting what is happening to others in their, or approximate, classification, are seeking to make deals on a per picture basis. The returns are better because it makes possible negotiations anew at the completion of each succeeding picture and because there is always a producer prepared to fall for the game. . . .

This department describes it as a guess since it is lacking the tangible proof to back up what it is about to point out. Yet it is obvious that Cagney is much more concerned with salary than he is with overwork; that, consequently, he is far less disturbed over the burden of appearing in five pictures a year, as compared with four, than he is with the fact that he has made the extra picture without additional salary recompense. There is nothing to show by name the bee that is stinging him into action. There is the general status of salaries here to consider. There is also to consider the extremely strong probability that some other studio, by direct action or more likely through a third party, which is to say an agent, has been dangling temptation before the Cagney orbs. . . .

This is old stuff here, but it continues to be the most nefarious of Hollywood practices. It is nothing more or less than a form of brigandage, an out-and-out holdup and a cancerous something dangerously inherent in the Hollywood setup. However, any accusing finger leveled at its sponsors would have to swing well nigh across the entire local orbit if it is to be at all accurate in its embrace. For the job of making talent already signed disgruntled with its present contractual whereabouts has developed into something closely resembling a fine art. In one outstanding instance, a major studio, resisting attempted raids on personnel, has spent millions in the last five years as the price necessary to keep its ranks intact. Everyone here at all wise to the Hollywood routine, of course, knows the condition as it is. Like other matters which submit themselves as likely problems for adjustment, this one is met with a shrug of the shoulders that indicates the unwillingness, the remoteness or the disinclination to seek correction. . . .

Theatre Victor in Segregation Action

PHILADELPHIA, April 1.—The first segregation case under Pennsylvania's new equal rights law to reach the court resulted today in a verdict of acquittal for the defendant theatre, the Doris. The discrimination charge was brought by Dr. Charles G. Nickens and Mary Bolton, negroes, who complained they were requested to leave the center aisle of the house and sit in aisle reserved for negroes.

Raymond J. O'Rourke, manager of the house, and Charles Shields, ticket taker, were specific defendants. The jury was out only 15 minutes. The plaintiffs declared they refused to move to the negro section and their admission was refunded. The case was watched with interest since the law applies to the entire state.

Must File Particulars

She charges Columbia permitted use of her photo in an advertisement in the Detroit Free Press in March, 1934, in order to advertise "It Happened One Night." Columbia has denied the charges.

Not much that any exhibitor could want, no matter what kind of a theatre he has or what kind of audience, has been omitted from "The Singing Kid" . . . The show, not discounting the value of star—and the name of Al Jolson takes on a new significance here as he's always a first water entertainer—and the worth of supporting personalities, is its own selling argument . . . Embellishing the story, in which Jolson appears to better advantage than in any of his recent appearances, is a colorful comedy contrast. It has the Yacht Club Boys in a specialty number that's a riot of frothy fun. It teams them with Jolson in a musical chase sequence that's surprisingly different . . . Novelty in every phase is the tune to which the show spins. It is unique entertainment. *Previewed in Warner Hollywood Theatre, first-run deluxer. proved "embarrassing" to March of Time executives.

"The story in the newspaper today that March of Time is involved in a reported new picture company is not true," said Roy Larsen last night. "In accordance with the terms of our contract with RKO, the March of Time distribution deal with RKO has been renewed for another year from August.

"I know nothing about the reported new company in which Pathe and Time are said to be involved."

Pathe's 25 per cent interest in the du Pont Film Mfg. Corp. and its laboratory activities will not be involved, the reports indicate. The laboratory now processes about 25 per cent of the RKO film under an agreement reached when RKO took over Pathe's production several years ago.

Pathe stock has gained rapidly on the Stock Exchange of late and sold yesterday at a new high of 11½. Last year's low was 4⅞ and this year's low has been 7⅜.

Pathe is now controlled by a Wall St. group headed by F. P. Kolbe of Young, Kolbe & Co. and Robert W. Atkins of Abbott, Proctor & Payne, both Stock Exchange houses. Kolbe is Pathe president and Atkins is executive vice-president.

The reports were partially confirmed by Kolbe who, following a series of conferences, permitted this statement to be issued last night:

"Pathe film officials announced that it had formed a new subsidiary company to take over its motion picture activities. They stated that the new company is entering into negotiations to acquire an experienced and aggressive management to handle the production and distribution of motion pictures."

One new company, according to reports, will be known as Pathe-du Pont Holding Co. This will take over Pathe's interest in the du Pont Film Mfg. Co. and the Bound Brook laboratory. Kolbe is expected to head this unit. Another new company will be Pathe International Corp. to take over March of Time, short subjects and the State Theatre Co., which operates a house at Denver.

Another angle is the report that present Pathe holders will receive one share of stock in the holding company for every share of Pathe now held and one share of the international corporation for every three of the present company. It is also predicted that rights will be issued to holders of the latter company.

Executives of Pathe, The March of Time, and Time, Inc., last night were busy in a series of meetings.

Barrymore Sues Lawyers

A suit for an accounting was filed in Federal court here yesterday for John Barrymore against the law firm of Hotchner & Finn. George B. Jolson

Chicago, April 1.—If Al Jolson should suddenly burst on an unsuspecting public with platinum blonde whiskers, it will be because he wants to play the role of George Bernard Shaw in a film based on Shaw's life. He admitted as much here today.

pected that the stipulations, together with voluminous exhibits, would be in the hands of the court for several months before a decision disposing of the case or directing a continuance of the trial could be made.

Through the stipulations, Ascap hopes to win a dismissal of the Government action, whereas the Government's objective is the obtaining of an injunction against the society's present licensing system. If the court decides that the stipulations do not justify either method of disposing of the case it may direct the trial to proceed, in order to supply additional evidence.

get under way with "The Bohemian Girl" and "Man Hunt."

At the same time, the Warner and Davis, reopened a week ago following the flood, will share the films originally booked for the Penn and the Stanley. It will be at least three weeks before either the Penn or Stanley will be in shape to open.

The same goes for the Harris-Alvin and the Shea-Hyde Fulton. Although the opening of the Regent and Davis will keep Warner, M-G-M, First National and United Artists pictures moving, the continued closing of the Fulton and Alvin will clog all Twentieth Century-Fox and Universal films for some time. A few of the minor films from these studios will possibly be sold on the outside to George Jaffe's independent Casino, which has also resumed operation downtown.

Until the de luxe houses open again, Pittsburgh will have no stage shows. Demands from local unions for adjustments have sent George Jaffe's independently-operated Casino to straight pictures. Until the flood closed the house for 10 days, the Casino had been playing films and units, but upon resuming over the week-end Jaffe dropped presentations for double features.

The operator is demanding a reduction of his backstage crew.

U.A. and Loew Deal Surprise To Paramount

yond 1939 has to be made until the fall of 1937, when the M-G-M franchise for the theatre expires, it was said.

Freeman stated that United Detroit Theatres, also a Paramount subsidiary, has a similar operating agreement and interest in a company which leases the United Artists, Detroit, to 1950. He added that in his opinion even though new management operating agreements had to be made next year the Paramount companies, through their interests in the leaseholds, still would have to be consulted in the making of such new agreements. Paramount and outside attorneys were called upon to submit opinions in this respect.

An indication that delays in opening M-G-M pictures in Chicago may have had something to do with the change in operation was given yesterday by John Balaban of B. & K. He stated that his circuit's policy has been to play the preferred M-G-M product at either the United Artists or the Roosevelt, the B. & K. long run houses in the Loop. Second line M-G-M product, he said, goes to the Chicago and still weaker product to other Loop B. & K. houses. B. & K. has retained the right to substitute any other house than the United Artists for M-G-M extended runs.

Recently, the consecutive release by United Artists of such pictures as "Strike Me Pink," "Little Lord Fauntleroy" and "These Three," all of which played the United Artists, left no time available for M-G-M pictures in that theatre for approximately 20 weeks. With the Roosevelt as the only Loop house available for M-G-M extended runs, as a result, pictures like "Rose Marie" which have been in general distribution for the past six or eight weeks, have been held up in Chicago. "Rose Marie" is only now playing its first Loop week.

Balaban said that he did not regard the move as "an unfriendly one," although he indicated some surprise over the rearrangement and the fact that it was determined upon without B. & K. having been consulted.

Whether or not a similar playing time situation as to M-G-M product also exists in Detroit could not be learned from the distributor. Al Lichtman was in Detroit yesterday, but on other matters than the theatre operating deal, it was said.

today. RCA plans to call its A issue for redemption at $55 a share if its pending recapitalization plan is approved by the annual stockholders' meeting, which would indicate a valuation of $5,500,000 on the block held by Rockefeller Center.

The stock was turned over to Rockefeller Center three years ago as a consideration in an adjustment of RCA leaseholds, reducing its leased space in Radio City.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Big Brown Eyes"

(Wanger-Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, April 1.—Here is a show fashioned from the stuff that clicks with audiences everywhere. Produced by Walter Wanger, it is, in its essentials, a comedy of "The Thin Man" order. Spatting love interest, high-tension drama and melodramatic crime mystery are blended, while zippy dialogue skips along in time with the fast action and novel situations that develop many surprising twists. Smartly directed and convincingly played by principals and supporting cast, it quickly creates and continuously holds the interest.

The story concerns a wise-cracking hotel barber shop manicurist, played by Joan Bennett, who has taken on the job of sob-sister reporter and who returns policeman Cary Grant's affectionate advances with satiric derision. The two are whirled into the reportorial vortex that results from a jewel robbery and a baby killing. Miss Bennett prints a fake confession in which the terrorized thug, Douglas Fowley, names Lloyd Nolan as the killer. A gangster-controlled court frees the suspect and Grant quits the force.

After the master crook, Walter Pidgeon, causes thieves, Alan Baxter and Henry Kleinback, to kill Nolan, Miss Bennett again returns to her manicurist job, where she uncovers evidence that traps Pidgeon and Baxter. Grant gets all the credit for the solution, while Miss Bennett is quite content to accept still another job—that of his wife on a Long Island chicken farm.

Miss Bennett does Grade A work in her role and it is adequately matched by that of Grant. The performances of the menaces, Pidgeon, Fowley, Baxter and Kleinback, account for plenty of thrills and excitement. Though the title is irrelevant, the story by James Edward Grant has substance and has been intelligently adapted by Bert Hanlon and Raoul Walsh. The Walsh direction plays the tricky situations for all they are worth and in a manner sure to please audiences appreciative of well-handled comedy, drama and mystery action.

"Till We Meet Again"

(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, April 1.—This romantic melodrama, well produced and acted, will appeal strongly to those who like spy stories.

Herbert Marshall, an Englishman, is about to marry Gertrude Michael, a German, employed by the Kaiser's intelligence service in London. With the outbreak of the World War she leaves London hurriedly. Marshall, despairing over her loss, joins the British secret service. By the nature of their activities the two are pitted against each other, culminating in a meeting which takes place behind the German lines. In this situation they come to the realization that their love is stronger than their sense of duty. Together, they flee across the border into Holland, eluding pursuit by Lionel Atwill, German intelligence head.

The script is the work of Edwin Justus Mayer, Brian Marlow and Franklin Coen, and was adapted from the play by Alfred Davis. The incidents have been fashioned into interest-holding drama. Robert Florey's direction succeeds in getting the most from the screen play. In the supporting cast, performances by Guy Bates Post, Rod LaRoque and Frank Reicher are best. Albert Lewis produced. Exploitation should feature the production as a spy story rather than a war tale since no battle scenes are shown.

"The Witness Chair"

(RKO)

HOLLYWOOD, April 1.—In this, another murder-mystery-courtroom drama, Ann Harding has little to do but worry and suffer in her characteristically restrained and dignified manner. Her conduct is above reproach, from a social standpoint, but admirable poise alone does not make a picture and "The Witness Chair" fails to deliver the necessary dramatic punch for the finale.

Miss Harding is secretary to Walter Abel, with whom she is secretly in love. His partner, Douglass Dumbrille, plans to elope with the firm's money after falsifying the books to place responsibility on Abel. He plans also to take Abel's only daughter with him. Discovering the plans, Miss Harding, at the point of a gun, insists that Dumbrille sign a full confession. This leads to a struggle in which Dumbrille is killed. Miss Harding, in an effort to save the reputation of Abel's daughter, his United Artists commitments by the beginning of the new season, it was considered probable that RKO would make a picture to picture arrangement with Van Beuren for cartoons after completion of deliveries on this season's agreement. This, however, will not be done.

Asked yesterday whether there was any prospect of a distribution deal for the cartoons, alone, with another distributor Amedee J. Van Beuren said: "I do not know."

RKO owns a half interest in the Van Beuren Corp. and will continue to distribute the remaining 33 subjects comprising 13 "Easy Aces" releases, seven Bill Corum sports reels, six of the "Struggle to Live" series and seven of the "World on Parade" series. There is a possibility, it was said, that a new series may be added next season which would bring the RKO release list to 45 or 46 Van Beuren subjects without cartoons. About five Van Beuren color cartoons remain to be made for RKO release on the current agreement.

Ending of the cartoon deal is taken to mean that RKO expects to begin receiving subjects from Disney early in the new season. The Disney coast office, however, recently stated that it had approximately 20 cartoons remaining to be delivered to United Artists and estimated that it might take until Jan., 1937, to complete its commitments.

withholds the evidence in the case but finally confesses in court when circumstantial evidence points to Abel as a murderer.

In the supporting cast, the work of William Benedict as a brash office boy drew the only individual applause, although some excellent acting is contributed by Frances Sage, Moroni Olsen, Margaret Hamilton, Maxine Jennings, Murray Kinnel, Charles Arnt, Frank Jenks, Edward Le Saint, Hilda Vaugh and Barlowe Borland. The screen play by Gertrude Purcell and Rian James keeps the audience interested in the outcome even though the heavy-handed humor between policemen makes the opening monotonously routine. The story by Rita Weiman was directed by George Nichols, Jr., and produced by Cliff Reid. Exploitation angle might be based on the questions, "Should a secretary listen; should a secretary tell?"

Looking 'Em Over

"Gentle Julia"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

The small, but extremely capable Jane Withers decidedly dominates this adaptation of the well-known novel of yesterday's small town children and romance by Booth Tarkington. In the wholly attractive and homy atmosphere which Tarkington made so popular and which has been caught on the screen is told the story of the precocious little girl who engineers the successful conclusion of the romantic difficulties of her gentle Aunt Julia.

The film has that quality which should make it enjoyable to almost any type of audience, anywhere, containing as it does a considerable amount of entertaining comedy, supplied for the most part by Jane Withers. Handling the romance is Marsha Hunt, pursued by Tom Brown, favorite of Jane; George Meeker, the villain of the piece and city slicker, in the eyes of the little matchmaker, and Jackie Searl, cousin and object of the Withers scorn.

When Meeker comes to town and ingratiates himself with Miss Hunt, seeking to marry her, Jane takes a violent dislike to him, especially as he is cutting into the courtship of Tom Brown. From one incident to another, most of them amusing and including her successful battle with Jackie, Jane pursues her object, to get Meeker from the field, making the way clear for the hesitant Brown. The film ends with a hilarious pursuit of Meeker and Miss Hunt, who, to spite the detractors of Meeker, starts to elope with him. Just in time they are caught, and Brown replaces Meeker before the minister.

Sol Wurtzel produced and John Blystone directed, from the screen play by Lamar Trotti.

Unit Producing System To Prevail, States C. R. Rogers

Hollywood, April 2.—Charles R. Rogers today broke the silence he has maintained since the start of moves to transfer Universal to Standard Capital Corp. to announce the future company policy and program under the new regime. The company will make 36 features next season, not including a series of eight Buck Jones westerns, Rogers said.

The unit system will prevail, with Rogers planning a minimum of four pictures in work at all times. Universal will not make or distribute outside productions, he said.

Fourteen films remaining for production on the 1935-36 program will be made on schedule, with a spurt in activity during April, May and June to assure the sales organization a supply of pictures sufficiently in advance of release dates to permit proper exploitation.

Four serials are scheduled on the 1936-37 program, the first being "Phantom Rider," starring Buck Jones, now in production; also "Ace Drummond," adapted from the cartoon strip. Henry MacRae and Bernard Sarecky, the latter of whom recently resigned from Republic, will alternate on serial productions, Rogers said.

Since the new interests took control of the studio 11 writers and four directors have been added to the staff. The directors are Ralph Murphy, Walter Lang, Edward Buzzell and Arthur Lubin. The executive setup has William Koenig as general manager of the studio, Rufus LeMaire as

H. Cochrane, president, and Rogers, executive vice-president, of the holding and operating companies at meetings held immediately following the transfer.

Elected to the board of Universal Pictures Co., Inc., the operating company, in addition to Cowdin, Cochrane, and Rogers, are Budd Rogers, Paul G. Brown, Philadelphia capitalist; William Freiday, New York banker; Simon Klee, clothing manufacturer, and J. Meyer Schine. The last two represent preferred stockholders and were members of the old board of Universal Pictures.

Following the election, the new board was convened and elected Cowdin, chairman; Cochrane, president; Rogers, executive vice-president; Charles B. Paine, treasurer, and Helen E. Hughes, secretary. The latter two were reelected.

Prior to the meeting of the pictures company board, directors and officers of Universal Corp. were elected. This is the holding company which was given the $5,500,000 option by Laemmle to acquire from himself and associates a more than 90 per cent stock interest in Universal Pictures. Cowdin, Cochrane and Rogers were elected chairman, president and executive vice-president, respectively, of this company. MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Moon's Our Home"

(Wanger-Paramount)

Hollywood, April 2.—A merry, mad comedy, leaning heavily to the farce side is the tune in which this spins. It takes Margaret Sullavan and Henry Fonda completely out of their heretofore dramatic characters, making comedians of them, to have the audience holding its sides from laughing.

The story may be Faith Baldwin's original, but it's Dorothy Parker's added dialogue, together with the situations contrived in the Isabel Dawn-Boyce Degraw screen play, that gives it zip, sparkle and zest.

It is a cinch to be popular on the strength of word-of-mouth advertising alone. The picture is all audience entertainment and a showman's show. Comedy character portrayals and situations in which the stars are grand and the support excellent, make the attraction.

Miss Sullavan is a temperamental picture star. Fonda is an equally volatile world adventurer and author. Both love and detest their public. The transcontinental train ride sequences in which both think that the mobs are acclaiming them individually as their presence is unkonwn to each other are comedy gems. The romantic story picks up and is made peppy by the Parker dialogue when the pair meet accidentally and hilariously in New York.

Moving into the country where snow sport episodes are ridiculously funny, the pair, not knowing each others identity, marry. Parting in a huff to meet again at Charles Butterworth's engagement party, the pair stage a knock-'em-down-drag-'em-out brawl before learning what kind of persons they are. Always a laugh-fest, Miss Sullavan and Fonda hit a 16-cylinder pace continually. When a change of pace is necessary, Butterworth, Beulah Bondi, Walter Brannan, Margaret Hamilton, Dorothy Stickney and Lucien Littlefield come through splendidly.

The smart direction by William A. Seiter starts the picture at a furious pace and keeps the tempo keyed up always.

Production Code Seal No. 2,001. Running time, 76 minutes. "G."

"Absolute Quiet"

(M-G-M)

Hollywood, April 2.—It seems that the producers, not being able to decide whether to make this a murder melodrama or a comedy, tried to make it both, and succeeded in making it neither. The audience, however, got quite a number of laughs.

Lionel Atwill is the menace in the tale, taking delight in the messing up of lives. Ordered to his dude ranch by his doctor, he indulges in self-possessed and polished villainy on a motley group brought together there by accident. The comedy notes are supplied by Raymond Walburn as a stupid, pompous governor, Stuart Erwin as a cynical reporter and Bernadine Hayes as a breezy gun moll fleeing the police in company with gunman Wallace Ford. To this is added some good work by Irene Hervey, who repulses the advances of Atwill.

Ann Loring plays the part of a struggling actress with nice poise and Louis Hayward is good as a screen star disfigured in a plane crash. An excellent comedy bit is contributed by J. Carrol Naish as a Mexican. Helpful supporting characterizations are offered by Robert Gleckler, Harvey Stephens, Matt Moore and Robert Livingston. George B. Seitz keeps the action well keyed up, placing heavy accent on comedy values. The script is from the pen of Harry Clork, adapted from a story by George F. Worts. John Considine, Jr., produced. The best exploitation angle is the confusion resulting from the meeting of an ill-assorted group on a lonely ranch.

Ampa Business and Pleasure Scrambled

Business and pleasure and parliamentary law were mixed at the Ampa meeting yesterday, or, to put it in the order of occurrence, it was pleasure and business and parliamentary law.

Roger Pryor, now appearing at Loew's State, and William Edmunds, playing in "Moon Over Mulberry Street," furnished the pleasure. They're both good. Edmunds was remarkable, in fact. He rendered an imaginary telephone conversation by an Italian that stopped even the waiters. Then he followed this with a part of a scene from the play.

He wasn't the son of a "distinguished father" like Pryor, he confided. His folks hadn't wanted him to go on the stage. They thought he would make a good porter in a neighborhood saloon, but he had ambitions and became an usher in the old Bijou when David Warfield was appearing in "The Music Master." I was an imitation of Warfield tha started him as an actor.

The business was a report by the nominating committee which presented the following slate: For president Gordon White; for vice-president Charles Leonard; for secretary, Ralph Lund; treasurer, Herbert Berg; directors, the above officers and Monroe Greenthal, S. Barret McCormick Paul Benjamin, Marvin Kirsch, Tom Waller, Milton Silver and George Gerhard; trustee, William Ferguson.

Somebody raised a point of order pointing out that the committee was supposed to nominate only five fo directors under the constitution. An effort was made to amend the constitution right there, but Ray Gallagher, Kirsch and some of the others made motions and points of order so fast that a copy of the constitution was called for. The upshot of the discussion was that White agreed to call a special meeting of the boar next Monday to get the constitutional amendment started a la mode, so tha it can be acted upon at the next meeting of the full membership.

Film Marathon Hits House in Portland

PORTLAND, April 2.—The State Theatre management is familiar with dual and triple bills, but regards them as mere dash of entertainment, so it recently went in for a septuplet bill. No objections were offered when some of the patrons preferred to call it a film marathon.

The lobby cards read:

If You Can Take It—Come and Get It

One performance of each of the following:

3 P.M.
"The Clairvoyant"
4:10 P.M.
"Silk Hat Kid"
5:18 P.M.
"Air Hawks"
6:27 P.M.
"Pursuit"
7:29 P.M.
"Dante's Inferno"
8:49 P.M.
"She"
10:25 P.M.
"Welcome Home"

The last title proved to be a joke, because some of the younger patrons who had sat through the entire show heard something when they finally reached home.

their men despite obstacles and incidentally getting the girl for the expected conclusion.

Paul Kelly and Robert Kent are the Mounties, Rochelle Hudson supplies the romantic aspect and Alan Hale as her father is the not too unscrupulous fur smuggler. Kent arrives at the post and is put under the wing of Kelly, who dislikes the job and the man, until on assignment after a fur runner Kent proves he is all right. Miss Hudson seeks to assist her father to escape when he is arrested and Kent pursues her while Kelly goes after her father. When Kent is returning with the girl a landslide injures him and they are rescued through the intelligent help of her dog, which brings Kelly to them. Miss Hudson's early antipathy for Kent changes to love as the film ends.

Sol Wurtzel produced and Eugene Forde directed from a James Oliver Curwood story. The screen play was the work of Lamar Trotti and Adele Comandini.

"Pride of the Marines"

(Columbia)

An entertaining and human story of a tough Marine's affection for an orphan boy, set against a background of the U. S. Marine base at San Diego, this picture, although not in any sense a big picture, still should be found generally enjoyable, especially by youngsters.

Charles Bickford plays the lead, with Florence Rice opposite and Ward Bond and Robert Allen chief among the supporting players. Bickford, returning from leave with his buddies, and supposed to be a hard soldier as well as the boxing champion of the corps, befriends a small boy, an orphan, en route to an uncle in the west. When the uncle is found to have disappeared, Bickford takes the boy to his quarters and he becomes the company mascot.

Miss Rice, with whom Bickford falls in love, tries to make him see that the barracks are not a fit place for a small boy, but Bickford cannot agree. It is only after Miss Rice tells him that she is marrying another man, the boy steals a watch, and Bickford, planning to leave the service, cannot resist a detail on a dangerous mission, that he realizes the boy's best interest lies in adoption by Miss Rice.

Production Code Seal No. 1,964. Running time, 63 minutes. "G."

"The Mystic Mountain"

(Lenauer International)

A simple, effective story of a simple mountain people, this foreign picture has as its chief attraction for those not familiar with the language, the beautiful mountain scenery of the Swiss Alps, the film having been photographed in the Bernese Oberland region. There is no difficulty understanding the trend of the story, since there is but little dialogue and most of it is translated by superimposed subtitles.

Produced with much of the background and atmosphere which made "The Blue Light" a notable picture, this lacks something of the pictorial strength and dramatic intensity of that film, but is still a worthwhile and interesting importation, chiefly, however, for class audiences.

When an Alpine farmer's dog is accidentally killed by a farmer from a rival village across the mountain, the first, in revenge, kidnaps the fiancee of the other, taking her to his home. Her presence is regarded angrily by the villagers, especially by his mother and his own fiancee. The kidnapped girl's brother is killed while searching for her and her lover plans vengeance.

Meanwhile the girl befriends the village idiot, seeking his aid in her escape. With all the townsfolk away at a Sunday festival, the idiot starts a fire. Returning to the house, he finds the girl in her jailer's arms. Insanely believing she has discarded him, he locks the two in the room together as the fire slowly devours the entire village.

Pathe Merger Will Dissolve 1st Division

distribution deal for March of Time was concluded with First Division. The Time interests still hold that stock and will receive in exchange for it stock in the new Pathe picture company. Time may also participate in the financing of the new company.

The move to conduct Pathe's laboratory and picture activities separately is in line with a decision reached by the company a year ago, shortly after the election of Frank F. Kolbe, broker, to the Pathe presidency. At that time it was stated that the divergent interests of the company required separation and that a new company, to be manned by executives experienced in film activities, would be organized. The executive setup of the new company is now being prepared and will include several well-known film names.

It was stated that the delay in making the move which was indicated a year ago was occasioned by an interest displayed by British International Pictures in acquiring from Pathe its control of First Division, the latter company to be used as an American distribution outlet for B.I.P. product, similar to the G.B. American operations. Negotiations for the sale of the First Division control continued between Pathe and B.I.P. intermittently for months and only recently were abandoned, thus freeing Pathe to pursue its original plan of corporate operation.

First Division has distributed a selected list of B.I.P. product during the past year. Alliance Films, the British company's American subsidiary, was organized recently with Budd Rogers at its head, to give the company additional sales representation here. It was stated at Pathe yesterday that a distribution deal with B.I.P. for next season had not been discussed yet.

Pathe Film Corp. reported a profit of $213,359, for the period from Aug. 15 to Dec. 28, 1935, including $210,000 in dividends on its 35,000 shares of Du Pont Film Mfg. Corp. Laboratory operations showed a profit of $66,362, and an increase of 6,300,000 feet of processed film was reported by the laboratory for last year as compared with 1934.

Gigli Film Retitled

Alexander Korda's picture starring Benjamin Gigli, previously called "Lullaby," has been retitled "Forget Me Not," according to word received here by United Artists.

Chairman

J. CHEEVER COWDIN went from St. Paul's School directly to Wall St., joining Bond & Goodwin & Co., and rapidly advancing to a partnership in 1917. With George Armsby he formed California Packing Corp. He resigned from Bond & Goodwin to serve with the air force in the war. Two years of promoting and consolidating preceded the joining of William Salomon & Co. and Blair & Co. into Blair & Co., Inc., of which he became vice-president.

The company later became Bancamerica-Blair, Inc., with Cowdin as vice-president. In 1934 he resigned to form, with Lawrence F. Fox, Jr., Standard Capital Co., with himself as president. With the purchase by Standard and others of control of Universal, Cowdin becomes chairman of the board.

President

ROBERT H. COCHRANE was born in Wheeling, W. Va., Dec. 27, 1879, graduated from Toledo, O., High School and became city editor of the Toledo Bee in an amazingly short space of time. In 1904 he joined his brothers, P. D. and Witt K., in their Chicago advertising agency. One of the accounts was the Continental Clothing Co., of Oshkosh, Wis., of which one Carl Laemmle was general and advertising manager.

When Laemmle established a film enterprise in Chicago, he asked Cochrane to join him, which was in 1906. Through successive changes of company name, Yankee, IMP and then Universal, Cochrane was Laemmle's vice-president and right hand man. Now, with Laemmle's retirement, Cochrane becomes Universal's president.

executive assistant to Rogers, Fred S. Meyer as executive assistant to Koenig, William Fender in a newly created post as superintendent of studio operations. Continuing in their old posts are Dan Kelley, casting director; Henry Clark, comptroller; Martin Murphy, production manager; Edward Brymer, wardrobe designer. The last named gets more authority than heretofore.

The first pictures for production under the new setup are: "My Man Godfrey," starring William Powell and Carole Lombard, and "It's a Small World," co-starring Joan Bennett and Joel McCrea.

Scheduled for work before May 15 are: "Everybody Sings," musical comedy; "Reno in the Fall" and "Roxana," Clarence Budington Kelland story.

A detailed inventory of studio properties and equipment has been completed and augmenting and overhauling has started. A new administration building for writers, readers, the casting office and producers will be built within six months, Rogers said.

'U' Change Finished Set 36 Features

Los Angeles banker, and J. Arthur Rank and Leslie W. Farrow, London financiers, representing the British participants.

All of the stock of Universal Corp. has been placed in a voting trust. Voting trustees elected for a 10-year term are George N. Armsby of Standard Capital; Cowdin, Rogers, Brown, Dulin, Rank and Dr. A. H. Giannini of Bank of America, National Ass'n., Los Angeles.

Formal transfer of control preceded the elections. Laemmle was given a certified check of $4,000,000 completing the cash payment of the $5,500,000 option. $1,500,000 was deposited to his credit on March 14 as formal notice that the option would be exercised. Laemmle left for the coast on the Century late yesterday afternoon. He retires after 30 years in the industry, 24 of which were spent with Universal, which he founded.

It was disclosed that a substantial investment in Universal had been made in addition to the option financing, which is to be used for working capital requirements and is understood to obviate the necessity of a recapitalization or the making of immediate outside loans for short terms, as had been contemplated by the new owners earlier. An increased production schedule and the signing of new stars and feature players are involved in the plans for the company's immediate future, it was said.

Jolson Arrives Disguised As Shaw; Traffic Tangles

By J. M. JERAULD

About 20 photographers gasped, and then they howled, as George Bernard Shaw emerged from the car on the Twentieth Century where they were lined up to meet Al Jolson yesterday morning. Half the passengers on the train forgot they were going places and wondered how they had missed the Irish dramatist at the La Salle St. Station before the train left.

To add to the complications a Scotch bagpipe band from Yonkers "sgir-rr-r-ll-ud," if that's what they do with bagpipes. S. Charles Einfeld said they were playing songs from "The Singing Kid," but only a Highlander like Charlie would know.

The girls who were supposed to dance "a la Bacchante" failed to arrive. They looked out of their windows around Vitaphone studio in Brooklyn about daybreak and decided unanimously that if there was any "Bacchante" in their lives yesterday it would be indoors.

With drums throbbing and bagpipes wailing, "Shaw" and the rest of the welcomers, followed by a hundred or more passengers and almost as many red caps, the party emerged into the main waiting room. Massed commuters from points north of the Bronx crashed through the rope barriers.

An excited woman tried to tweak "Shaw's" magnificent whiskers and her glove clasp caught a handful of white hair. Another reached for a souvenir and "Shaw" made a quick grab with both hands to get the spinach and eyebrows off. Admiring feminine suburbanites scrambled for souvenirs.

Jolson came into view.

Out on the 42nd St. sidewalk a couple of ushers from the Strand had a long banner that caught the eye of the mounted police and the populace. A cop trying to give a taxi driver a summons lost his book. A woman wanted it for an autograph.

Sid Rechetnik tried to untangle a line of Cord cars from the traffic jam. The Scotsmen gazed ruefully at their flaming plaid tartans and the mud spots on their white spats. The mob pressed against their bagpipes, but there wasn't a single blowout. A mounted cop wanted to see the parade permit. It wasn't there.

The band played "Oh, Where Is My Bonnie Permit Today." The crowd grew more dense. A thousand or more automobile horns tried to drown out the "moosic," but couldn't.

Einfeld gave a signal and the Cord cars dashed up 42nd St. to 5th Ave. and to the Sherry-Netherland.

Stay Refused ITOA in City Sale Tax Case

Appellate Bench Refuses To Act; Appeal Asked

The Appellate Division of the N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday denied the I.T.O.A. application for an injunction to restrain the city from assessing film rentals for the two per cent city sales tax and distributors from collecting it.

Melvin Albert of Weisman, Quinn, Allen & Spett, attorneys for the I.T.O.A., said that steps to bring the injunction action before the Court of Appeals would be taken immediately.

The Appellate Division's action was in the form of a refusal to reverse Justice Callahan's earlier decision denying an injunction on the grounds that the sales tax law offered a remedy in directing that efforts by the city comptroller to collect the tax may be appealed direct to the Appellate Division where it must be shown that the commodity is or is not subject to the tax. This is the procedure being followed by the United Artists exchange in what all local distributors regard as a test of the city's right to apply the sales tax to film rentals. United Artists is now having printed

Delayed Paramount Meeting Not Dated

The postponed March meeting of the Paramount board will not be held within the next week as planned by the company earlier, it was stated at Paramount yesterday. The next meeting of the board is April 23.

The postponement of the monthly meeting scheduled for March 26, because of the lack of a quorum, was followed by the announcement that the board would meet within two weeks following that date, despite the absence in Hollywood of John E. Otterson, president, and Adolph Zukor, chairman. No business of sufficient urgency to require a meeting in the absence of the president and chairman is on tap, however, and resulted in the decision to dispense with a

"The Girl from Mandalay"

(Republic)

Hollywood, April 3.—Here is action played against a tropical jungle background which adequately fills the bill as top-rung program fare and should please in all spots. The story moves swiftly, telling of a three-cornered romance among the jungle plantations and reaches its action peak with a tiger hunt.

Conrad Nagel, a plantation foreman, is given the air by his fiancee, Esther Ralston, and subsequently goes haywire. He drowns his sorrow in an affair with Kay Linaker, a cabaret entertainer, whom he subsequently marries. A dangerous enmity arises with Donald Cook, foreman of a neighboring plantation when Nagel finds out Miss Linaker was formerly familiar with Cook. Nagel becomes distrustful of his wife during their sojourn in the jungle back country.

The film packs a climactic wallop when a forest fire drives tigers down into the inhabited district. More hatred and bitterness are engendered between Nagel and Cook when circumstances throw Miss Linaker and Cook together. In the finale, Nagel finally saves Cook's life, the tigers are killed off and his heroic act brings about a reunion with Miss Linaker.

Performances of Nagel, Cook, Miss Linaker, Miss Ralston and the balance of cast are of high order. Howard Bretherton's direction keeps the film moving at a smooth, fast pace. Wellyn Totman and Endre Bohem did a good job on the screen play from Reginald Campbell's original novel. Photography by Ernest Miller and Jack Marta aids the picture's appeal.

Previewed without production code seal. Running time, 67 minutes. "G."

Hollywood, April 3.—Will H. "Singing Kid" Opens Amid Big Fanfare

With much tumult and shouting, "The Singing Kid" made its debut last night at the Strand. All the familiar ceremonials of the typical premiere were observed, with glaring lights, gaping crowds, pushing policemen and busy microphones very much in evidence.

The picture went on at 8.12. Following its completion Eddie Cantor modestly introduced Al Jolson as "the world's greatest entertainer."

Among those present at the festivities were Major Albert Warner, Gradwell Sears, Joseph Bernhard, Harry Charnas, Robert Goelet and a whole galaxy of stars.

the sale of film rights to stage plays, in contrast to the proposed 60-40 split, in the playwrights' favor, with which the Dramatists' Guild plans to amend the contract it adopted as of March 1.

Despite their display of a united and defiant front at yesterday's meeting, however, the managers left the door open to further negotiations on a new compromise contract with the guild. Negotiations will be instituted, it was decided, if satisfactory arrangements for their conduct can be made.

Pemberton advised the meeting that he had personally canvassed every film producer and had failed to find one who would back a play produced under the guild's new contract. He said that support was offered to any producer ignoring the guild's contract and employing the old terms.

A suggestion by Frank Gillmore, Equity president, that actors, too, should share in the film rights to plays because they are "the expert salesmen who contribute in the public's mind to a play's success," was discussed with amusement by the managers. It was suggested that stagehands, electricians, the public and newspaper reviewers also be counted in on the same reasoning.

'Dream' 2-a-Day in 13 RKO Theatres Here a New Slant

Thirteen "A" houses of the RKO metropolitan circuit will play "A Midsummer Night's Dream" on a roadshow basis with the official price scale tilted to $1.65 top late this month and early next.

This is a departure in that circuit's operations and is predicated on test engagements in other of its houses scattered throughout the Middle West and the West where a circuit executive on Saturday declared the plan had worked out very well.

The local runs, all of them on a two-a-day basis, will range between two and four days, varying with the individual theatres. Warners are cooperating on the sale of tickets along the lines pursued when the picture played the Hollywood here in New York. An attendance volume is practically assured on the basis of tickets already sold.

The theatres which temporarily will abandon their traditional grind policy for the "Dream" are these: the 81st St., the 58th St., the 86th St., the Coliseum, Fordham, Franklin, Park Plaza, Kenmore, Tilyou, Dyker, the New Rochelle, Alden, Jamaica, and Strand, Far Rockaway.

Warners have set 69 special limited roadshow engagements on the picture elsewhere throughout the country for this week.

We keep our theatre in perfect repair, good heat when it's cold, nice cool air when it's hot, and always a good show. Our employes and ourselves are always at your service. The Management."

New Era Seen In Control of Trade Abuses

Lawyers Study Supreme Court Sugar Ruling

More extensive rights for trade associations in establishing rules and regulations to mitigate trade evils than have been acknowledged heretofore are believed by industry attorneys to be indicated in the recent U. S. Supreme Court opinion in the Sugar Institute case.

Chief Justice Charles E. Hughes delivered the opinion, which embodies specific references to the nature of concerted action which may be taken by trade associations to improve conditions by eliminating "illicit practices." Industry attorneys are just completing their preliminary study of the opinion and at this point see in it the possibility of a direct application to the establishment of rules and regulations of trade practices by exhibitors, on the one hand, and distributors on the other.

Parts of the opinion could have been written to order as a guide book for

Will Hear 20th-Fox Appeal This Month

The appeal by Twentieth Century-Fox from the recent N. Y. Supreme Court decision in favor of Springer & Cocalis in the action brought by the film company against the circuit on overages, will be heard by the Appellate Division about the end of the month, according to Louis Nizer, attorney for Twentieth Century-Fox.

Fox sued the local circuit on a 1934-35 contract for 58 films at a flat rental of $2,750 per picture for 30 houses, asking $18,000 allegedly due on an overage clause on six films in the contract. Springer & Cocalis was sustained in its contention that it had a right to cumulative accounting, claiming a profit on two of the six films was more than offset by a loss sustained on the remaining four.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

THIS has been given some thought, a sort of memory test process by way of marshalling the facts and incidents of other days. This department, constantly striving to be faithful to the truth, wanted to make certain of its ground before turning the linotypes loose again. The self-imposed task, somehow or other, failed to consume much in point of time. The conclusion, reached almost instantaneously and pleasantly, was that one of the most satisfying happenings of all the years this scribe has been around was the decision to elect Robert H. Cochrane to the presidency of Universal, succeeding Carl Laemmle. . . .

The new owners, for this purpose centered in J. Cheever Cowdin, have pleased a larger number of important men in this industry than they perhaps realize. They have gone further and perhaps this, as well, is something not fully appreciated. By every rule of the game, Cochrane rated the highest spot in the company, although the game, in the past, has not always been entirely faithful to its rules. He got the post, thereby demonstrating that all regard for justice and the propriety of things has not disappeared from the scene. Felicitations, therefore, should go to Cowdin and his financial associates on that score. . . .

Yet, there cannot be discounted an immeasurable degree of practical value in their selection. The controlling group, at its outset, is demonstrating a familiarity with the history of the business and a realization, too well fortified by the facts, that picture companies are best operated when they are managed by film men. The day, we take it, has come and gone long since when it should be at all necessary to dissertate on the sensitivity of the business, its ramifications, the speed which is in it and the requirement for quick and expert decision which that speed demands. Film men know it. They have told bankers so, but not all bankers have always bent their ears. It is for this reason that those of the industry are gratified, and mightily gratified, over this appointment. It is for this reason also that, if it becomes necessary to go in for congratulations this department's idea is that they should go to Cowdin, et al, for their luck in having Cochrane accept. . . .

This man is one of the stalwarts of the industry. From that first day of October, 1906, when he joined hands with Laemmle, he has remained in the background by preference. Any gauge of the extent of the counsel which he has given Laemmle over the span of the last thirty years would be a far more difficult job than this space would willingly undertake. Laemmle has not always listened and, of course, Cochrane has not always been correct. But very definitely and those who know, know this, Cochrane's advice consistently has been sound, mature, forthright, honest, sincere. . . .

He is no dreamer, never has been so far as a long contact with him has developed. He has an understanding as clear as any and clearer than many of what this business is all about; what its obligations are to itself; what its intra-trade deportment ought to be and is not; what its influence is on the outside. He has a long view, etched out boldly through years of a close-up view, of where this business might go and ideas, definite ideas, of how it can get there. . . .

He has for long been an advocate of seasoned judgment, although his opinions, on frequent occasions like the lone voice in the wilderness, have been swamped by other opinion in other high places. He has sat in on innumerable meetings of the Hays association where, Allied or no Allied willing, much of industry policy has been whittled out of long harangues, limitless discussion, endless argument. He has been one, and this is not to say by any manner of means the only one, who has steadfastly championed just and considerate decisions, rooted in a recognition of the rights of all the component branches of the industry. He plays tennis, but that's all he knows about throwing curves. . . .

The other day he wrote a message to the retired Laemmle. He called it "Auf Wiedersehen, Mister Laemmle" and caused it to be published in Universal Weekly. Its text is an effectionate pat on the back for the now inactive veteran. Yet it is more than that. It is a typical Cochrane sort of thing and shows up characteristics of his mental makeup in sharper degree than he must have realized when he sat down to pound it out on the personal typewriter which handles all of his correspondence. . . .

That text is warm, personal and, above all, it is Cochrane. That's why you are to get it now:

"In all the thirty years that Carl Laemmle and I have been partners, I have never called him 'Carl'.

"I have always addressed him as 'Mr. Laemmle'.

"He has always called me 'R. H'.

"We have been as close to each other as two business partners can possibly be; yet there has been a mutual shyness. I could no more call him 'Carl' than I could fly. He could no more call me 'Bob' than he could fly.

"Others, who do not know him one-hundredth part as well as I do, call him by his first name, and he likes it. But I think it would shock him stiff if I ever said 'Good morning, Carl!' and I'd probably faint if he had ever said 'Hello, Bob.'

"In spite of this queer relationship—or maybe because of it—we have worked together, in good times and bad, in almost perfect harmony."

Typifying his straight-from-the-shoulder manner, he continues:

"In thirty years we have not had more than five good-sized quarrels lasting from two or three days to two or three weeks. These scraps always came when we were under a terrific financial strain due to the fact that we could almost hear the sheriff rapping on the door.

"One scrap every six years is not so bad. It is not a complete Damon and Pythias record, but it is good enough.

"And now 'Mister Laemmle' is cashing in and will take a rest. I'll miss my scrap with him every sixth year, but I shall miss much more the close understanding and relationship which we both enjoyed between-times.

"I like 'Mister Laemmle'. I shall always continue to like him. I'll miss him. So will the motion picture business.

"But I'll bet the last dollar I've got on the belief that not a single soul who knows him will begrudge him his chance to rest—and rest on his laurels which have been so honorably and so courageously won.

"So, Mister Laemmle, I hope you will fare well for the rest of your years—and I hope those years will be many and that every one of them will be rich in happiness, rest and contentment."

FWC Managers Shifted

LOS ANGELES, April 5. — Recent shifts among F.W.C. managers send L. G. Tavolara to the Strand, Vallejo, where he replaces W. B. Price, who goes to the Hanlon, Vallejo, as assistant; Jack Ryan gets the Hanlon post, replacing Edward J. Sullivan, who goes to the Orpheum, Oakland, replacing, in turn, Bryant Wiest, who has been transferred to the California, Berkeley. Wiest replaced Walter Chenowith, now at the J. C. Theatre, Berkeley, formerly managed by Tavolara.

No New Ontario Taxes

TORONTO, April 5. — Exhibitors of Ontario did a bit of shivering when the budget was brought down in the Provincial Legislature because of the fear that new measures would include additional taxation for amusements. Nothing happened, however, except the divulging of the information that the amusements tax, which was substantially increased last May, had brought the Ontario Government a revenue for the year of $2,120,000, as compared with estimated receipts one year ago of $850,000.

WITH ALL THE MAGIC OF CAPRA'S GENIUS

Mexico City's Grosses Gain; New Spot Open

By JAMES LOCKHART

Mexico City, March 30.—Further evidence of improvement in theatre business is offered by the inauguration of the swanky Cine Roxy, a neighborhood house seating 2,500, with the latest equipment for presentations.

This house raises to 66 the total of film houses operating in the Federal District, and three more class neighborhood houses are scheduled to get going before the end of spring.

Government supervision of houses is becoming more strict and frequent inspections are made to see that all health and safety regulations are observed.

Exhibitors are now seeking relief from tax burdens similar to that enjoyed by legitimate theatres. The peridal tax was suspended some time ago for these houses on the theory that they should have encouragement because of their cultural value to the nation. Film exhibitors contend pictures also contribute to the national culture.

Exhibitors report that the pre-Easter trade is 20 to 30 per cent better than during the 1935 season, and for the first time in a long time box-office lines form frequently.

Houses in the vicinity of Torreon, north central mining and cotton center, have been hit by an edict closing all places of assembly because of a meningitis outbreak.

In the first attempt to rob a box-office here two persons were killed, a theatre attache and a patron caught in a cross-fire of shots as a young policeman went into action. He captured two of the bandits.

New Era Seen In Control of Trade Abuses

the impending conferences between large distributors and the M. P. T. O. A. on trade practice adjustments, it was said. The opinion, for example, states that while the restrictions of the Sherman Act are "designed to frustrate unreasonable restraints, they do not prevent the adoption of reasonable means to protect interstate commerce from destructive or injurious practices and to promote competition upon a sound basis. Voluntary action to end abuses and to foster fair competitive opportunities in the public interest may be more effective than legal processes," the opinion declares. "And cooperative endeavor," it continues, "may appropriately have wider objectives than merely the removal of evils which are infractions of positive law."

Such cooperative efforts to correct trade abuses, in the Supreme Court's mind, "should not be stamped for that reason alone as an unreasonable restraint of trade."

The opinion specifically finds the exchange of information within trade associations to be permissible and, maybe, "a useful adjunct of fair commerce" and also holds price regulation to be legal when free of restraints on variations. The application of these positive findings of the court to the film industry, for practical purposes, appear to be limited to an exchange of credit information among members of the industry. Price regulation has never been sought by distributors in film sales, or regarded as desirable. Regulation of admissions, however, has been sought to maintain minimum levels. The opinion appears to indicate that this might be attempted only through concerted exhibitor effort, undertaken without restraint for infractions.

As to the wide field of trade practice adjustments to be explored by the M. P. T. O. A. in conferences with distributors this month, the opinion appears not only to regard such voluntary, joint negotiations as being free of the suspicion of conspiracy, but to encourage them. The way appears to be opened to the solution of the industry problems by conciliation, rather than arbitration, through concerted yet legal action. Many trade abuses are regarded as lending themselves to regulation or elimination by these means. How effective the means will be without provisions for enforcement remains a question in some industry minds.

Expect RCA's New Financing To Go Through

Approval Looked for at Meeting Today

Ratification of the RCA recapitalization plan at the special meeting of stockholders scheduled for today is looked for with the deposit of more than a majority of all stock of the company by yesterday.

The plan, which was completed in January by Joseph P. Kennedy, has been approved already by the RCA board. That body must declare in advance of today's meeting whether a sufficient amount of the "B" stock has been deposited to declare the plan operative. It provides for the borrowing of $10,000,000 from seven banks at 2½ per cent annual interest for five years, or less, to maintain working capital; the retiring of all outstanding "A" stock at the call price of $55 per share, requiring $27,257,835 and accrued dividends, and the

Para. Fee Appeals Meet a Court Delay

Hearings on five appeals from orders reducing or disallowing applications for fees in the Paramount Publix reorganization which were scheduled for yesterday were not reached on the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals calendar yesterday. Indications are that the appeals will not be heard until tomorrow.

The appellants are Root, Clark, Buckner & Ballantine, counsel to the Paramount trustees; Cook, Nathan & Lehman, counsel to the stockholders' committee; Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and its counsel, Cravath, de Gersdorff, Swaine & Wood, and an accounting firm retained by the stockholders' committee.

Theatres Suffer in Southeastern Storm

Studio Production Rush Now Underway

Hollywood, April 6.—A studio production boom reminiscent of a midsummer rush was under way here last week. Camera work skyrocketed to a new high for many weeks.

A total of 45 features and three shorts was on location and sound stages, a surprising increase over the previous seven day survey which showed 33 features and two shorts in work.

Twenty-two films were being prepared for cameras within the next two weeks, presaging a continuance of the rush.

"Charge of the Light Brigade" went into production at Warners, augmenting the list of potential special features in work.

Paramount went to the head of the

Columbia's Foreign Producing Not Set

Columbia has reached no definite decision relative to production in England with indications that policy in this direction will be determined by Joseph H. Seidelman, foreign general sales manager, and Joe Friedman, company representative in London. The possibility was discussed when the two were in Hollywood recently.

Friedman will return to England in about 10 days and Seidelman will follow in a month or more.

Talks on Trade Practices To Be Arranged This Week

Memphis, April 6.—Final arrangements for the exhibitor-distributor conferences on trade practice adjustments will be completed by Ed Kuykendall, M.P.T.O.A. president, this week, with a likelihood that the sessions will be opened in New York some time next week, it was stated here today.

Kuykendall, who came here over the week-end for the Tri-States M.P.T.O. meeting, is awaiting complete replies from members of the M.P.T.O.A. executive committee on their availability for the sessions before naming the master committee which will participate in the conferences. An agreement on a meeting date will follow Kuykendall's return

TimeExtended For Some In Federal Suit

Those Not Served Before Get Until April 16

All defendants not previously served in the new Government action against Warners, Paramount, RKO and individual defendants were given until April 16 in which to file answers or make motions, under an order signed yesterday by Federal Judge Robert P. Patterson in U. S. District Court here. Defendants served earler had had their time for filing answers extended to that date by Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe several weeks ago.

Defendants' attorneys conferred yesterday on developments in the case and on future procedure. A decision is expected to be made soon on whether to file answers or make new motions on or before April 16. Attorneys declined comment on the nature of the motions which might be made if it was decided to follow the latter course.

If answers are filed on schedule, they will be followed promptly, it is believed, by motions to have a trial date set. These motions are expected to reveal what effect, if any, the defendants' recent appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court from denials of their motions to dismiss the Government's equity proceedings will have on the

Expect Labor Talks To Start Next Week

Indications are that meetings for the negotiation of a basic wage scale for studio labor for the year ending March, 1937, will not get under way before next week. Pat Casey, studio labor representative, is contacting union leaders who will participate in the negotiations in an effort to arrange a meeting date. George Browne, I. A. T. S. E. head, who arrived here Saturday, conferred briefly with Casey and left for I. A. headquarters in Washington, where he will be on call for the meetings.

Talks on Trade Practices To Be Arranged This Week

to his home at Columbus, Miss., from where he will get in touch with distributors during the next few days. He plans to be in Washington next Monday for the resumed hearings before the House Patents Committee on the Duffy Copyright Bill, by which time arrangements for the trade practice discussions will have been completed, it is expected. He plans to go direct to New York from Washington for the opening of the conferences.

Present indications are that the discussions will be general in nature, touching on a possible basis for agreement between exhibitors and distributors on the 10-point program outlined by Kuykendall at the recent Washington hearings on the Pettengill Bill. These may require no more than a day or two, following which an adjournment will probably be taken to study the suggestions made and submit them to legal scrutiny. The sessions are expected to be reconvened thereafter for the formal drafting of whatever agreements are made.

The M.P.T.O.A. conference program includes proposals for an unconditional rejection of 20 per cent of the number of pictures licensed; removal of conditions and restrictions in the 10 per cent rejection clause now in use; the establishment of local grievance committees; the negotiation of uniform clearance and zoning schedules; solutions of the overbuying evil and unfair, cut-rate competitive practices, including the use of premiums and multi-feature programs; adoption of a standard form of exhibition contract; elimination of the score charge, designated play dates and the forcing of shorts with features.

Precedent Is At Stake in M-G-M Appeal

cally subject to damages aggregating approximately $2,000,000, since the film played in some 8,000 houses.

The precedent involved centers about the original source material, from which both the play by the plaintiffs in the action and a novel by Mrs. Belloc Lowndes was taken. M-G-M purchased the Lowndes novel, and from it made the picture. Both were based on the sensational poisoning trial in Scotland in 1857 of Madeleine Smith, who was acquitted of murder. Intimate details of the trial were published in a series of "Notable British Trials" in 1927, admittedly the basis of the Sheldon-Barnes play.

M-G-M, in its appeal petition, contended that the original material was in the public domain and consequently available to anyone. It also claimed that there were differences in plots, characters and "emotional results" as between the play, novel and picture, and that these differences were such as to relieve it of the charge of plagiarism.

M-G-M also pointed out that hundreds of films have been based on similar sources which were the "public domain of literary or dramatic material," among them "Abraham Lincoln," "Oliver Twist" and "The Scarlet Letter."

It is indicated that if the Supreme Court refuses to hear the M-G-M appeal, the way may be open for other legal actions of the same nature, involving pictures which are based on material in the public domain, when that same material may have been used, prior to the release of a picture, as the basis of a play or other work.

Have to April 24 to Answer

WASHINGTON, April 6.—It may be several weeks before the Supreme Court decides whether it will hear the M-G-M appeal in the "Letty Lynton" case. Attorneys for Edward Sheldon and Margaret Ayer Barnes have until April 24 to file a brief protesting the appeal, and the high court will not make known its decision until some time after the brief is filed.

Hoffman Promises 30

MIAMI, April 6.—M. H. Hoffman, Jr., head of Pan American Studios, says his company intends to spend $4,500,000 in making 30 features this year. A sound stage now under construction will be rushed to completion, he said, and five others will be built later.

BOSTON, April 6.—George S. Ryan today filed suit against E. M. Loew for $60,000 in Middlesex Superior Court. He claims the money is owed him as attorney's fees. He withdrew some time ago from Loew's $5,000.000 ant-trust suit against Paramount.

Short Subjects

"Voice of Experience No. 10"

(Columbia)

Murder is the issue about which the plot of this number turns. The story is disconnected and hazy as it reveals the motive for the slaying and the eventual emotional consequences. The murderer, appealing to the Voice, is advised to go to the District Attorney with a lawyer and explain the case. When he does so, the case brought against him and for which he must face trial is that he had killed a dead man. The acting in the film is unconvincing, the logic sketchy. The possibilities are in selling to the rabid radio fans. Production Code Seal, No. 0380. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

"Screen Snapshots No. 8"

(Columbia)

This issue, following the procedure of the others, gives glimpses of the stars in their off-the-set moments. Lila Lee's and Patsy Ruth Miller's dress shop and the customers, Ruth Chatterton landing her airplane, George Breakston and Jackie Cooper shooting on a rifle range, Binnie Barnes and Mona Barrie falling all over themselves while roller skating and the gathering of practically all the thespians at the tennis matches. The audience should like this one. It is excellent for the addicts. Production Code Seal, No. 1,969. Running time, 10½ mins. "G."

"Caught in The Act"

(Columbia)

Spring and the effect it has on Andy Clyde as he pursues his amours give this story impetus. However, he is mistaken for a kissing madman and his troubles with the law begin. The reliable chase is present and the usual Clyde antics prevail as he goes through routine thrill situations. Some good gags are played and delivered and it should please where the comedian is liked. Also in the farce are Anne O'Neal, John T. Murray and Bobby Gordon. Production Code Seal, No. 1,975. Running time, 18 mins. "G."

"Spark Plug"

(Columbia)

Exciting animation and color blended with a far-fetched version of horse racing featuring Barney Google's horse and the characters of the cartoon strip give amusement to this short. Spark Plug fails to get away from the post in the first race and he is ostracized by his mascot, jockey and the world in general. However, in the second race he comes through and wins against Man O' War. Production Code Seal, No. 1,895. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Thrills with Daredevils"

(Columbia)

This number in the News World of Sports has moments which will make the audience catch its breath as they witness a collection of shots that contains plenty of movement, action and excitement. Trick motorcycle riding, horsemanship, an airplane landing on one wheel, hopping onto a glider from a speedboat, wire walkers, and a flying trapeze act in addition to much more that will be found interesting. Production Code Seal, No. 0906. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"King of the Pecos"

(Republic)

John Wayne is a routine but active western. This should please the youngsters and the adults who still get a kick out of lively, horse-and-gun excitement on the screen. With Wayne are Muriel Evans and such western standbys as Yakima Canutt, Jack Clifford and Cy Kendall.

Wayne's father and mother are killed in the Pecos country by the land-grabber, Kendall, when Wayne is a boy. He vows to get even. As a young lawyer, years later, he goes into the Kendall bailiwick and finds the latter dominating the territory and robbing the ranchers of their cattle and land. Miss Evans is the daughter of a newly-arrived racher, also being victimized.

After a victory in court, won virtually by force of arms, Wayne organizes the cattlemen for a big drive as the price of steers goes up. Kendall and his men try to stop them from obtaining water at the only available waterhole en route. A lively battle, in which Wayne leads the ranchers, results in the rout of Kendall's men. Wayne pursues and disposes of the two men responsible for the death of his parents, and concludes the film in expected fashion with Miss Evans. Joseph Kane directed from a story by Bernard McConville.

Previewed without production code seal. Running time, 54 minutes. "G."

"The Mysterious Avenger"

(Columbia)

Rival cattle barons are suffering from a gradual depletion of their stock from the depredations of rustlers who ingeniously change the registered brands. Edward Le Saint and Lafe McKee, the ranchers, get together and try to solve the trouble. Charles Starrett, a Texas Ranger and son of McKee, is assigned to the case. After his father is murdered and as he is about to give a solution to the missing cattle, Starrett, motivated by a spirit of revenge, sets out and brings in the outlaws. It is good western drama played against an outdoor setting.

Wheeler Oakman, the heavy, grimaces and goes about his villainy in good style as usual. Joan Perry, as Le Saint's daughter, is an intelligent heroine and her performance is effective. Hal Price, as her brother, carries his part well. Charles Locher is the sheriff and delivers what humor is present. The rest of the cast, including a musical troupe, plays its small part well, generally helping to put the film over.

The picture is for dual bills and the outdoor adventure clientele.

Time Magazine Does an Overboard On Wells Pic

"Things To Come" barged into the pages of "Time" with a bang, and the results are still being heard around town.

The "Time" reviewer rolled up his sleeves, let his hair down, and delivered himself of a rave review on the Alexander Korda-H. G. Wells film.

What more can you ask than this terrific plug: " 'Things To Come' is therefore magnificent entertainment and a tribute to the sound showmanship that has made Producer Korda the kingpin in England's booming cinema industry."

That "Things To Come" is a special of such size and scope and importance that it will probably set the industry on its ear is indicated in the following excerpt: "As a spectacle 'Things To Come' compares favorably with its Hollywood rivals, from 'Intolerance' to 'The Crusades.' "

Of the author, H. G. Wells: "The climax of the picture is an even more explicit description . . . than that foresighted author has ever divulged to his reading public."

To sum up, "Time" issues a challenge to the industry: " . . . it is likely to make bigwigs in Hollywood scratch their heads about a future much more immediate than 2036!"

"Things To Come" will move into the Rivoli (New York) immediately after "These Three" ends its run at that theatre. Shortly after that it will be released throughout the country by United Artists.

"Things To Come" Shows Fashions of the Future

"Things To Come" presents:

The greatest fashion show ever staged in the history of motion pictures—a PRE-VIEW of TOMORROW'S CLOTHES!

In "Things To Come" the camera reveals:

Short skirts are coming back—for men and women!

The bathing suit of 1936 is the street dress of 2036! 750 pairs of shapely legs prove it.

No more boiled shirts for men! No more belts, no more buttons, no more hats, no more pockets. Wells predicts freedom for men!

Wrist telephones, wrist televisors, wrist radios—all combined in one decorative and delicate instrument no heavier than a watch!

Comfortable. low-heeled sandals for men and women. No socks or stockings, no gaiters, no runs!

All-year-round shorts for men and a light tunic instead of a polo coat.

A business suit of silver cloth for the white collar "slave" on a two-hour working day.

A permanent wave that lasts a lifetime!

A law making beauty compulsory and an educational system to teach the formula of health and beauty!

Comfort, style, uniqueness—a fashion parade of the future to inspire the envy of your audiences!

Lit Dige Praises!

Literary Digest, March 28, reviews "Things To Come," jumping on the band-wagon that has been deafening in its praise for the spectacular Alexander Korda-H. G. Wells film.

"This astonishing film," says the Digest, "is going to make the aging wish they could hold out to 2036."

In addition to its enthusiastic review the Digest also carries pictures showing a striking scene in the year 2055, from "Things To Come."

"Unequalled!" —News-Week

"News-Week" spread itself in its review of "Things To Come," the sensational Alexander Korda-H. G. Wells film.

"Alexander Korda's production," goes that magazine's rave, "is magnificent and unequalled. Its imaginative photography and excellent treatment give no quarter to anything previously done on similar lines."

Korda-Wells Film Debated in Legislatures of World

Cited by speakers in both the British House of Commons and the French Chamber of Deputies, the Alexander Korda production of H. G. Wells's "Things To Come" bids fair to become a point of reference in legislative bodies throughout the world.

Sir Philip Sassoon, Under Secretary of the Air Forces, devoted considerable time to the picture in introducing air estimates in the House of Commons recently.

"Doubtless," he said, "Members of Parliament have seen the very striking film, 'Things To Come'. Mr. Wells has with his vivid penetrative insight seized upon and illustrated two things which I believe to be profoundly true. Firstly, that there is a growing community of spirit among airmen of whatever nationality, which may ultimately exercise profound influence over world relations. Secondly, that Wings Over the World (Mr. Wells's name for his organization of airmen) in the sense I indicated may one day prove the greatest force for peace that mankind has yet seen."

The reference to the Wells film in the French Chamber of Deputies folowed a spirited debate on the political situation across the border.

Inasmuch as the film will be shown in Washington tomorrow to an audience of Supreme Court Justices, Ambassadors, Cabinet members and Congressmen. similar comment may follow in the legislative bodies of the United States.

Vashington newspapers have en giving the showing a tremen-ıs break in their columns. Indi-ions are that the preview will be najor event in the Washington ial calendar, and the guests dged to attend will represent the st distinguished audience ever to ness a motion picture.

To add to the impressiveness of occasion, arrangements have n made for a transatlantic tele-one talk from Mr. H. G. Wells in ndon to the distinguished audi-e at the Wardman Park Theatre, ere the showing will be held. ents incident to the showing will broadcast over Station WOL.

n addition to the regular Wash-ton correspondents for the lead- newspapers of the world, resentative newspapermen from timore, Wilmington, Richmond l Norfolk have been invited to end.

Things To Come" is a United ists release. Its general distribu-n to theatres throughout the ntry will follow shortly after the cial showing.

Personalities

An international incident may result from the special showing of H. G. Wells's "Things To Come" in Washington tomorrow evening. The Washington Sunday Star reports that "certain diplomats are beating each other over the head in order to get tickets and the whole town is reaching some kind of boiling point in anticipation thereof."

Raymond Massey, star of "Things To Come" will be guest of Sir Ronald Lindsay, British Ambassador to the United States, and Lady Lindsay, prior to the showing. If he gulps his cup it's because he has to be back in New York in time for the evening performance of "Ethan Frome" in which he is starring.

William Cameron Menzies, director of the Wells screen play was to have been in Washington for the opening, but could not be reached in time. After months of arduous labor on the picture, with its dizzy forecasts, its exciting climaxes, its monster machines of the future, he fled for the tall timber of the North Woods, on a much needed vacation.

Double Truck In Time

Time Magazine, in its April 6 issue, broke all precedents, and for the first time in its history turned over two full pages to still pictures plugging a movie!

Pages 45 and 46 contain a double-truck with a dozen striking scenes from the Alexander Korda-H. G. "Things To Come." When a motion which will soon be generaly released through United Artists.

This magnificent break is more than an ordinary layout. The pictures are arranged in continuity, and the captions tell just enough of the story of "Things to Come" to excite any reader of the magazine into wanting to see the picture. This gives it a "teaser" quality.

It is a tribute to the widespread interest that has been aroused in "Things To Come." When a motion picture is given such a tremendous break in a magazine of more than 600,000 circulation in which space is at a premium, it means that the picture is big, important, and demands top consideration.

"Things To Come" Biggest Screen Play of All Time

"Things To Come," produced by Alexander Korda, ace film-maker of Great Britain, and written by H. G. Wells, author of some 60 volumes of history and fiction, is the biggest picture to come out of England. It represents the greatest outlay of time, energy and ingenuity ever given to such a spectacle.

In "Things To Come" Wells shows the annihilating effects of the next world war and the reconstruction of the world on a scientific basis. He visualizes a new race, living in beautifully landscaped underground cities, free from disease, war and economic disturbances.

It is not surprising to learn that it took thirteen months to prepare, and eleven months to shoot a project of this magnitude. More than 200,000 feet of film were used to produce the final 9,000 feet which audiences will get in 90 minutes.

The brilliant trick photography employed by Ned Mann, Hollywood's camera genius, is an exciting feature of "Things To Come."

The largest number of extras required for any one scene in "Things To Come" wil be seen in the climax of the picture, where 2,000 men and women form a surging crowd which storms the base of the space gun when a boy and girl offer themselves for the experiment. George Perinal, head cameraman, spent three days arranging the hundreds of arc lights necessary to flood this set with sunshine.

"Colleen" at $15,000 Top In Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, April 6.—With only three downtown houses open as against the customary six, the first run situation here still remains in a state of confusion as a result of the flood. One of these theatres, the Davis, has been opened by Warners as an emergency measure to take care of product accumulating from the enforced shutdown of the Penn and Stanley.

With conditions still pretty much unsettled, business for the trio that managed to get going again was only fair. The Davis made the best showing of all, getting around $5,000 with "Colleen" in six days, while the Warner, in five days with "13 Hours By Air," collected in the neighborhood of $4,000 for this abbreviated session. The Casino, switching to double features from singles and stage units, had only four days for "Waterfront Lady" and "Headline Woman" and had to be content with a trifle short of $2,000 for that period.

Penn, Stanley Rush Repairs for Opening

PITTSBURGH, April 6.—Both the Penn and Stanley are rushing repairs in an effort to get open for the Easter business. It is indicated that the Penn will be in shape to resume Friday, with the Stanley getting under way Saturday.

Some sections of the theatres will have to be shut off for a time and work will be done at night. The Stanley will play only pictures for at least a week or two, since it will take that long to install a new stage at the Warner house.

For their reopening attractions, the Penn will have "The Singing Kid," while the Stanley will get "Small Town Girl."

The Fulton and Alvin, the two other first run houses damaged by high water, are being delayed on seat and carpet replacements and it's doubtful that they will get going again before another two weeks.

MILWAUKEE, April 6. — The big noise in a spotty week was "These Three" and "Don't Get Personal," which grossed $9,500 at the Warner, just $4,500 above par. Although $500 below par, "Prisoner of Shark Island" and "Millions in the Air" grossed $7,500 at Fox's Wisconsin for second high honors.

Greek Film Imports Up Sharply in 1935

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Imports of films into Greece in 1935 amounted to 8,075 kilograms, with a value of about $22,571,218, as compared with 6,147 kilograms valued at about $17,414,849 in 1934, according to a report by Acting Commercial Attache Don C. Bliss, in Athens, to the U. S. Dept. of Commerce.

In 1935, the breakdown, as to countries of origin, was United States, 2,758 kilograms; United Kingdom, 1,736; Germany, 1,722; France, 939, and others, 920. The figures show a marked shift from the previous year, when France accounted for 2,271 kilograms, Germany for 1,597, United States for 1,406, United Kingdom for 373, and others for 500.

Imports from France are shown high in 1934 because during the most of that year American films dubbed in French studios were entered as having originated in France. However, the import difficulties which developed in the latter part of 1934 and during 1935 in connection with the Greek-French compensation agreement and the virtual embargo placed on imports from France made it necessary for American producers to accompany their film shipments from France with a declaration to the effect that the films were of American origin.

Toronto Gets Glass Front Modern House

It is the first theatre in Canada to have an upper loge circle with exclusive ventilation to permit smoking during the performance. It has a section of seats equipped with hearing devices for the deaf; there is a special children's retiring room with miniature furniture; patrons entering the theatre pass an electric eye which brings changing fountain effects; the front and tower are of glass which is

Canada Moves to Name Appeal Board for Copyright Control

Ottawa, April 7.—Notice has been given before the House of Commons by Fernand Rinfret, Secretary of State, of a bill to amend the Canadian Copyright Act to provide for the establishment of a Copyright Appeal Board and to provide new regulations and control of fees and royalties which may be collected. The exact details of the proposed legislation will not be known until the Rinfret Bill is actually introduced for first reading.

The Government bill has superseded a measure introduced by W. K. Esling of Kootenay West and intimation is forthcoming that it will cover the ground set out in the private member's motion. Esling sought to reduce the fees of the Canadian Performing Rights Society and otherwise to restrict the application of licenses to theatres, restaurants and community halls which pay royalties under other forms.

During the past month the Canadian Performing Rights Society has been waging a propaganda campaign in local newspapers to justify its relations with composers, amusement operators, radio stations and others.

Para. to Loan Players Only On Exchange

Hollywood, April 7.—Under a new production policy decided upon at studio conferences this week Paramount will loan stars only when it can get them in exchange. Studio schedules will be so arranged that it will not be necessary to loan contract players in order to keep them busy.

The conferences are to continue for the rest of the week with John E. Otterson, Adolph Zukor, William LeBaron, Watterson Rothacker, Russell Holman, Henry Herzbrun, George L. Bagnall, Chandler Sprague and Fred Leahy attending.

The contract list is to be built up and negotiations are now pending for

The producer of "Bring 'Em Back Alive" and "Fang and Claw" this time will do a straight story with a cast of professional actors and will also appear in it himself. Interiors will be made in Hollywood and exteriors in the Florida Everglades.

The forthcoming film actually will be made under a direct contract between the distributor and Grantland Rice and Jack Eaton. Buck's arrangement, in turn, is with the latter two.

Racketeering Charge Made Against Ascap

By CLARENCE LINZ

Washington, April 7.—Charges of racketeering on the part of Ascap were today laid before the House Patents Committee by Harry L. Katz of Baltimore, counsel for the Music Users' Protective Ass'n.

Laying before the committee, which is holding hearings on copyright revision, a copy of a complaint against Ascap filed by his organization with the Federal Trade Commission last year, Katz urged elimination of the $250 minimum damage clause, asserting that the music association was using it as a club over the heads of small tavern keepers, cafe owners and other Maryland business men.

Katz submitted to the committee a

SEC Decision Seen As Court's Warning

Washington, April 7.—The New Deal Government today was seen brought further back to the principles of democracy as a result of yesterday's U. S. Supreme Court decision rebuking the Securities and Exchange Commission for "wholly unreasonable and arbitrary" action.

Holding that the commission usurped for itself powers which could not be granted it under the Constitution, the court held that it could not refuse to

Finds 50% of Adults Rare Picture Fans

"Fortune" Check Points Up Potential Market

Fifty per cent of the nation's adults go to pictures once a month, less than once a month or never.

The country's children are far better customers, 66.1 per cent attending in varying measure and only 33.9 per cent never at all.

These are the highlights of one portion of the fourth installment of a national survey by Fortune, class monthly published by Time, Inc., who also publishes Time Magazine and produces The March of Time. The probe was based on the divisions set up by the U. S. Census Bureau and, insofar as pictures are concerned, would indicate that a vast untouched market exists within the American public.

Fortune's first query was:

"How often do you and your children go to the movies and what do you go to see?"

The reply was this:

"Except that the moving picture in-

ITOA Seeks a Share In Trade Conference

Telegrams requesting that the I. T. O. A. be permitted to take part in any conferences held on trade practices between the M. P. T. O. A. and major distributors were sent out yesterday by Harry Brandt.

In the telegrams, which were sent to Ed Kuykendall as well as all the big company heads and the Hays office, it was pointed out that the I. T. O. A. is not affiliated with any national organization and it would contribute to a full understanding of exhibitor problems if the local outfit were included.

"The Law in Her Hands" . . . A novel, amusing treatment of a story featuring two young feminine lawyers and their dealings with and against a group of racketeers.

This film will be reviewed in full in a later issue of Motion Picture Daily.

Fun on a Rainy Day

It seems that when the weather approaches its worst and the spirits are ready for an injection of fun, Walt Disney's New York representatives catch up with their social consciousness by deciding to display the latest adventures of Mickey Mouse and the Silly Symphonies. It happened again late yesterday afternoon as it has happened on other and earlier occasions.

There were three this time and, as usual, the staff began to manoeuvre for the assignment. We went into one of those rare exercisings of authority, put our foot down gently, but firmly, and went.

Elmer Elephant and Tillie Tiger, the latter a pert young miss, and both the latest creations out of Disney's fathomless inkpot, made their debut. It was a Symphony bearing the hero's own name and it had to do with the course of young love. Its difficulties were recounted and the travail of certain denizens of the Disney forest, such as Elmer and his trunk, the giraffe and his, the ducks and their bills, narrated. The heroine gets in a hot spot which is a fire and it takes Elmer and his pals to rout the flames and to win a resounding kiss from Tillie through the enormously clever fire-fighting tactics which bring the blaze to complete rout.

Another bore the title of "Mickey's Grand Opera." It mixed up in delightful confusion the vocal efforts of Donald Duck as Romeo and Clara Cluck, the barnyard diva, as Juliet, the orchestra, led boldly by Mickey, and the set-to between Pluto, the dog, and a very magical magic hat which performed only the tricks that can be performed in the cartoon world. "Mickey's Grand Opera," furthermore and aside from its vast fun, is an extraordinary enterprise in perfect timing of movement and music.

If this reviewer has to be driven into an indeterminate corner to appraise which one of the trio was best, he probably would chose "Three Little Wolves," but not, mind you, without pressure. In this, the three little pigs, those succulent rascals, resume circulation and, in a gargantuan bout with their traditional enemy, the wolf, aided by his three offspring this time, win the laurels as audiences everywhere will cheer.

Again, as in all of Disney's joy-dispensers, the brilliance in conception and in execution, augmented by generous splashes of Technicolor, abound in profusion.

The remainder of the afternoon, as a consequence, was a cinch.

Allied Men Insist Booking Bill Alive

Washington, April 7.—Allied, in a bulletin dated Monday, raised the old bugaboo about a producer-controlled press when it charged "certain trade papers are carrying headlines to the effect that the Neely-Pettengill Bill is dead without a scintilla of proof to support the claim." The bulletin alleged "some are doing this maliciously, some to curry favor with the Big Eight and some possibly to cover their failure properly to support the bill.

"Exhibitors are cautioned to keep their feet on the ground during this period when the full force and influence of the organized industry is directed to confusing the issues, distorting the facts and playing politics. Caught unprepared because they did not think hearings would be granted, the Big Eight are seeking to make up for their miserable showing in Washington by a campaign of discouragement, falsification and mud slinging. Exhibitors will do well to note who are the allies of the Big Eight in this disreputable campaign; also they should note, for future reference, who are their friends."

Guild Pact Change Set

A membership meeting of the Dramatists' Guild today is scheduled to ratify an amendment to the organization's new basic agreement by which the proceeds from the sale of film rights to stage plays will be split 60-40 between author and producer, the former receiving the larger amount. Additional minor changes in the agreement are also scheduled for approval.

Marilyn Miller Dies From Sinus Trouble

Marilyn Miller, 37, for 15 years a star of stage and screen, died yesterday at the Doctors' Hospital in a toxic state resulting from sinus infection. At her bedside were her husband, Chester O'Brien, and two sisters, Mrs. Ruth Sweeney and Mrs. Claire Montgomery.

Miss Miller was born Marilyn Reynolds, Sept. 1, 1900, at Evansville, Ind. Her parents were professionals and she did her first stage work at the age of five, touring Europe, Hawaii and Cuba as one of the "Five Columbias" a quintet consisting of her mother, step-father and two sisters.

Eventually, Miss Miller starred in the Ziegfeld Follies and "Sally," "Sunny" and "Rosalie." Her success brought her to the attention of film producers and she played the role of "Sally" on the screen and followed this with "Her Majesty, Love."

Miss Miller was married three times, first to Frank Carter, a professional, who was later killed, and then to Jack Pickford, whom she divorced.

The new pictures and their classification follow: Class A-1, Unobjectionable for General Patronage—"Blazing Justice," "Lawless Border," "Little Miss Nobody," "Message to Garcia," "The Pride of the Marines," "The Singing Kid," "The Sky Parade," "Treachery Rides the Range." Sets Final Date on Theatre Realty Plan

St. Louis, April 7.—Federal Judge George H. Moore has set May 1 as the last day for formal approval of the reorganization of the Theatre Realty Co., owner of the Fox Theatre Bldg. and leasehold and the adjoining Humboldt Theatre Bldg. here. On May 1 the court will record the confirmation of the plan and fix allowances on attorneys' fees and expenses.

Judge Moore recently declared the plan fair and equitable and decided against the objections of Max W. Kramer, representing a group of bondholders. Under the plan the holders of $4,447,000 in defaulted bonds on the property will receive stock in the new corporation which will own the property. Fanchon & Marco will take a first mortgage against the Humboldt Bldg. for $250,000, the funds to be used for expenses and to provide new working capital.

Washington Preview Attracts Officials

Washington, April 7.—Washington officialdom turned out en masse for the preview of "Things to Come" at the Wardman Park last night. The audience heard H. G. Wells say over a transatlantic telephone connection that the next war would involve the United States.

Among others present were ambassadors from England, Spain, France, Denmark, Poland and Secretary of Commerce Roper and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace.

Orders Details in Suit

A motion for a bill of particulars was granted by Justice Ferdinand Pecora in N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday to the Columbia Pictures Corp. in connection with an injunction and accounting suit brought by Pedro Llanuza, a Manhattan newspaper cartoonist. Llanuza filed a suit for an alleged misappropriation of an idea for animated shorts which he says he disclosed to Columbia. Also named as defendants are the Winkler Film Corp., Chas. B. Mintz and Walt Disney of United Artists. Justice Pecora also ruled that if the cartoonist is unable to furnish the particulars he may have an examination of the defendants to assist him.

Bartholomew combines genuine delicacy and sensitivity of feeling with natural boyishness...gentle gravity and youthful fervor fit handsomely with character...story offers decidedly moving quality ...C. Aubrey Smith a delight...Dolores Costello Barrymore a lovely and touching mother... John Cromwell's direction expert."

— Richard Watts, Jr., N. Y. Herald-Tribune

"No louder sobbing ever has rocked the theatre and it continues throughout the film. Handsomely produced and brilliantly acted it reflects genuine credit upon all concerned with it. Entire company does sensational work."

— Bland Johaneson, N. Y. Daily Mirror

the Music Hall, will resign. Spitz and Wilford Merrill, the latter a representative of the Atlas Corp., which last fall, in conjunction with Lehman Bros., acquired one-half of RCA's investment in RKO and an option on the remainder, will become new members of the board. Successors to the other retiring members probably will not be elected as controlling factors have expressed a desire for a smaller board membership.

Coincident with the changes, the post of chairman of the board, which Swope is resigning, will become a titular, or comparatively inactive one. It will probably be filled by Merrill, it was stated yesterday. Major L. E. Thompson, K-A-O president, who resigns that post in favor of Spitz, is expected to remain on the board. The K-A-O developments do not affect his posts as president of other RKO theatre subsidiaries. Major I. E. Lambert, K-A-O secretary and counsel, also resigns.

For the past 18 months the K-A-O board has consisted of 13 members, five of whom represented RKO-RCA, five represented M. J. Meehan, who owns approximately 43 per cent of the preferred stock, and three of whom were "neutrals," that is, mutually agreeable to the two controlling factions. These three are Swope, Van Schmus and Donald K. David. They were brought into the company under an arrangement which brought about a truce between RKO and Meehan after extended conflict over company policy. Today's changes are designed to re-shuffle the board while taking into account the advent of Atlas-Lehman into RKO. According to report, Meehan is in agreement on the changes. RKO owns 99 per cent of the common stock and approximately 34 per cent of the preferred of K-A-O. In addition to Spitz and Merrill the RKO representation is expected to include M. H. Aylesworth, Lunsford P. Yandell of RCA, and Thompson.

The changes are also viewed as a pertinent realignment in advance of a pending reorganization of RKO. Observers also see indications of an eventual acquisition by RKO of the Meehan stock holdings. In the past attempts to strike a deal with Meehan have been unsuccessful.

Stockholders Favor RCA's New Finances

RCA's recapitalization plan was approved by a majority of the company's stockholders and declared operative by the board at the annual meeting yesterday.

The following directors were reelected for a term of three years, Newton D. Baker, Cornelius N. Bliss, Bertram Cutler and James G. Harbord. The other directors of the company are Arthur E. Braun, John Hays Hammond, Jr., Edward W. Harden, De Witt Millhauser, Edward J. Nally, David Sarnoff, James R. Sheffield and Frederick Strauss.

More than 34 per cent of the required number of shares of all classes of RCA stock voted in favor of the plan, the company reported.

The plan was prepared by Joseph P. Kennedy, former film executive, who attended yesterday's meeting to explain its provisions to stockholders. It was approved by the RCA board in January. The plan provides for the borrowing of $10,000,000 from seven banks at 2½ per cent interest for five years, repayable in whole or in part at any time prior to maturity. The money will be used to maintain working capital at an appropriate ratio to business turnover, it was said. The banks making the loan are National City, Central Hanover Bank & Trust, Guaranty Trust, Chase, Bank of N. Y. & Trust Co., Irving Trust and Bankers' Trust.

Preferred Retirement Possible

The plan provides for the retirement of all the outstanding Class A preferred stock for cash at the call price of $55 a share, requiring $27,257,835 and accrued dividends. Provision is also made for the exchange of each share of Class B preferred, including accrued dividends amounting to $21.66 a share, at the rate of 1 1/5 shares of new convertible preferred stock and one common share for each B preferred share, and the right for five years to convert each new preferred share into five common shares.

Under the plan it is possible for RCA, within five years or less, to retire all its preferred stock and have only common stock outstanding.

The new first preferred stock will be callable at $100 a share and accrued dividends. It will be entitled to cumulative annual dividends of $3.50 a share from April 1, and will be convertible into five shares of common for each share for five years, unless redeemed sooner.

Official notice of the redemption of the "A" stock will be given today and the issue will be redeemed July 1 at the call price plus 87½ cents a share, representing the accrued dividend to that date, it was said. It is expected that certificates for the new first preferred will be available about April 15 for issuance under the plan. Principal advantages of the recapitalization, as cited by the company, are that the redemption of the "A" stock will eliminate annual dividend requirements of $1,734,600, while interest on the new bank loan will amount to only $250,000 a year.

It was also stated that the holders of common are regarded as being benefited by the elimination of all dividend arrears on the "B" preferred stock and reduction of annual charges ahead of the common stock by more than $2,000,000.

In a message to stockholders yesterday, David Sarnoff, RCA president, reported on the development of the company's activities and experimental work during the past year. In discussing television he reported the completion of a transmitting station in the Empire State Bldg. and an experimental studio in the RCA Bldg. as a part of NBC operations. Actual transmitting tests using experimental receivers located at observation points will be started June 29, Sarnoff said. He warned, however, against the forming of incorrect impressions as a result of this activity.

"This is a far cry from the expectations of such a service aroused by pure speculation on the subject," he said. "There is a long and difficult road ahead for those who would pioneer in the development and establishment of a public television service."

Stay to 20th-Fox In "January" Suit

1890. Twentieth Century-Fox will seek before the full court next week a definite stay pending an appeal of the case to the U. S. Supreme Court, or a reargument of the Circuit Court appeal. Meanwhile it is expected the company will continue with releasing arrangements on the picture.

Page had originally sought an injunction against the making and releasing of "Captain January," which was denied by the District Court, and is now granted.

An arrangement had been made years ago by which Page and Mrs. Richards were to share in any rights accruing to the novel. In 1923 the silent picture rights to the novel were sold to Principal Pictures Corp. Fox bought the rights from Principal, and negotiated with Page and Mrs. Richards for the talking picture rights. The company paid Mrs. Richards $13,333 for those rights, she giving the company a quit claim.

Page contends that Mrs. Richards had no authority to sell the talking film rights to the producer. Judge Thomas W. Swan, who wrote the opinion, declared that the defendant, in proceeding without coming to terms with the plaintiff, exposed itself to a legal action.

In granting the injunction, the court indicated that an accounting may be asked for at a future date. At the time the injunction action was filed by Page, the picture had not been produced. The company went ahead with production after the injunction denial.

dustry has some 18,000 theatres with a seating capacity of nearly 80,000,000 persons weekly (at the rate of one seat filled only once each day) and that there are about 70,000,000 paid admissions weekly at the average admission of 20 cents—little is known about U. S. movie-going habits. The results of Fortune's questions contribute a little additional data on this persistent, but no universal method of passing the time of day:

More than once a week....	13.0%
Once a week............	24.9
More than once a month..	12.1
Once a month..........	13.2
Less than once a month...	21.1
Never	15.7

"A quarter of the nation's adults, then, go to the movies once a week; a half go more than once a month. The other half, who go once a month, or less, or never, are the reason that the theatre division of the industry has an embarrassing oversupply of capacity on its hands."

The magazine next asked:

"Do you go to see any good film, or do you wait and go to see only certain pictures?"

"Any Good Picture" Popular

On this score, the survey has this to say for itself:

"The answers show that 46.7 per cent of the people go to see 'any good' picture. These are probably the backlog of the industry, thanks to which its over capacity is not worse and thanks to which even the worst of Hollywood's output gets some showing before its costs are written off. Another peculiarity is that frequency of movie-going is nearly independent of the economic circumstances of the customers. Of the prosperous, 28 per cent go once a week, 26.6 per cent of the lower middle class, even 19 per cent of the poor, who are by definition in this survey the unemployed and the partially unemployed. Only the negro is not a habitual moviegoer—45.7 per cent never go; but this is chiefly because he lives in scattered rural communities.

"Still another advantage the movies enjoy over other forms of entertainment is that children are also regular customers even better than their parents. Of the people interviewed who said they had children, the replies to this question were as follows:

"(If children) how often do they go to the movies?

More than once a week....	17.8%
Once a week............	38.6
More than once a month.	9.7
Once a month..........	10.6
Less than once a month...	16.2
Never	7.1

"With more than half the children attending once a week or more, the industry is assured of at least 17,000,000 weekly admissions to help fill its 80,000,000 seats a week, although generally at half price. And 45.2 per cent of these (54.3 per cent of those between six and eleven, 38 per cent of those between 12 and 18) get their movies in the afternoon, according to the parents in Fortune's sample."

THE forthcoming conference

Spitz Elected K-A-O's Head; Board Cut to 7

Leo Spitz was elected president of Keith-Albee-Orpheum and M. H. Aylesworth chairman of the board, following a reorganization yesterday of the RKO theatre subsidiary's directorate which resulted in a reduction of the board membership from a former 13 to seven.

The procedure, Spitz said, achieves a closer unification of K-A-O and RKO and, having the approval of all K-A-O stockholder factions, represents an important step in the composition of RKO interests preliminary to the reorganization of that company.

The reduction of the board membership by six still maintains the balance of power between RCA-RKO on the one hand and M. J. Meehan, principal preferred stockholder, on the other. RCA-RKO had five representatives on the former board. Meehan five and an additional three directors were so-called neutrals, being acceptable to both stockholder factions. On

Talk on Trade Practices Set For Next Week

Thursday Picked as Date To Meet Distributors

The pending conferences on trade practices between exhibitors and distributors will open here next Thursday, provided a sufficient number of distribution executives can attend on that day, it was learned yesterday.

Communications setting forth the general aims of the conference and asking company representatives to participate were received at distribution offices yesterday from the M. P. T. O. A., sponsor of the meetings. There appears to be no doubt that all large distributors will send representatives.

Five M. P. T. O. A. committeemen have definitely accepted bids to serve on the conference committee. In addition to Ed Kuykendall, organization president, they are Lewen Pizor, Philadelphia; Charles E. Williams, Omaha; O. C. Lam, Rome, Ga., and L. C. Griffith, Oklahoma City. Morris Loewenstein, M. Bertrand for New Board; Opposes Legislation On Block Booking

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Federal control of the film industry was today recommended by Daniel Bertrand, formerly with the Amusements Division of the NRA, in the long-awaited report on the industry before, during and following the code period.

Anti-block booking legislation, however, was frowned upon as being ineffective, requiring an army to administer and, by intimation, disrupting the industry.

The report, the 34th of a series designed to deal with every industry codified under the NRA, was released by Leon C. Marshall, director of the Review Division.

Creation of a special Federal commission to deal with the industry is proposed by Bertrand, with extension of the Federal Trade Commission as a very secondary alternative, it being contended that the "unique character" of the industry and other factors make a separate organization advisable.

Included in the report is a list of persons "qualified as experts on the entire industry," who presumably could be appointed to such a commission, those names being: Will H. Hays, David Palfreyman, also of the Hays organization; Former Division Administrator Sol A. Rosenblatt; John C. Flinn, former secretary of Code Authority; Tyree Dillard, Code Authority counsel; Nathan Yamins, Fall River, Mass., independent exhibitor; Ed L. Kuykendall,

Southern Blow Hits Trade in 31 Houses

Thirty-one theatres were in the path of the tornado which swept across parts of Georgia, Mississippi, Tennessee, Arkansas, Alabama and the Carolinas. Only one was seriously damaged, but the effect on grosses for some time to come is expected to be serious as property damages ran into the millions, and thousands of families are in need of assistance.

Tupelo, Miss., and Gainesville, Ga., were hardest hit. The Lyric at Tupelo was commandeered as a hospital. The Strand is the only other house there.

At Gainesville there are four houses, the Rex, Eitz, Royal and State. The Royal was badly damaged, and the Ritz was hit.

Other houses in the storm path were: Woods, Cordele, Ga.; Acworth, Acworth, Ga.; Princess, Booneville, Miss.; Coffeyville, Coffeyville, Miss.; Bay, Red Bay, Ala.; Elk, Princess and Grand, Granada, Ala.; Lyric and Roxy, Huntsville, Ala.; Landers and Melba, Batesville, Ark.; Gem, Melbourne, Ark.; Carolina, Criterion, Lyric and Strand, Andersonville, S. C.; Carolina, Criterion, Central, Imperial, National, Palace and State, Greensboro, N. C.

ascribed many beneficial accomplishments. The industry in the United States may not yet be ready for such an innovation but it obviously would entail many marked advantages over present arrangements.

The exhibitors will approach the forthcoming conference with a proposal calling for an unconditional twenty per cent cancellation clause in all rental contracts. That every exhibitor, irrespective of the conditions surrounding his theatre, should enjoy some substantial cancellation privilege is obviously an essential requirement if he is to function efficiently and constructively.

When the distributor offers a group of pictures without definite and thorough knowledge of the nature of these pictures and when the exhibitor accepts the offer, the latter, in order that he may attune his operations to many factors with which he must contend, must have the election as to the elimination of a certain percentage of the group in question. Such a cancellation arrangement has, of course, been widely in vogue for some time—at least as far as principle is concerned. In actual practice, however, the cancellation privilege has been tied with conditions which involve or actually negate the privilege. The exhibitor should have a plain, uncontestable right under the contract to exclude on his own judgment a reasonable percentage of the pictures called for in any contract.

WHAT the percentage in definite figures should be is obviously a matter for discussion and negotiation. If the contract is to be more than merely a product reservation, the cancellation privilege must be limited, but it should not be so limited that it robs the exhibitor of the freedom of action necessary with which to deal with the special and individual problems that confront his particular theatre. But whatever the figure is, the clause which gives it effect in the contract should be plain and unmistakable and should be tied to no conditions under which ordinary circumstances render it ineffective or tend to do so.

Among the exhibitor proposals at the forthcoming conference will be several questions involving seller and buyer relations upon which no ideal solution will probably be found now or at any other time. The intricacies involved in marketing film seem to make this a condition out of which there appears to be no complete escape. But this is not a denial of the fact that many helpful and constructive adjustments are possible if both parties to the conference approach their task in a spirit of fair play.

Donat Set for One Reliance on Coast

Robert Donat will do one of the pictures he is slated to make for RKO in Hollywood toward the end of the year. Ahead of it, however, is a commitment to appear in one for Alexander Korda and London Films.

The arrangement was made in London by Harry M. Goetz of Reliance, who returned yesterday on the Paris and thereby discounted the reports, months old, that earlier litigation with Warners will prevent Donat from working in this country.

Reliance, under its deal with RKO, will make six pictures. The company's contract, however, calls for the delivery of one more under its earlier United Artists deal. This will be "The Last of the Mohicans," by James Fenimore Cooper, which Goetz will personally handle. The RKO deal embraces Edward Small, Goetz's partner, as an associate producer, but not Goetz. Between "Mohicans" and a cleanup of detail on the Reliance-RKO deal, he expects to be busy for about another year and, therefore, is not concerning himself at this time with plans beyond that time. Mrs. Goetz returned with him.

The producer will leave for Hollywood in a week.

N. E. Allied Resents Schaefer Testimony

BOSTON, April 8.—George J. Schaefer's testimony at the Pettengill Bill hearings in Washington has stirred the ire of the New England Allied unit. Resolutions have been passed expressing the unit's resentment.

The resolution recites that Schaefer directed personal attacks at Allied officers. It criticizes the reference made by Schaefer to the box-office possibilities of "Little Lord Fauntleroy," and asserts that his opinion "depreciated" the value of the film before exhibition. Copies of the resolution were ordered sent to United Artists' owners, Mary Pickford, Samuel Goldwyn, Douglas Fairbanks, Charles Chaplin and Alexander Korda.

Federal Film Control Urged In NRA Report

president of the M.P.T.O.A.; Abram F. Myers, general counsel for Allied States; John F. Knight, Paramount Theatres Service Corp.; Pat Casey, producers' representative for studio labor; George Browne, president of the I.A.T.S.E.; Louis Krouse, assistant president of the I.A.T.S.E.; Steven Newman, international representative of the I.A.T.S.E.; Joseph Weber, president of the American Federation of Musicians; Frank Gillmore, president of Actors' Equity; Professor M. P. McNair of the Harvard Bureau of Business Research; Professor Howard T. Lewis of the Harvard Graduate School of Business, and Terry Ramsaye, editor of Motion Picture Herald.

The principal points of which Federal control should be exercised, it was held in the report, are block booking, overbuying, monopolistic practices, and clearance and zoning. Here, it was held, "Federal assistants might prove beneficial to the industry and the general public."

The report, well over 200 pages, traces the growth of the industry from the development of the magic lantern nearly 300 years ago to the present day. Negotiation, development and application of the code is discussed at length, as are the various practices of the industry and their treatment under the code and since.

The major practices of which complaint is made, it was declared, are overbuying, clearance and zoning, block booking and cancellations, forcing of shorts, rebates on admissions, designated playdates, and non-theatrical accounts. Practically all of these, it was held, could be corrected by Federal control over the four major practices referred to above.

Anti-block booking legislation, Bertrand contended, would not solve the problem of distribution. "Block booking is, if not the most complicated, at least the most controversial problem troubling the motion picture industry," he said.

Complete Elimination Difficult

"The most common solution advanced by independent exhibitors is the complete abolition of compulsory block booking. Without going into the merits of arguments, it may be pointed out that administration of such a law would probably require the services of federal personnel exceeding the total number now employed by the Federal Trade Commission. Lack of adequate standards, it may be assumed, would result in conflicting determinations by different bodies. Moreover, the mills of the courts grind slowly. It would profit the exhibitor little or nothing to be involved in lengthy and expensive litigation.

"The second most frequently advanced solution is extension of the cancellation privilege. Increase of the percentage and removal of the restrictions on the free exercise of this right would probably satisfy most exhibitors' objections to block booking. This should allow the exhibitor to cancel inferior or unsuitable pictures and contract for quality productions if they appeared during the season.

"The producer or distributor of productions of relatively high quality would have nothing to fear from such an arrangement. Since an exhibitor must either replace a canceled picture with another, or must extend the run of some more desirable feature, the elimination of unsuitable or inferior pictures would not involve any loss of playing time to the industry as a whole."

Application of the code prohibition on the forcing of shorts and a cancellation privilege on a certain percentage of shorts bought would remedy the situation, it was contended, while the rebate evil can be reached most readily through clearance and zoning schedules.

Non-committal on Playdates

The report was more non-committal on the subject of designated playdates, pointing out that the exhibitor might naturally wish to play cheap pictures on Sunday, knowing he can fill his house, while the distributor desires to get the largest rental possible. Only four complaints were filed under the code provision, one by an operator who booked 80 Sunday playdates in one year, it was explained, and it was suggested that an agreement might be worked out similar to that applied to shorts under the code.

Following a consideration of the activities of each of the three branches of the industry, Bertrand finds that "the conclusion may be fairly made that, through its connection with and relationship to the distribution and production branches, the exhibition branch is an integral and necessary part of the entire scheme and plan of the motion picture industry." Further, in the light of court decisions in other inter-related industries, "it would seem that the motion picture industry is of such a character that the Federal Government would be justified in assuming jurisdiction over the industry as a unit."

Taking up the major point of which Federal control should be applied, the report, in a consideration of block booking, admits "the problem is not easy of solution."

"Exhibitors in general favor complete abolition of block booking," it was commented. "Distributors, on the other hand, oppose any such steps.

"As the problem stands at present, the use of the practice, without limitation, is legal. Any attempts at limitation of the use of the practice should be preceded by an intensive study of the subject by a disinterested Federal agency. Since the practice is one used by distributors, block booking is obviously within Federal jurisdiction."

Overbuying with intent to keep competitors from securing sufficient product for operation of theatres on a reasonable basis "is considered an indefensible practice throughout the industry," according to the report.

"However," Bertrand continued, "the victim of such a practice experiences difficulty when he applies to the courts for remedy.

Overbuying Remedy Simple

"It would seem simple to pass a statute forbidding an exhibitor to overbuy or forbidding a distributor to license film to an exhibitor in such quantity over his normal requirements as to prevent a competing exhibitor from obtaining sufficient product. The difficulty arises in connection with application and administration of such a statute.

"Leaving the courts to decide whether violations have occurred in specific cases would again raise the spectre of evasion.

"It might be possible to frame a statute making illegal any contract licensing the exhibition of film through which one exhibitor by overbuying prevented another exhibitor from securing adequate product, thus acting as an unreasonable restraint on trade. Rapid and inexpensive determinations as to violations might be made by small bodies under Federal supervision located in each exchange territory, easy of access to all exhibitors, as under the code. The Federal Government would then be in a position to withstand appeals to the courts in place of leaving the small and relatively helpless exhibitor to his own resources. Such a method would answer most of the objections previously referred to and would extend Government protection to the small business man."

A thorough study by a Federal agency with adequate facilities and authority to examine books and other records should be made to settle finally the question of monopolistic practices, Bertrand asserted. Admitting that such an investigation would be costly and lengthy, he held that the results would justify both the expense and the time.

"Claim and counter-claim with regard to the charges that the major motion picture companies are really monopolistic have been advanced for years." He commented that the growth of trade practices, such as block booking, forcing of shorts and designation of playdates, have tended to create a protected market for the large companies and restrict independent competition. Frequently, he added, more serious charges are made, such as collusive effort to restrain competition, and "such airs of suspicion and doubt should be cleared; whether the charges are true or false should be generally established."

Seeing only a choice "between laissez-faire and uniform schedules," for solution of the clearance and zoning problem, Bertrand holds that no difficulties exist to prevent the establishment of schedules fair to all exhibitors, but acknowledges that relation of present laws is necessary before this can be accomplished. However, such relaxation should be permitted only under a Federal check.

Uniform Schedules Prevented

"No question need be raised as to the interstate character of the practice," he said. "Formulation of uniform schedules was stopped by Federal anti-trust laws. Relaxation of these statutes would permit the industry to act. It follows, of course, that adequate Federal supervision would have to be provided to prevent any undue influence from major groups and to safeguard the rights of minority groups and the public.

"Little good is accomplished in pointing out places where use of Federal powers might be beneficial unless constructive suggestions are made as to the methods by which this power should be exercised," Bertrand declared in summation.

"The idea of a simple statute directed toward bettering any set of conditions must immediately give way to the problem of its application and administration. The first thought is to refer the matter to the courts.

"The difficulties of using the courts to curb the vicious aspects of overbuying have been commented on in this chapter. The difficulties a court might be called on to contend with in an attempt to cope with the problem of block booking have been previously suggested. No court could be called on to investigate and inquire into the industry in general in other than some specific instance and it would be hardly reasonable to ask the Federal courts to add to their already crowded dockets a review of any or all proposed uniform clearance and zoning schedules.

"Only a Federal commission would seem versatile enough to cope with these various situations. Such a commission might be a separate Federal body or might constitute an addition to the duties of the existing Federal Trade Commission."

However, it was held, a separate commission "seems to be indicated by reason of the following facts: Due to the unique character of the industry and its trade practices, the functions of such a body also would be unusual and there would seem to be no adequate reason for merging a body established to perform these functions with another body; in a single body, the element of shifting of responsibility would be minimized; centralization of control would tend toward more efficient administration and management.

With respect to the organization of the commission, Bertrand suggested appointment of a number of commissioners by the President "with or without the approval" of the Senate, with appointment made sub-

Dramatists Approve Plan of 60-40 Split

The Dramatists' Guild, at a special general membership meeting yesterday at the Hotel Shelton, approved an amendment to the basic agreement of March 1, providing for a 60-40 split of royalties between producer and playwright, in place of the former sliding scale arrangement. The amendment gives the larger portion of the split to the playwright, instead of the 50-50 arrangement on royalties up to $35,000, and a graduated scale in favor of the author above that amount.

Sidney Howard, Guild president, pointed out that the 60-40 arrangement was of benefit to the younger members of the guild and to theatres in general. Another amendment approved, with reference to date of release, provides that the release date of a film shall not interfere with either the New York or road run of the play, and that the author shall fix the release date, the manager to be advised of it in writing.

Howard reiterated statements he had made previously with reference to the negotiation of a new agreement, sought by the League of N. Y. Theatres, that the Dramatists' Guild would not consider any revision unless the League first presented its criticisms of the guild basic agreement in writing. A telegram was received before yesterday's meeting by Howard from Dr. Henry Moskowitz, executive adviser of the league, which, replying to a letter from Howard, advised that the league would send its criticisms if the guild consents to negotiate. With reference to the telegram, Howard declared he would not open the basic agreement to "endless discussion." He said the managers "negotiation" would mean "tearing up" the guild's basic agreement and throwing away 10 years of guild organization.

Washington's Ascap Case Awaits Ruling

Seattle, April 8.—The Supreme Court has taken under advisement the latest move in the long-drawn-out controversy between Ascap and the state. This move deals with a transfer of the Ascap case from the court of Judge Wright of Thurston County to the court of Judge Wilson in the same county.

Wright, who last year restrained Ascap from operating in Washington and appointed Tracy Griffin of Seattle as receiver, appeared before the Supreme Court last week and reported monopolistic conditions the same as previously. A decision is expected soon.

Orders Fox Testimony

A motion for an examination before trial was granted yesterday to Joseph E. Cohen in connection with his suit for $300,000 damages against William Fox and the Fox Film Corp. The complaint sets forth that the defendant made a contract to install devices manufactured by the Sentry Safety Control Corp., of which Cohen was president. Cohen says he delivered stock of Sentry to the defendant and spent large sums in advertising these devices. He also charges the defendant entered into a fraudulent conspiracy to obtain the stock. Justice Miller ordered W. C. Michel, vice-president of Fox Film, to appear for examination on April 23.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Law in Her Hands"

(Warners)

Hollywood, April 8.—Entertainment is here offered in a novel and effective fashion. While not a "big" picture in the generally accepted sense, the story has a strong, interest-holding quality resulting from a nice blending of romance, comedy and drama held together by well-grounded suspense. The show should be popular among audiences that prefer their entertainment without frills.

Margaret Lindsay and Glenda Farrell are novice attorneys starting out together in their profession and encountering all the difficulties which are common to fledgling barristers. Miss Lindsay, falling in love with district attorney Warren Hull, learns that success in the profession depends upon the understanding of the tricks and technicalities of the craft. Becoming the mouthpiece for racketeer Lyle Talbot, she outwits Hull in a series of sensational cases. A rift between the lovers is caused by this association with Talbot. Hull declares that he will get Talbot, and adds that in doing so he will show up Miss Lindsay as a shyster lawyer.

Talbot becomes involved in the milk poisoning racket, whereupon Miss Lindsay refuses to defend him. Put on the spot by gangsters, she makes a deal with Talbot to fight the case. During the trial she appears to be losing the battle and Hull gloats over her impending defeat. Finally, however, she reveals that the suspect on trial is Talbot's double; she calls on him to prove the point and accuses him of murder, paving the way for conviction. Upon his being sentenced Miss Lindsay gives up the law to become Hull's wife.

In addition to the convincing performance of Hull, Talbot and Miss Lindsay in the romantic and dramatic phases there is much laugh-provoking comedy contributed by Glenda Farrell and Eddie Acuff, process server, who looks always as if he has been run through a meat chopper. In an effective bit as a racketeer collector, Matty Fain, strong-arm man, did a job that brought applause from the preview audience. The work of the principals is ably supplemented by the supporting cast.

If the exploitation campaign features the assertion that knowledge of legal tricks and technical loopholes can circumvent factual evidence in a case, the picture should do well.

Production Code Seal No. 2,070. Running time, 62 minutes. "G."

Bills Against Films Beaten in Missouri

St. Louis, April 8.—With the present session of the Board of Aldermen ending sine die today, four bills aimed at the film industry died in committee. In the forefront of the fight against the bills was Fred Wehrenberg, president, M. P. T. O. of St. Louis, Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois.

Plan to Raise Flood Relief Fund Outlined

Plans to raise funds for the benefit of flood and tornado sufferers by means of a coast-to-coast broadcast, appeals to theatres and the circus and through a large benefit show at the Metropolitan Opera House were discussed yesterday at a luncheon meeting in the Hotel Commodore. Representatives of the stage, screen and radio who are aiding the Red Cross in the drive attended.

Among those present were: Eddie Cantor, Florence Reed, Leon Leonidoff, Henry Chesterfield, Donald Brian, Brandon Tynan, Bette Davis, Arthur Byron, H. Wayne Pierson, General Davis of the Red Cross, Charles Mosconi, Douglas Leavitt and Allen Correlli of the American Federation of Actors, Mort Blumenstock, E. W. Wingart, Arnold Van Leer, representatives of the T. O. C. C. and others.

Major Edward Bowes is chairman of the entertainment groups cooperating in the drive, but he was unable to be present because of illness. Pierson presided in his absence.

Pierson assured those present that the big broadcasting chains had agreed to cooperate, and Cantor explained that plans were under discussion to put on a program over the combined networks with all the principal radio stars participating during which appeals would be made for contributions. He estimated that it might be possible to raise $1,000,000 in this way.

Red Cross Work Described

General Davis said that the southern tornados had increased calls for relief to such an extent that the Red Cross is now furnishing both emergency relief and carrying on rehabilitation work in 18 states, with 118,000 families sharing in the benefits. This makes it necessary, he said, to go beyond the original $3,000,000 quota set for the purpose.

Cantor suggested that representatives of the circus now playing at Madison Square Garden be contacted, so that ringmasters could appeal to circus audiences for small contributions.

It was urged by another speaker that the principal newsreels be asked to assemble flood and tornado clips into a Red Cross reel, with commentators asking for contributions and that these be given wide distribution in theatres.

April 27 will inaugurate the final week of the drive. At that time ceremonies are to be held at the City Hall, with Mayor LaGuardia and the borough presidents and other city officials participating. The proceedings will be broadcast. A big benefit will be held at the Metropolitan Opera House the night of May 2.

Tynan was appointed chairman of a group of legitimate theatre producers to arrange for appeals by actors. Representatives of the American Federation of Actors agreed to present the plan to the council of the organization, with the hope that it will be approved so that appeals can be made by members working in vaudeville acts and night clubs throughout the country.

Details of how circuit theatres and others represented in the T. O. C. C. will participate will be worked out later. The Red Cross committee in charge of the general plans is maintaining headquarters at the Commodore for the purpose.

The organization committee includes: Col. Frederick H. Allen, Gene Buck, Charles Buckley, Cantor, George M. Cohan, George H. Coombs, Jr., U. S. Senator Royal S. Copeland, Howard S. Cullman, Eddie Dowling, James A. Farley, Donald Flamm, Morris Gest, William Griffin, Robert M. Harriss, Harry Hershfield, Joseph F. Higgins, Alfred J. McCosker, Peter J. McGuinness, Charles L. O'Reilly, Martin Quigley, Theodore Peyser, Lee Shubert, Sidney Silverman, U. S. Senator Robert F. Wagner, Frank C. Walker, Albert Warner and John A. Weis. John Bernard Reiger of the National City Bank is treasurer.

Looking 'Em Over

"Children of the Revolution"

(Amkino)

Produced in 1934 in Russia, and giving considerable evidence of it, this rather inept importation offers little or nothing in the way of interest or entertainment for the average American audience. Indicative of its production several years ago are the facts that it is a silent, with musical background, and that the occasional subtitle translations appear on separate frames instead of by superimposition.

It deals with the manner in which peasants conducted their collective farms in the early days of the Soviet and the way in which they dealt with traitors to the Soviet cause. Through it all runs the theme of the spirit of the children under the new regime, their pride in the product of their farm and the generosity they show toward one child whose father is revealed as having helped the White Guards in the civil war years before, and killed the mother of one of the children. In other words, the film is almost out-and-out propaganda for at least this one phase of the Soviet method.

The performances are for the most part lacking in finish and the production as a whole is of little consequence, except to those who are particularly interested in the concept behind the film.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 75 minutes. "G."

"Outlaws of the Range"

(Spectrum)

Beginning with a fast-moving pace, this western maintains that speed as the tale of cattle rustlers, murder and dark villainy unwinds. Bill Cody rescues Catherine Cotter from a runaway bronco which she had tried to lasso and takes a job as a cowhand on her father's ranch. He does a little investigating when he is aware of the rustling and uncovers information which would jail the gang. At this point Miss Cotter's father is murdered and the evidence, a frameup, points to Cody. Bill Cody, Jr., "springs" the senior Cody from jail and they ride, arriving in time to prevent Miss Cotter from signing away the ranch to the designing schemers, who are properly dealt with. A few good fist fights when Cody brushes with the adverse elements enliven the piece. The film is standard fare for double bills and children. Plenty of gun play and riding is present to satisfy the thrill seekers.

Also in the cast, aiding considerably, are William McCall, Gordon Griffith, Wall West and Dick Strong. The story is by Zara Tazil, Al Herman directed and Bill Hyer handled the cameras.

Pinanski, Boston, also are expected to serve on the committee, but have not yet advised the M. P. T. O. A. that they will be able to attend.

the new board, despite Meehan's absence from it, the two factions will have three representatives each, and one neutral member.

The new board consists of Spitz, Aylesworth and Lunsford P. Yandell, the RCA-RKO representatives; Malcolm Kingsberg, P. J. Maloney and Monroe Goldwater, Meehan representatives, and Donald K. David, a neutral. All but Spitz were members of the old board. Retired directors are Herbert B. Swope, former chairman; David Sarnoff, RCA president; Frank Altschul of Lazard Freres; W. G. Van Schmus, managing director of the Music Hall; Jay Eddy of Harris Upham, Major L. E. Thompson, former K-A-O president, and Meehan. Thompson remains as executive liaison on theatre operations for Spitz, who succeeds him as K-A-O president.

Officers of K-A-O elected yesterday, in addition to Spitz and Aylesworth, are Kingsberg, vice-chairman, and Leon Goldberg, treasurer. The latter was reelected. No successor to Major I. E. Lambert, retiring secretary and counsel for K-A-O, was named.

Swope Is Asked to Remain

A change in the by-laws of the company approved yesterday makes the presidency the chief executive post, instead of the board chairmanship, as heretofore. Swope, the retiring chairman, was urged to remain with the company but declined. It was stated that he considers the job for which he was invited into K-A-O, that of bringing about internal harmony between the two principal stockholder factions, has been completed. In his term of one year and eight months as K-A-O head the company was placed in the black and many advantageous operating policies were consummated. It was estimated yesterday that K-A-O would more than double its dividend requirements this year and may net in excess of $1,000,000. The board yesterday voted Swope a resolution of thanks and appreciation and a bonus. A letter from Sarnoff complimenting Swope on his service to the company was also read at the meeting. Swope will make his headquarters temporarily with Joseph P. Kennedy in the RCA Bldg.

It was stated that similar steps to integrate the RKO organization preparatory to the company's reorganization as a single working unit are now being undertaken. It is reported that these will result in bringing Peter Rathvon and W. J. Merrill, both of whom are Atlas Corp. representatives, into RKO or K-A-O in executive capacities. Rathvon was considered by the Atlas-Lehman interests for the presidency of RKO immediately following the purchase by them of one-half of the RCA investment in RKO last fall for $5,000,000 and the obtaining of an option for the remainder at $6,000,000. Spitz, however, was eventually chosen for the presidency. Merrill has been engaged for months on a study of RKO corporate problems in connection with the drafting of a plan of the reorganization.

"Great Ziegfeld" Opening Sets Broadway Milestone

By J. M. JERAULD

Broadway's emotions were ruffled last night by the opening of "The Great Ziegfeld" at the Astor, only a few hundred yards north of the spot where the man whose name has become a synonym for splendor first turned the page of a new chapter in American theatre history.

For many of those present it was like sitting for a time by the roadside and waiting for the pageant of memories of half a lifetime to catch up. For others it was the portrayal of a magnificent tradition. For more than a few it was a reminder that an astute showman had started them up the ladder of success. And for some—they were there, too, trying to get by a poker-faced doorman—it was a bitter rediscovery that Broadway is not kind to its failures.

If there was an occasional swallowing of a lump in the throat, it was not to be wondered at. There were plenty of men and women in the audience to whom the extravagant press agentry of Anna Held's milk baths seemed like an incident of yesterday. There were others—Kelcey Allen, to name one—who had seen every show Ziegfeld had ever produced.

Few openings in recent years have been distinguished by so much dignity. It seemed as though the unfolding of the past required a tinge of reverence. Arc lights were there, of course, but, oddly enough, they were shining across Times Square from beneath a marquee emblazoned with "Modern Times."

Crowd Handled Well

Thousands gathered to watch as usual, but the police kept the sidewalk crowds moving, and even in the lobby strong-voiced and strong-armed officers urged ticket-holders inside and pushed non ticket-holders outside, including a few half-forgotten Broadway figures who sought to crash the gate, and, failing in that, contented themselves with shaking hands with their former associates upon whom Lady Luck had smiled.

Celebrities filtered in. Few of them stopped before the microphone or the newsreel cameras. M. H. Aylesworth spoke briefly. Burly Jack Oakie, accompanied by his bride, paused a moment. Then he tried to hand his tickets to the girl passing out programs, and seemed surprised when she refused to take them.

"I want to see the moom pitcher," he muttered, embarrassed.

She grinned. "Please do."

Joseph M. Schenck came in, accompanied by Harpo Marx. They posed for pictures. And Harpo talked.

Somebody tried to congratulate Schenck.

"What tha—; I had nothing to do with it," he expostulated.

"Congratulations, anyway," persisted the enthusiast.

"Thanks, anyway," replied Schenck. "I wish I owned it."

The procession went steadily on—Ed Sullivan, Joseph Plunkett, Martin Quigley, Colvin Brown, Fanny Brice, Seymour Felix, Kitty Carlisle, Harriet Hoctor, "Goldie," Ziegfeld's former secretary; Frank Colletti, Ziegfeld's former stage manager; Alice Poole, his former telephone operator; Sam Marz, Ruth Waterbury, J. Robert Rubin and Mrs. Rubin, Charles C. Moskowitz, Louis K. Sidney, Tom Connors, Joe Vogel, Si Seadler, Lee Shubert, William Klein, Monroe Greenthal, George White, Don Mersereau, Abel Green, Sherman Krellberg, Irving Barry, Evelyn Jacques and many others.

Watching them, glumly, lost amid the recollections of the triumphs he himself had helped to make famous, was Bernard Sobol, Ziegfeld's former press agent. Time turned back aroused emotions which he strove to conceal.

Occasionally he greeted women as they passed. All of them were former Ziegfeld beauties. The years have been kinder to some than to others since their "glorification."

If the ghost of Joseph Urban stalked in that gaily clad assemblage, it must have admitted as the first half of the picture unreeled that creative genius has grown with the years. Its sheer beauty and opulence stirred a feeling akin to awe. The vitality of William Powell's portrayal of Ziegfeld was impressive. The kaleidoscopic emotional shadings of Luise Rainer's conception of Anna Held were a delight. Buddy Doyle's presentation of one of Eddie Cantor's early dances drew cheers. When A. A. Trimble appeared as Will Rogers the audience gasped.

Tawdry Broadway will wait a long time for something more impressive than this opening. It was a tribute and a triumph.

What the Critics Say

New York film critics this morning say this of "The Great Ziegfeld."

American—A splendid picture, dazzling in the magnitude of its conception, brilliant in the magnificence of execution

Daily Mirror--Elaborate, magnificent and gorgeousFilled with fun, melody and loveliness, it is three hours of sheer entertainment and amusementSuperlatively handsome.

Herald-Tribune— it is, as was fitting, a typical Ziegfeld show. It is beautiful, expensive, costly, tuneful, romantic, a bit lacking in humor and somewhat overpowering as to quantityIt should have been fairly simple to cut "The Great Ziegfeld" down to a more comfortable size.

Times—So thoroughly Ziegfeldianit would be easy to pretend it had been produced by the Great Glorifier himself rather than Hunt Stromberg. For the picture has the opulence, the lavishness, the expansiveness and the color of the old Follies; it has the general indifference to humor which was one of Ziegfeld's characteristicsIf the picture overcrowds the screen, at least we must admit it is an impressive kaleidoscope and probably nothing short of that could reflect the gaudy career of America's foremost showman.

Splurge on "Ziegfeld"

Chicago, April 7.—An advertising budget of $11,000 has been set by M-G-M for the opening of "The Great Ziegfeld" at the Erlanger Easter Sunday. More than $9,000 will be spent for newspaper space.

CINEMA

The New Pictures

Things to Come (London Films) is a $1,400,000, two-hour cinematic summary of the history of the next 100 years. It marks the debut of Herbert George Wells as a screen-writer. It places Alexander Korda's London Film Productions Ltd. on a par with Hollywood for production power as well as brains. It tells an extraordinary story which, while it may not convince cinemaddicts, is likely to captivate them (see pp. 44 & 45).

Since what happens 100 years hence is of no consequence to anyone now old enough to enjoy the cinema, the notion of producing a film of which the longest and most spectacular portions deal with 2036 seems at first glance, daringly original. Original it is. It is daring only by contrast with Hollywood's timid preference for doing, insofar as possible, only what has been done before. Actually, nothing interests people more than matters which do not concern them. Things to Come is therefore magnificent entertainment and a tribute to the sound showmanship that has made Producer Korda the kingpin in England's booming cinema industry.

Beginning in 1940, the picture voices Author Wells's current theory that another world war will start that year. The operations of that war and the destruction of Everytown, which looks very much like London, by a fleet of airplanes should throw a highly practical scare into contemporary audiences. The second portion of Things to Come contributes a reductio ad absurdum of Fascism which should cause it to be banned in Germany and Italy. The climax of the picture is an [illegible] explicit description of a Wellsian Utopia than that foresighted author has ever divulged to his reading public.

As a spectacle, Things to Come compares favorably with its Hollywood rivals, from Intolerance to The Crusades, but it differs from all predecessors in its class by demanding a cerebral rather than an emotional response. Its climax is reached not when two lovers are reunited but when an unmarried couple (Pearl Argyle, Kenneth Villiers) more interested in the cosmos than in each other disappear from the screen in the direction of the moon, thus causing the President of the World, Raymond Massey, to state the Wellsian moral: "All the Universe or nothingness—which shall it be? . . ."

When strangers call at the dingy house in London's Grosvenor Street where London Films has offices, they are likely to be surprised when a fatigued-looking young man, who has ushered them from an anteroom into a comfortable but shabby little office, then seats himself behind its desk and says: "I am Mr. Korda." That, at 42, Kingpin Korda looks and acts like anything but a Hollywood cinemagnate is no accident. A bright young Budapest journalist who got interested in the cinema in 1916, he reached Hollywood by way of Vienna, Rome and Berlin in 1925. His Private Life of Helen of Troy was one of the best silent pictures of its era. When Director Korda left Hollywood in 1928, however, he had had enough of its methods to last him a lifetime. The Private Life of Henry VIII, which he produced on a shoestring in 1933 and which made cinema stars of five actors in the cast from Charles Laughton to Merle Oberon, got him the backing of Prudential Assurance Co. Ltd. It also gave him a chance to explore on a grand scale his own ideas about cinema production, crystallized by a distaste for those of the U. S. industry.

Producer Korda's start as a journalist left him with a respect for the profession of writing. His sojourn in Hollywood convinced him that the importance of writers to the cinema had been vastly underrated, only less foolishly than the importance of the cinema to writers. From this it was a short step to the conclusion that the payroll of London Film Productions, Ltd. was the proper place for an author like H. G. Wells. Few writers of comparable distinction have ever worked in Hollywood. Most of these have either laughed at or despised their jobs. Author Wells, who was on the set most of the time Things to Come was in production, was so delighted that he promptly declared he would concentrate on writing for the screen hereafter. He now considers films "the greatest art," expects them "to oust both opera and stage. . . ."

WELLS, ARGYLE & MASSEY

The moral: "All the Universe or nothingness. . . ."

With enormous backing, a nucleus of a company in which one of his brothers (Vincent) is art director and another (Zoltan) a director, Producer Korda last year arranged to attack the U. S. market (15,000 theatres to Great Britain's 4,000) on a large scale by buying a partnership in United Artists, which releases his pictures in the U. S. For years the English cinema industry functioned in converted garrets, suburban garden backyards and a few vacant lots at Elstree. Producer Korda bought an enormous tract of land at Denham and set about building a $5,000,000 studio which, now almost complete, is as big and as well equipped as anything in Hollywood.

Before starting on Things to Come, the salient production weakness of London Films had been technical. For this picture, which was made before the Denham studios were ready to function, Producer Korda installed a "Special Effects Department" under Ned Mann. More astounding than the gigantic outdoor sets constructed under Art Director Vincent Korda were Mr. Mann's miniatures: a space gun 20 feet high (see cut) with tiny puppets running around it on moving belts; bat-shaped airplanes apparently capable of carrying armies; a sky-darkening air-force swooping over the Dover Cliffs.

Since The Private Life of Henry VIII put new capital and new life into the British cinema industry, U. S. producers have been debating whether the brains behind the shabby desk in Grosvenor Street were really capable of supplying them with serious competition for the world cinema markets. Last week they knew the answer. Things to Come may or may not entrance U. S. cinemaddicts but it is likely to make bigwigs in Hollywood scratch their heads about a future much more immediate than 2036.

U. S. Pictures In Japan Rise To 256 in '35

WASHINGTON, April 8.—The widespread popularity of films in Japan is strikingly revealed in a recent report to the U. S. Dept. of Commerce from its Tokyo office.

During 1935, a total of 730 features were passed by the censors, of which 414 were Japanese, 256 American, and 60 European. The corresponding figures for 1934 were 396, 234, and 44, respectively.

While official statistics are not available, it is reliably estimated that 335 features were imported in 1935, of which 270 were of American and 65 of European origin.

Estimates place the total number of theatres in Japan at 1,800, of which between 1,000 and 1,200 are wired for sound.

At present a number of favorable factors exist in connection with the continued showing of foreign films in Japan. The chief of these is the inability of domestic producers to make quality films, and the popularity of foreign films, particularly American, in the urban centers. At the same time, Japanese producers are not taking steps to modernize their studios and improve their technique.

Distributors of American films have been handicapped by the fact that Japanese producers control the principal circuits of theatres. Practically all distributors believe that the only solution is to be found by securing an interest or control by contract of certain first run houses in key cities.

Conn. Unit Holds Meet

NEW HAVEN, April 8.—The constitution and bylaws of the newly organized Independent M. P. T. O. of Connecticut were approved at a regular meeting here recently. HOLLYWOOD, April 8.—"Beach of Dreams" will be the next Bing Crosby film for Paramount. The story is an original by Harry Hervey, and Frank Butler and Don Hartman are now writing the screenplay. Lewis Gensler will produce and Norman Taurog will direct.

Light Opera May Go To K. C. Auditorium

KANSAS CITY, April 8.—J. J. Shubert attended the official opening of the Municipal Auditorium here. He is considering a proposal to bring a season of light opera to the auditorium this summer. He indicated he had in mind the possibility of a circuit of cities for the production of such programs. Shubert produced the popular St. Louis concerts and is giving them for a second season this year in Detroit. He said merchants' business in St. Louis increased 15 per cent with the introduction of opera there.

The new auditorium is considered strong film competition. It has attracted huge crowds this winter—125,000 for the food show, one week; 75,000 for the General Motors show, and a like number for the Better Homes Show.

Exhibitors to Swell Tornado Relief Fund

MEMPHIS, April 8.—Film theatres, from 100 to 200 of them throughout the mid-south will open Sunday for the benefit of the Red Cross tornado relief fund, it was decided at the semi-annual convention of the M.P.T.O. of Arkansas, Mississippi and Tennessee. Special attention will be given Tupelo, Miss., which was devastated by the storm.

No election was held at the meeting which was attended by more than 150 exhibitors. M. A. Lightman presided.

Vancouver Men Shifted

VANCOUVER, April 8.—An extensive shakeup among Famous Players Canadian managers has been caused by the departure of Lloyd Dearth, manager of the Capitol, to become district manager, Hollywood Pantages.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., April 8.—Fred Wilson, manager of the State, an Interstate house, has been transferred to Portsmouth to take charge of the recently acquired Garden.

No Special Session Called in Missouri

JEFFERSON CITY, April 8.—Gov. Guy B. Park has declined to call a special session of the Missouri legislature to supply new relief funds, now exhausted. He indicated he believed the calling of a session would be unwise, and that legislators' answers to his inquiries on a session disclosed little hope of effective relief legislation.

It is pointed out that although state relief has been cut off, the imposition of the one per cent sales tax continues. The tax was passed solely on the basis of providing relief funds. In the admission group, during January, for example, film houses contributed $15,902.

To Decide Kan. Session

TOPEKA, April 8.—A decision on a special session of the Kansas legislature to bring state laws on social security into line with Federal will be made shortly after April 15, when a special committee will report on the constitutionality of such a session.

Ryan Suit Believed Holding Up Olympia

BOSTON, April 8.—George S. Ryan's suit against E. M. Loew for $60,000 in attorney's fees which he alleges is due him despite the failure of the proposed settlement of Loew's suit against Paramount is believed to be holding up the reorganization of Olympia Theatres, a Paramount subsidiary.

This is said to be the only remaining Paramount unit still in receivership.

Withers Goes Southward

KANSAS CITY, April 8.—Robert Withers, manager of the Republic-Midwest Exchange, and Mrs. Withers, have gone to New Orleans from where they will sail to Havana and other points in the Caribbean.

Italy Starts New Financing Plan on Films

WASHINGTO, April 8.—For the encouragement of the Italian picture industry, an independent section is to be created in the Banca Nazionale del Lavoro for extending credit to producers who have been approved by the Ministry of Press and Propaganda, according to a report to the U. S. Department of Commerce from Commercial Attache Charles A. Livengood in Rome.

The new section will have its own assets and will operate independently of the Banca Nazionale del Lavoro. Under the surveillance of the Ministry of Finance, it will act on its own initiative or in concert with the Ministry of Press and Propaganda.

Its president and directorate will be those of the Banca Nazionale del Lavoro, but it will have a separate council of administration composed of seven members: a representative of the Ministry of Press and Propaganda; a representative of the Ministry of Finance; the president, director general, and two representatives of the Banca Nazionale del Lavoro (members of the latter's council of administration); and a representative of the National Theatre Federation.

"Petticoat" Washington's $24,000 Hit

Washington, April 8.—Despite a general falling off in grosses during the first week of real spring weather, "Petticoat Fever" shot the take at Loew's Fox to $24,000 to better par by $3,100.

Repeat runs held best along the rialto, with "The Private Life of Henry VIII" at the Belasco taking $4,600 on the first seven days of a 10-day run, during which a total gross of $6,400 was accumulated. House average is $3,000 on the first run week.

The second week of a return engagement of "The Story of Louis Pasteur" at the Metropolitan grossed $5,400, bettering the first run par by $1,100.

See Operator Bill Dead in St. Louis

St. Louis, April 8.—It is expected that the proposed local ordinance, sponsored by the projectionists, calling for one operator for each projection machine, even where no admission is charged, will die in committee. A storm of public protest sent the bill back to the committee of public safety. With the board of aldermen scheduled to adjourn tomorrow, it is considered unlikely that the bill will be acted upon.

Theatre owners objected to the measure on the ground that it was an attempt to make a city ordinance of a procedure that is already a part of the working agreement between theatres and operators. It was the contention of union officials that the proposal was in the interests of public safety.

Cooperate on Screenings

St. Louis, April 8.—The local operators' union has agreed to furnish projectionists without cost for the showing for school use of educational films approved by the M.P.P.D.A. The films would be shown at theatres in cooperation with the theatre owners. Robert Thomson, union business manager, declared the union's willingness to cooperate.

Already Soaked

Pittsburgh, April 8.—John H. Harris of the Alvin tells this one from the days of the Great Flood. Ira Cohn of the local Fox exchange called him and excitedly suggested he use the 1,500 feet of "marvelous" flood scenes Cohn had just received. Harris' lack of enthusiasm was explained by the fact that at that moment the water was 15 feet deep in the Alvin.

It wasn't until later that Cohn was able to explain that he meant the films for a suburban house, not the downtown Alvin.

"Fleet," $13,500 Montreal's Leader

Montreal, April 8.—"Follow the Fleet" was outstanding in the surrounding first run dullness here. It reached $13,500, over the line by $2,500, at the Palace and was held over.

The Capitol had a fairly good run at $9,000 on a double bill headed by "The Petrified Forest" while the take at Loew's was around the same figure with a program made up of two features and six acts of vaudeville.

"The Amateur Gentleman" topped the bill at the Princess and the result was $6,000, which was below the line. The Imperial continued its policy of second runs until after Easter. A couple of hockey finals provided opposition, but there wasn't much else.

Total first run business was $39,000. Average is $41,500.

Estimated takings for the week ending April 4:

"Desire" Is $13,500 Top In St. Louis

St. Louis, April 8.—"Desire" made the best comparative showing of the week, going $4,800 above average with a gross of $13,300 at Warners' Orpheum.

"Little Lord Fauntleroy" at Loew's had the best gross with $13,900 which was $4,900 above average for the house. The Orpheum's average is $500 less than for Loew's, the former house being 56 per cent above average and the latter up 54 per cent. A very close race for top honors. These were the only houses to break into the profit class.

During the week the Ambassador, formerly a first run, passed into a new classification. It is now a subsequent first run. This means that it will follow immediately behind the Fox, the local first run of the F. & M. interests. Under the new policy the Ambassador opened with "Rhodes, the Diamond Master" and had a take of only $3,500 for the five and a half days. Perhaps $6,000 would be the proper average henceforth instead of the old mark of $10,000.

Weather of the week was mixed, but average for this period of the year here.

Total first run business was $49,650. Average is $45,300.

Estimated takings for the week ending April 2:

"RHODES, THE DIAMOND MASTER" (G.B.)

Toronto, April 8.—The will of Mrs. Theresa Small, widow of Ambrose J. Small, once widely known Toronto theatre owner, disposed of an estate valued at $2,194,000, approximately one-half of which was bequeathed to the Roman Catholic Church. The will is being contested, however, by Mary F. Small, sister of the former theatre circuit owner. Ambrose Small vanished a few moments after he had left his Toronto theatre on the night of Dec. 2, 1919, and the case has been continuously before the public since that time.

No Restraint In Clearance, Court Decides

Detroit Decision Sets Precedent on Point

DETROIT, April 9.—That no restraint of trade is involved in the rental of ilms on a clearance basis is the rulng of U. S. Judge Edward J. Moinet n dismissing the anti-trust suit of he Colonial, headed by Jacob Schreiber, against major distributors and Cooperative Theatres of Michigan.

The court upheld the report of a naster who heard the testimony and even raised a question as to whether he element of interstate commerce was nvolved in purely local transactions.

Schreiber's counsel relied upon the Binderup vs. Pathe Exchange Case o establish his contention that conspiracy in restraint of trade was involved because he could not get films as soon as downtown houses, but the court disposed of this by saying that his complaint was due solely to the

"Signal Recognition", Then What? Is Ramsaye Reaction

In a report rendered by Daniel Bertrand, formerly with the amusement division of the NRA, and submitted by Daniel C. Roper, Secretary of Commerce, to the President, in Washington, there is proposed a commission for Federal control of the industry, along with a list of persons held to be qualified for membership on such a commission. The list includes Terry Ramsaye, who, when asked for his reactions, said:

"In all solemn sincerity I should record my appreciation of election to the imposing roster of those 'qualified as experts on the entire industry.' With equal sincerity, but with perhaps a shade less of my characteristic solemnity, I will observe that this signal recognition from the NRA is calculated to be coals of fire, or else a demonstration of unbiased and unbiasable attitude, upon my head as the first and perhaps most vigorous and persistent of the critics-in-print of the late NRA Blue Eagle as a bureaucratic buzzard with unlovely feathers.

"In other words, perhaps I am in the position of the Wall Street 'bear' who found himself on the board of a corporation, the stock of which he had been hammering, and decided: 'They put me on to represent the short interest.'

"These 20 and odd years upon the Rialto I have met all manner of movies and their menaces. The sons of the Blue Eagle do well who call me, thus officially, 'expert.' I accept the garlands of laurel, ephemeral though they be, ignoring quite that by tomorrow they will be overlaid

Germans Make 3-Way Pact on Film Exchange

By J. K. RUTENBERG

BERLIN, April 9.—Discussions of film imports and exports between Germany, Austria and Czechoslovakia have led to a three-sided international agreement. In addition, a bi-lateral agreement will be signed between the German State Film Chamber and the Austrian Film Conference by which experiences on economic and technical questions will be exchanged and by which a preliminary agreement between the two industries in the case of international film discussions will be established.

The Austrian and German industries have thus been linked by an inside agreement. In a special convention Austro-German film exchanges from July, 1936, to July, 1939, have

See No Effect On Film Bills In NRA Study

No Plan to Use Report For Legislation

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, April 9.—The recommendations made yesterday by Daniel Bertrand, formerly of the Amusements Division of the NRA, for Federal control of the film industry, is expected here to have little or no effect on the legislative situation with respect to the industry.

It was indicated that no plans have ever been made in Administration circles to use the reports on the codified industries, of which the Bertrand report was one, as a basis for legislation to revive the idea of the NRA. Furthermore, it is pointed out that there is little sentiment in Congress for Federal control of the film industry.

The conclusions and recommendations in the report represented the views of Bertrand only, and in a foreword to the lengthy document, Leon C. Marshall, director of the Review Division, commented: "There is need of further study."

"The present material," Marshall pointed out, "throws much light on

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

REACTION to the Bertrand report suggesting Federal control of the industry, via the well-known, well-worn and well-tried commission route, was variable yesterday. It ranged from the fun and sarcasm flowing from the prolific typewriter of Terry Ramsaye, neighbor and confrere down the corridor at Motion Picture Herald, to a more or less solemn declaration from Abram F. Myers, general counsel of Allied, that "I was not consulted about this and am not an applicant for any Government job" to the statement, definite and flat—without necessarily being humorous on the latter score—from Ed Kuykendall who wired from the Southland that he was "unalterably opposed to Governmental regulation of this industry and, therefore, not in accord with the Bertrand report." . . .

There will be more later from others of the men described by Daniel Bertrand as those "qualified as experts on the entire industry" and so likely timber for posts on any such commission if and when authorized under the law, a procedure, incidentally, somewhat removed from the definite. In the meantime and in an era which is unmatched in the nation's history for freedom of spending the public funds, here now and to come from future generations in higher and higher taxes, it becomes slightly difficult to escape a simple conclusion. It is that the Government might do very well by minding its own business. . . .

It has enough business of its own and already acquired from others as well, to keep its minions very actively engaged in the task of maintaining the status quo without searching about for other private fields in which to foray and to experiment at the expense of stockholders who, once again and after all these years, are beginning to get accustomed to dividend checks. The best job to be done for the best interests of this industry and others, although the others are of no concern except through sympathy, will come from within where the endeavor ought to be launched anyway. . . .

There is substantial reason to credit the impression that responsible factors in this business are currently cognizant of the necessity for a change and that about it they propose doing something. Tangibly, but always avoiding the danger in forecasts, the change is very apt to find its beginnings next Thursday when exhibitors and distributors, represented either by their presidential incumbents or their sales managers, meet in New York to consider some modernization in the practices now prevailing between those who buy and those who sell. . . .

"That there is much room for improvement in the trade practices governing the renting of films is a viewpoint against which there is but little argument," wrote Martin Quigley in Motion Picture Daily yesterday. There is little argument on that score, but there may be considerable over the arguments leading to a common meeting ground. That, however, is the way of all round tables and it is important only in the light of the results which finally crystallize from the deliberations. This is an observation which it might be well to bear in mind as the trade practice parley gets into its stride. . . .

The chief business of this business is to supply its customers, the public, with the highest level of entertainment its very extensive facilities can muster. If it fails, those very customers know the method, because they have used it, and will take care of matters only too well. But the question of malpractices, present certainly and adjustable emphatically, is a problem which belongs to and in the industry. As such, it is privileged matter which the business should be permitted to tackle without the burden of uninformed commissions, politically conceived, politically conducted and politically maintained. The only kind of patronage this industry wants is at the box-office. . . .

London, April 9.—Herbert J. Yates is aboard the Manhattan, which sailed for New York yesterday.

Press Music Strike As 22 Firms Settle

With 22 of the 92 music publishing companies in New York already signed to individual agreements with Local 802 of the A. F. M., the union is continuing its strike against the publishers with renewed vigor, putting 300 pickets on the street in the past two days. Seven of the 22 publishers who have signed individual agreements are members of the Music Publishers' Protective Ass'n., whose original suggestions for a settlement of the strike were viewed as unsatisfactory by the union.

Union officials declared yesterday they had received a report from Chicago indicating that New York publishers had sent work there, in an effort to have Chicago copyists and arrangers handle it. The material was returned without the work having been done, according to the union. The negotiation of individual agreements will be continued, it was indicated.

Llanuza Suit Dismissed

Justice Joseph M. Callaghan in N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday dismissed the complaint of Pedro Llanuza, newspaper cartoonist, against United Artists. His suit against Columbia, Winkler Film Corp., Charles B. Mintz and Walter Disney remains. In dismissing the complaint Justice Callaghan said that the complaint failed to charge United Artists with any breach of confidence or trust or show that United Artists had a knowledge that Columbia or its agents were guilty of any wrong toward the plaintiff, nor is there any allegation in the complaint that United Artists showed any caricatures which were identical with or simulations of those submitted by the plaintiff to Columbia.

Fox Midwest Takes Two Houses at Iola

KANSAS CITY, April 9.—Fox Midwest has taken over, on lease, Ira D. Kelley's two theatres at Iola, Kan., the Kelley and the Iola. Fox has not been in the town before.

Several other personnel changes have been made by Fox as a result.

Memphis Sees "Deeds"

MEMPHIS, April 9.—This town turned out in a big way last night for a special Red Cross benefit premiere of "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" at the Malco. The regular program of the house was suspended at 6 o'clock and the Columbia film went on at 8 o'clock. City officials and prominent citizens were conspicuous.

HOLLYWOOD, April 9.—Tim McCoy has signed a three-year contract with Imperial Pictures for eight films a year. The pictures will be supervised by William Pizor and Clifford Sanforth. The producers are considering using color in some of the films.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Three on the Trail"

(Sherman Prod.-Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, April 9.—Better production values, a more gripping story and the usual high acting standards make this the best of the Hopalong Cassidy series to date. William Boyd, Jimmy Ellison and George Hayes, portraying the title roles, work smoothly together, making the characters more believable and arousing greater audience sympathy.

The story concerns a battle between ranchers, led by Boyd, and the Bar 20 outfit and Onslow Stevens, cafe keeper, whose gang rustles cattle and holds up stages under the protection of John St. Polis, crooked sheriff. Stevens makes the heavy thoroughly despicable, and his final rout when the ranches storm his cafe, eventually setting it afire, provides a suitable climax for a series of chases and kidnappings.

Stronger romantic interest is provided by a love plot which has Boyd and Ellison contending for the favor of Muriel Evans, school teacher, with Ellison the final winner.

The supporting cast includes Clara Kimball Young, Claude King and William Duncan, who give good performances. Howard Bretherton's direction paces the action shrewdly and allows no letdown. The photography by Archie Stout does full justice to the beauty of the locations and credit is also due Mel Wolf for special effects, and to Lewis Rachmil, art director. Doris Shroeder and Vernon Smith wrote the screen play from Clarence E. Mulford's novel.

As a class action picture the production should please generally.

Ampa's Nominations Encounter a Setback

arrive at a selection. The committee had been expected to recommend the re-election of the present regime, headed by Gordon White, Herbert Berg, Ed McNamee and Gar O'Neill.

The committee, however, is not expected to make another attempt at nominating, and in that event a new committee will be elected next Thursday. The mixup necessitated the postponement of election to April 30.

Regardless, a group of eight members, acting independently, yesterday presented an independent ticket, and that will stand in opposition to any ticket selected by the general committee. On the independent slate are Hal Horne, for president; Alex Gottlieb, vice-president; Paul Benjamin, treasurer; Leon J. Bamberger, secretary; William R. Ferguson, trustee for three years, and the following nominees for directorship: Barret McCormick, Tom Waller, Marvin Kirsch, Monroe Greenthal. Kirsch refused to accept the nomination, and the independent sponsors were asked to make another selection.

The dissension in the ranks which occasioned the resignation of Leonard's committee is understood to be the committee's insistence that the board of directors be enlarged from the present seven members to nine, which, the present regime insists, is not permissible without a vote of the whole membership and the lapse of one month. This obviously could not be done in time for the election.

The incident was the cause of much quibbling at yesterday's meeting in discussions from the floor.

Hal Horne has not definitely decided whether he will run, thus leaving Ampa at this moment without any definite candidate for the presidency, and already elections have gone two weeks past the April 1 annual meeting date stipulated in the constitution.

The hearing covers a similar action brought by the Interstate Alliance of Projectionists and Stage Employes, Inc.

Last November, when Loew opened the Colonial here, he hired operators from the Interstate union. Local 309 members immediately began to picket the house. A restraining order was issued at that time limiting the picketing, but it has continued in some measure ever since.

Directors Disagree On Detail of Bylaws

HOLLYWOOD, April 9.—The Screen Directors' Guild was unable to adopt bylaws at its last meeting when independent directors protested against a clause which would give voting control only to members with two or more major pictures to their credit. The independents want full voting powers.

All other bylaws were accepted and the portion in dispute was sent back to the board for a solution to the problem.

The number of films to be brought from Austria into Germany without taxation or contingent provisions has been fixed at 14 per year. The import of a greater number of films is subject to special conventions. The unlimited number of films to be sent from Germany into Austria is normally subject to the Austrian Cinematograph Act. For the period to July, 1936, an additional export of Austrian films to Germany will be agreed upon.

Export of currencies will be settled by a special agreement between the Austrian National Bank and the German Reichsbank.

Discussions have been held between Austria and Czechoslovakia which have resulted in an agreement to put Austro-Czech film exchange on a broader basis. No state influence will be exercised upon rentals. The question of money export will, likewise, be settled by friendly negotiations which will be incorporated in the Austro-Czechoslovakian exchange system.

"Broadway Melody" is continuing its sensational run here. It has played four weeks and will be extended for two more, a run unusual heretofore either for German or U. S. films.

Giveaways Continue To Gain Around K. C.

Kansas City, April 9.—This town is using more giveaways than ever before, with the ceiling not yet reached More than 20 theatres, all independent, are using varieties of glass and china ware, each attempting to offer something different, at least by name. The result is something like this: kitchenware, bakeware, rock crystalware, mixing bowls, cake plates, vegetable bowls, soup bowls, cups, "combination bridge and dinnerware," pie plates, etc. One house recently offered meat platters with "Our Daily Bread."

Fox Midwest will start the use of china giveaways at the Waldo soon, and is planning on extending the promotion to other theatres.

Use of money giveaways, including Bank Night, Screeno, etc., are as widespread as use of china, if not more so. W. D. Fulton, who has six theatres, recently decided to discontinue his Prosperity Night on Thursdays. Fox at that time hadn't used Bank Night for some weeks. Later he changed his mind when Fox resumed Bank Night.

First runs, even the Fox Uptown, have stayed away from promotions, although the Uptown, it is understood, will start Bank Night again sometime this spring.

Giveaway distributors report that more of their products are being used out-of-town than ever before.

"Signal Recognition", Then What? Is Ramsaye Reaction

with the frost of forgetfulness, as far from a commissionership of Federal control of the screen as the oft-mentioned Oscar W. Underwood from the presidency.

"What I think of Federal administration of the motion picture business is as obvious as the observation of the late Dr. Hugo Munsterberg of Harvard that it was a waste of time to ask him to speak on prohibition.

"It is my conviction that it would be fitting of the Administration to first establish some indication that it knows how to run the Government before it endeavors to take over the cosmos, including American industries, among which the motion picture is conspicuous.

"I can view with no enthusiasm projects to admit the Government, and politicians, to the conduct of and participation in American industries. I cannot enjoy or approve the reiterative endeavors of what we call 'Washington' to nationalize all living and enterprise. These United States are getting much too thoroughly united.

"Obviously Political"

"It is obvious enough that the Administration is addressing itself at a program intended to create, nourish and support a bureaucratic gang system of exploitation, under which brigand bosses may flourish even as in days of old along the Rhine valley. In the terminology of 'progress' we are being invited, cajoled, threatened by political bullies toward a reversion to the economics of feudalism.

"All of the destructive and invasive aspects of the order, or planned disorder, which pervade Russia, Germany and Italy, are being offered to us today in inept, dumb, mass hokum terms of the militant barbarism dressed in the erudite terminology of a flock of sophomores whose outgivings remind one of the conversations in Latin which result from the first meeting of the class on the academy steps.

"A commission to control and operate for the Administration the motion picture industry! We now have, Heaven preserve us, a WPA theatre enterprise. How is it going? Never mind grosses, let's see the net. We had the United States in the motion picture industry as a producer in the days of the World War in terms of the Motion Picture Division of the Dep't of Public Information. How did it do? I admit being an expert on that subject, too.

Newspaper Control Suggested

"I wonder how soon the Administration will be getting around to consideration of a project to set up a commission to run the newspaper business, too. I'd really enjoy a nomination to that kind of a commissionership even more, and with all of that modesty which typifies my business of word-mongering I will admit qualification. Why not combine the newspaper and motion picture business under one commission, anyway? If the Administration wants to run the media of expression and communication it might put them all in one basket. The only serious objection is, of course, that that would not encourage the multiplicity of jobs, patronage, the spreading of the gravy.

"As a Commissioner of Federal Control of the Motion Picture one might expect to do well with the allotments of funds in payment to several producers I know in reward to them for not making some of the pictures they have had in mind. Personally I am entitled to something right now for not putting into work my favorite feature entitled 'Uncle Sam at Work.' It will not be made on location exclusively on lands rented from the Indians, capable of seven reels per acre."

Kuykendall "Opposed"

Columbus, Miss., April 9.—Ed Kuykendall, president of the M. P. T. O. A., commenting on the Bertrand report today, said: "I am unalterably opposed to Governmental regulation of this industry, and therefore, I am not in accord with the Bertrand report."

Myers Not a Candidate

Washington, April 9.—Abram F. Myers, general counsel of Allied States, asked to comment on the Bertrand report which included his name among those it found to be experts on industry practices and qualified to serve on a Government control commission, said:

"I have not had an opportunity to study the Bertrand report and consequently do not know what jurisdiction the proposed board would exercise. I was not consulted about this and am not an applicant for any Government job. Generally speaking, I am against bureaucratic regulation and in favor of home rule under the Neely-Pettengill Bill. However, if this legislation fails, I am confident that there will be a wide public demand for strict Federal regulation and then your inquiry will be timely."

Lewis Against "Interference"

Cambridge, Mass., April 9.—Professor Howard T. Lewis of the Harvard Graduate School of Business, had this to say in reply to Motion Picture Daily's inquiry on the Bertrand report:

"I know nothing of the nature of the Bertrand study beyond brief press reports. I am personally opposed to interference with private industry by the Government except where it is absolutely demanded by the public interest. Quite aside from any question of the wisdom of such action, however, I am inclined to believe that some form of supervision over the film industry is inevitable. If so, the large companies can only create added ill-will toward themselves if they assume an attitude of undying opposition.

"They would do better to cooperate in the drafting of regulatory measures and in selecting as administrators men who sincerely appreciate the real problems confronting the entire industry, yet who, having no personal interest at stake, can secure from the many and diverse elements concerned cooperation on the fundamental issues involved. I have had no reason to change my opinions as expressed in my book published in 1933, entitled, 'The Motion Picture Industry.'"

'A CONNECTICUT YANKEE' PROVES UNQUALIFIED HIT ON RETURN ENGAGEMENTS!

Tested in two widely diversified situations, "A Connecticut Yankee" showed it retained all the box office draw that made it one of Will Rogers' greatest pictures.

AT THE APOLLO, INDIANAPOLIS:

Almost equalled the great "Country Doctor" run! Reported K. T. Collins: "Audience reaction on return of 'Yankee' very good, some praising the opportunity of seeing it again, others welcoming it due to not witnessing first showing. AT THE STRAND, LOUISVILLE:

Ran neck and neck with business piled up by "Shark Island" and "King of Burlesque!" Wired F. J. Dolle: "Doing excellent business. Audience reaction comparable to Rogers' latest releases. Photography and sound proved a revelation. Will date other situations without delay." the difficulties and problems of this industry." No suggestion is made, however, that the findings represent the views of any important members of the Administration.

While there is little likelihood of the report becoming anything more at this time than another volume in the national archives, it is possible that if future efforts are made to obtain legislation declaring films a public utility, the report will be cited as a basis for such demands. With the work of the current Congressional session piling up rapidly and in view of the anxiety of members for an early adjournment, it is considered that there is little chance of Congress giving consideration to the matter of film legislation this year.

Ohio May Set Wage Rate

COLUMBUS, April 9.—Inauguration of a minimum wage scale for theatre employes, similar to the one in effect during the code regime, looms as a possibility for Ohio.

The prediction is based on the precedent established by Ora B. Chapman, state director of industrial relations, who has just approved a minimum scale for hotel and restaurant employes, graduated according to population. It is based on a 48-hour week, with one and one-half the regular rate for overtime.

Although definite action has not as yet been taken as applying specifically to theatres, this is being agitated in some quarters, it is reported.

action. When this is done, the court is expected to decide whether the defendants' pending appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court has any effect on the proceedings in district court here. The court will either set a trial date, regardless of the appeal, or defer the setting of a date until the appeal is decided, it is expected.

The appeal was taken from the St. Louis court's denial of defense motions to dismiss the Government's equity action "with prejudice," thereby barring the way to the filing of a new suit here. The Government's motion to dismiss without prejudice was granted. If the appellants are successful in the Supreme Court, the Government action here would be automatically halted.

Centracchio for modification of the Sunday laws to permit stage dancing on Sunday has been put over to the next annual session. The present laws forbid any stage dancing on Sunday except that which may be interpreted as acrobatic. Theatres, as a matter of policy, did not support the measure.

N.Y. Critics Unanimous In Praise of "Ziegfeld"

New York critics sang the praise of "The Great Ziegfeld" without end yesterday. The World-Telegram considered the picture important enough to assign Robert Garland, drama critic, to a review as well as the usual appraisal by its film critic, William Boehnel.

Excerpts from the reviews of four morning newspapers were published day and date in MOTION PICTURE DAILY yesterday. Additional comment from other morning papers, as well as the afternoon dailies, follows:

Daily News—For once in their lives the producers of a pet picture may, with impunity, drag out the word colossalThere is enough material in it for half a dozen ordinary films, and, as it is presented at the Astor in two sections, separated by a ten-minute intermission, each half runs the length of a long feature pictureThe producers are to be congratulated on every phase of the beautiful production except their lack of courage in cutting the film.

Evening Journal—for sheer beauty, splendor and opulence, takes its place as the last word in eye-and-ear entertainment.

Produced on a tremendously lavish scale, the picture is practically a dozen or more musical pictures rolled into one. It is one elaborate scene after another of dazzling settings, of gorgeous costumes, of hundreds of decorative girls, of tall white pillars and a wealth of luxurious laces and jewels and feathers and silks. It is an extravaganza of such rich proportions that it runs three hours in length.

Powell gives a vigorous and authoritative performance in the title role and the remainder of the cast is equally satisfactory. Myrna Loy, blonde here and exquisite, plays the part of Billie Burke, and Luise Rainer enacts Anna Held with an enchanting blend of wistfulness and roguishness. Frank Morgan is hugely amusing as Billings; the alluring Virginia Bruce appears as a trouble-making chorus girl who comes between Anna Held and Ziegfeld, and there are numerous other characters, some of whom are named and others whose identities can be guessed.

Outstanding, as always, is the inimitable Fannie BriceHarriet Hoctor dances superbly in a circus ballet. Ray Bolger features a grand novelty dance to the tune of "She's a Follies Girl." Buddy Doyle, singing "If You Knew Susie," does an excellent imitation of Eddie Cantor, and one A. A. Trimble gives an uncannily true impersonation of Will Rogers.

Morning Telegraph—The word today is "colossal." Meaning big, stupendous, overwhelming, breath-taking, awe-inspiring and similar adjectives customarily associated with itIt is a difficult matter to pick out any particular points in the film for special commendation, running as it does for almost three hours, and piling spectacle upon spectacle, extravaganza upon extravanganza, but if I were compelled to do so, I would first point to "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody" as one number showing the greatest possible successThen, too, I would pick out Miss Luise Rainer as my second point for special commendation. Miss Rainer plays the role of Anna Held, the little French songstress whom Ziegfeld married and plays it with conviction, and humor, and quiet brilliance that stamps her as a really first-class actressOne lavish spectacle follows another in dizzying succession; one Ziegfeld show is piled on the next until the audience is left speechless, gaspless and—well, to be frank about it, a trifle weary.

Post—It would take more adjectives than are contained in the sorely pressed lexicon of Hollywood to describe the process by which the late Mr. Ziegfeld, premier showman of Broadway's Golden Age, has been glorified in celluloidThe source and origin of glitter, glamour and romance are compressed in this one picture. You will never see another musical film that exceeds it in opulence, in visual inventiveness in Babylonian splendorIn spite of its lavish production qualities, the picture achieves its highest distinction in the acting. William Powell does magnificently in the title role, and Luise Rainer, as Anna Held, gives a performance which for sensitivity and restraint should go down as one of the great impersonations of the yearYet even with its incredible length, "The Great Ziegfeld" remains as imposing and fantastic a structure as Boulder Dam or the Taj Mahal.

Sun—The performances of Luise Rainer and William Powell, quietly combining pathos and humor, would have put over any film. They are, in "The Great Ziegfeld," just one more important assetas impossible to describe in detail as a three-ring circus. Perhaps it's best just to say it's a show Ziegfeld would have been proud to own, that it's filled with the most beautiful girls I've ever seen on a screen, and that, after three crowded hours, the audience was eager for more.

Robert Garland, dramatic critic in the World-Telegram—Fact and fancy, personalities and impersonations are so consistently confused that it leaves the man who knew "The Great Ziegfeld" and his associates breathless and bewildered. But, to the majority, these are even now a legend, and the prodigious picture at the Astor glorifies the American cinema even as its central figure glorified the American girl.

William Boehnel, film critic in the World-Telegram—hearty, amusing, highly sentimentalized and vastly engagingActed with spirit and understanding by an expertly directed cast, the film projects itself across the screen without losing a whit of its theatrical effectivenessmay slacken its pace once or twice during its unusually long unreeling, but it never relaxes in its ability to entertain or its ability to recapture and project the mood of the showman himself or the spirit of a golden era in showmanship, with fine and hearty skill. Seldom has the cinema put on a more lavish spectacle or offered such a fervored blend of homage, humor and heartbeat—or such a happy timeThe picture is, of course, mostly William Powell's in the title role, and let it be said at once that his portrait of Ziegfeld is by far the most direct, unfretted performance of his career. But, then, the whole cast is superfine. If the brunt of the acting falls on Mr. Powell's shoulders, there are others in the cast no less brilliant—particularly the lovely Luise Rainer, whose performance as Anna Held is nothing short of magnificent.

Then, too, there is Frank Morgan, who is excellent as Billings, while as Billie Burke, Myrna Loy weaves the beauty of romance into Ziegfeld's later years. These and all the others in the cast, among them Fannie Brice, Roy Bolger and Harriet Hoctor, deserve, along with the director, Robert Z. Leonard, more than just passing salaams for giving us a film that should command your immediate attention.

fact that he could not get films when he wanted them, rather than on the fact that he could not get them at all.

In discussing this point the court said: "There is no evidence that any producer involved herein had ever refused to lease and deliver picture films to plaintiffs herein, and the facts are that they were unable to get just the very films they desired, at just the very time that they desired them for exhibition, and that therefore on account of such facts, there is a combination and conspiracy against them which is in restraint of trade and commerce. The allegations and facts involved herein failed to establish such claims."

On the interstate commerce phases of the controversy the decision read:

"The court is satisfied that the evidence fails to show that the transactions in question involve interstate commerce according to the facts and the law presented."

The case was filed more than a year ago. Testimony was heard last summer and the report of Sayres was made about the first of the year.

'Fauntleroy' Smash $100,000 Despite Holy Week

(Best Exploitation: Music Hall)

In the Holy Week Handicap, toughest event of the year for pictures, only 'Little Lord Fauntleroy' and Charlie Chaplin's 'Modern Times,' latter on second run, are showing any speed at all. The going is rough for all the others, rain on Monday and Tuesday (6-7) contributing to slow up the pace.

Outclassing everything else, 'Little Lord Fauntleroy' will return a handsome stake to the Music Hall, chances looking sanguine for $100,000 on the week. Picture holds over.

'Fauntleroy' was well sold on its engagement at the Music Hall. both in advance and after opening of run, with United Artists cooperating on the merchandising. Hall spent more than customary in advertising the picture and in addition to other exploitation, there were special broadcasts.

Radio City Music Hall (5.989; 40-60-85-99-$1.10-$1.65) — 'Fauntleroy' (UA) and stage show. Getting nearly all the business this week chances bright to touch $100,000, smash money for Holy Week. Holds over through Easter.

Labor Confabs To Be Started Here April 16

Limited Representation Proves a Problem

Negotiation of studio labor agreements by union heads and the producers' labor committee will be opened here on April 16 if sufficient representation can be assembled by both groups, it was stated yesterday. Difficulties in assembling the producers and labor officials have caused the meetings to be set back several times and it is now apparent that they cannot be opened on April 14, the date last sought.

Only minor changes in wages and hours from the current schedules are anticipated and efforts will be made to complete the hearings in a single day, it was said. The negotiations are conducted annually under a provision of the five-year studio labor pact which permits the reopening of

Circuit Deals Start Para's Selling Early

FWC Heads a Long List Prior to Convention

Early activity in the sale of 1936-37 product, with no sales conventions held as yet, is indicated in the number of large circuit deals which Paramount has closed on next season's lineup. Chief among them is with Fox West Coast, which includes not only the entire 1936-37 lineup but also the 1937-38 product.

Other circuit deals on the 1936-37 product include: Consolidated Amusement Co. of Honolulu, covering the Hawaiian Islands; the McNeil-Naify circuit, in the San Francisco area; Redwood-Midland, in northern California; Dubinsky Bros., Kansas City; Fourth Ave. Amusement Co., Louisville; Balaban & Katz, Chicago; Schine, New York State and Ohio; Century, Brooklyn and Long Island; Consolidated Theatres, New York, and Skouras in the metropolitan New York territory.

Motions to strike out two parts of the Government's complaint in the suit charging Warners, Paramount and RKO with conspiracy in violation of the anti-trust laws were made by defendants yesterday in Federal court here and are returnable Tuesday before Judge Robert P. Patterson.

RKO Confirms Here Leishman Has Quit

Resignation of E. D. Leishman, chairman of the committee of management of RKO Pictures, Ltd., Radio's British organization, as reported by cable in Motion Picture Daily, was confirmed by Ned E. Depinet, asked for comment on a Berlin dispatch indicating RKO's return to Germany, said:

Colonels Can Rest Easy

Louisville, April 10.—It's beginning to look as though it takes more than an attorney general to eradicate Kentucky colonels. Governor Chandler has just extended official recognition to the general staff created by his predecessor.

In a letter addressed to "My Dear General Pettijohn" the Governor's secretary says:

"Governor Chandler has received today, through M. Lawrence Aaronson, an invitation to a dinner at the Kentucky Hotel on Friday evening, May 1.

"The Governor appreciates this invitation and is making his plans to be with you."

Aaronson is chairman of the Derby Festival Committee which sponsors the annual mobilization.

The M.P.T.O.A. yesterday completed the personnel of its master committee which will confer with representatives of large distribution companies, beginning next Thursday, on new trade practice agreements. More than half of the major distributors have accepted bids to the conferences and indications are that the remainder will formally accept when their top executives, now out of town, return to their offices within the next few days.

The exhibitor committee will consist of Ed Kuykendall, M.P.T.O.A. president; O. C. Lam, Rome, Ga.; Lewen Pizor, Philadelphia; Jack Miller, Chicago; E. C. Griffith, Oklahoma City, and Charles E. Grosses Here Aided By Easter Holidays

Broadway grosses were bolstered last week by the Easter holidays.

"Little Lord Fauntleroy" rated its holdover at the Music Hall on the strength of the first seven days' draw which tallied $95,000. Up to 5 o'clock yesterday, the theatre had grossed $7,100 and business, according to the management's word passed along to United Artists, was ahead of all prior days of the engagement.

"The Singing Kid" gave the Strand a nice week at about $29,500. Indicating continued strength, "These Three," in its third week at the Rivoli, grossed $19,000. It closes Thursday to make way for "Things to Come."

"The House of a Thousand Candles," playing at the Center, ended at $8,500.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"And So They Were Married"

(Schulberg-Columbia)

Hollywood, April 10.—Story character, plus the engaging performances of two youngsters, Edith Fellows and Jackie Moran, combine to elevate this show to the better than average entertainment classification.

Essentially a comedy of the mistaken romantic idea brand, the picture has several tense dramatic situations, a unique vein, combative love interest and a farce-tinged parental fear climax that quickly creates and holds the attention of the audience.

In the story, man-hating Mary Astor, a widow, takes Miss Fellows, her daughter, to a mountain resort for a white Christmas. Melvyn Douglas, a woman-hating widower, does the same thing with his son, young Moran. A comedy accident has the parents at swords points. To escape the well-meant but annoying attentions of the hotel officials, Dorothy Stickney and Romaine Callender, the parents seek solace in each other's company.

The children, in whom the fear of the opposite sex is ingrained, resort to all sorts of tricks and pranks to keep their parents apart. Their mutually planned battling proving ineffective as their mother and father no longer despise each other, the kids stage a fake disappearance stunt. The frantic parents, searching for them, are arrested as kidnapers when the youngsters are found riding in the rumble seat and refuse to identify them. Identified by Miss Stickney and Callender, Miss Astor and Douglas rush into each others arms, to the great joy of the kids.

The show moves fast with smart, humor-tinged dialogue balancing the exciting action. Based on Sarah Addington's story with the screen play by Doris Anderson, Joseph Anthony and Lauria Brazee, Elliott Nugent's direction takes full advantage of the plot material and the capabilities of the players.

Geared for average audience consumption, the show has plenty of stuff to entertain and many easily adaptable exploitation angles.

Looking 'Em Over

"The Royal Waltz"

(Ufa)

Set in Munich in 1852, this comedy-drama of romance and misunderstanding in court and other circles, is made rather delightful chiefly by reason of the appealing music by Franz Doelle and the leading performances of Willi Forst, who played in "Two Hearts in Waltz time," and Heli Finkenzeller.

Done in a light fashion, it is on the whole enjoyable entertainment, made readily understandable by the plentiful use of superimposed titles. The story tells of the delegation of Forst, young Austrian count, to seek the aid of the King of Bavaria in the suit of Franz Josef for the hand of the Bavarian King's niece.

Forst sees and falls in love with Theres, one of the two daughters of the owner of the king's favorite coffee house. But scandal arises when the action of Forst in assisting Theres' younger sister in the park is seen and misunderstood by an old friend of the girl's father. Theres succeeds in having the king declare that the offending officer must marry the girl. When it is discovered that Forst is the innocent victim of circumstances, Theres believes he has deceived her. It is only when the younger sister admits that Forst was entirely blameless that a happy ending is possible, with Franz Josef coming to claim his bride and Forst doing likewise.

It is agreeable entertainment even for those lacking a knowledge of the language.

New Machines Shown By General Register

The General Register Corp. yesterday demonstrated a new line of ticket issuing machines, which are now ready for the market. They are supplementary to the former Gold Seal model, which still will be available. The new models, which are attractive in appearance, are featured by a lack of noise in operation, unit construction, which permits of additions to the original casing at the cost only of the new unit; visible numerators, a completely enclosed motor, and other factors not present in the former models.

An interesting feature of the new models is a self-printing device, which permits of the printing of tickets in virtually the same operation as the actual issuing of the ticket. The new models are available in casings housing from two to six ticket units. It was pointed out that there is comparatively little difference in price between the new and the old models.

Percy Phillipson, president of General Register Corp., will leave today for England, after a stay of several weeks here.

"Popular Science No. 4"

(Paramount)

Done in color and showing new scientific achievements in the home, medical and other fields, this reel is an excellent addition to any program. Testing the effects of earthquakes on contemplated skyscrapers, new devices for the modern kitchen in cooking and preparation of food, the metamorphosis of caterpillars into butterflies and the microscopic examination and their wings revealing new wonders, a new radiographic machine which is used in examining the internal structure of humans the film ends in a shop where miniature airplane models are manufactured for the power plants of model planes. There is a demonstration showing how the motors run and their use in lifting the small airplanes. This should please. Production Code Seal No. 2,018. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

Lake of Enchantment, part two, shows the native fishermen of Lake Patzcuaro in Mexico with their butterfly fishnets and some native customs and ceremonies. It is beautifully photographed. The last part presents the interpretation of "Swanee" by Charles Haubiel, a piano virtuoso. He plays it as he thinks. Bach, Wagner, Liszt and Strauss would have varied on the theme. The short should please where the audience demands a higher type of offering. Production Code Seal No. 0936. Running time, 12 minutes. "G."

Moray New York-Bound

Hollywood, April 10.—Norman H. Moray, Warner short subjects head, will entrain for New York tonight, having completed executive meetings here.

Looking 'Em Over

"Dubrovsky"

(Amkino)

Done in the tradition of the screen of Soviet Russia, this tells the story of the revolt of a group of peasant serfs under the Czarist regime and their marauding and plundering of the property of wealthy landowners under the leadership of the son of a prince who has lost everything through the spite and power of a neighboring land baron.

The result is active, if somewhat unimpressive drama, lightened by little or no comedy, and suitable, it would appear, only to those whose sympathies are with the Russia of today. The theme is, as usual with the Soviet importations, the protest, armed or otherwise, of the lower orders against the cruel overlordship of the nobility. Romance is permitted to enter in the feelings of the leader, Dubrovsky, for the daughter of the man who wronged his father, but it would never do to have this romance completed—and it is not.

The film, with superimposed translations assisting the audience unfamiliar with Russian, is an adaptation of the novel of the same title by Alexander Pushkin. It was produced by Lenfilm in Leningrad.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 75 minutes. "G."

Overseas Preview

"Forget Me Not"

(London Films-United Artists)

London, March 31.—The famous tenor, Beniamino Gigli, is the box-office value here. His magnificent singing of operatic numbers is an entertainment asset which partly outweighs serious defects of story and continuity in this, a version of a German picture with Joan Gardner in a part first played by Magda Schneider and which has suffered in the transition.

The story is that of a girl secretary who, after a misunderstanding with a liner officer, marries a famous tenor, whose voice over the loud speaker has been the background to her love passages with the other man. The latter reappears after some years and the girl almost yields to his attempt to carry her off. The tenor, aware of the situation, makes a last appeal to her by medium of the love song associated, without his knowledge, with the other man. When she leaves the concert hall he thinks he has lost her, but she returns to their apartment.

Apart from Gigli's singing, the high spot is a delightfully naive performance by Richard Gofe as the tenor's young son. Gigli acts well in a proposal with the aid of a dictionary and admirably in the scene of the impassioned appeal by song, but Miss Gardner does not impress. It is for those who want to hear Gigli and won't worry about other values.

Running time, 80 minutes. "G." Allan

Pinanski of Boston and Morris Loewenstein of Oklahoma City, the final two eligibles for the committee, are unable to attend because of illness.

At present, indications are that the distributor representation will include the following: Neil Agnew and Austin Keough of Paramount; Al Lichtman and W. F. Rodgers of M-G-M; R. H. Cochrane and J. R. Grainger of Universal; Sidney R. Kent, W. C. Michel and John D. Clark of Twentieth Century-Fox; Albert Warner, Herman Starr and Gradwell Sears, or A. W. Depinet and Jules Levy from RKO, and George J. Schaefer and Harry Gold from United Artists.

A representation of industry attorneys may also attend the sessions for counsel on points of law which may arise during the conferences.

The meetings will probably be held in the new Cinema Club.

The objectives of the conferences are the consideration of unfair competitive practices in distribution and exhibition and the devising ot means to correct them through industry self-regulation.

Ohio Banks Reflect Gains in Business

Columbus, April 10.—"State-supervised banks now are stronger and healthier than ever before in the history of Ohio," declared Samuel H. Squires, state superintendent of banks, in a statement just released. "There is a growing feeling that business generally is showing substantial improvement. The economic outlook is such as to inspire an encouraging measure of confidence for the future."

The tabulation of 468 reporting banks, released by Squires as of March 4, shows an increase of $150,466,221 in combined resources, while combined deposits increased $150,967,123 since the call of March 4, 1935.

"This is a significant record to which reference may be made with pride, indicating progress on the part of the banks, and a more prosperous condition of the people," Squires said.

Although theatre business throughout the state continues more or less "spotty," the trend in the aggregate is definitely upward.

New Deal in Distribution, Exhibition, MPTOA Hope

Visions Regulation Like That in Production Code Setup

The hope that the M. P. T. O. A. conference with distributors on trade practice abuses will bring about standards of self-regulation as effective in distribution and exhibition as the production code regulations have proved to be in production is held by exhibitor leaders behind the cooperative program, it was stated here on Saturday. The conferences are scheduled to get under way Thursday at the Cinema Club with a master committee of six M. P. T. O. A. officers and a company designated list of representative distributors participating.

All of the sessions, according to present plans, will be closed. This decision has been made, it was said, with the experience of past, unsuccessful industry meetings in mind. Exploring the reasons for the failure of similar joint get-togethers of exhibitors and distributors, bent on eliminating trade practice abuses, sponsors of the current program have concluded that large, diverse groups are too easily side-tracked from their joint objectives by conflicting, individual policies on the methods of approaching them.

Exhibitor leaders behind the present move point to the failure of the historic 5-5-5 conference of 1930 to attain its objectives and to the joint exhibitor movement of November, 1932, on trade practice reforms. Aside from the Administration-forced NRA code drafting meetings of 1933, the

Lent, Flood Damage, Cold Depress Key City Grosses

A combination of the closing weeks of Lent and the after-effects of floods sent key city grosses down to a point not far removed from the Christmas low for the week ending April 2-3. The total for 174 theatres in 29 key cities was $1,373,875.

In the previous week, ending March 26-27, however, there was a pickup that sent the total up to $1,521,800, which was not far below the average that has prevailed since the beginning of the year.

The decline for the week ending April 2-3 was practicaly uniform throughout the country, with the exception of Indianapolis and Kansas City. Many spots outside of flood zones reported unseasonable cold and rain or snow.

Damage in Wheeling Figured at Million

WHEELING, West Va., April 12.—It is estimated that indoor and outdoor amusements have suffered nearly $1,000,000 loss from flood waters in the past month. Five downtown theatres and three neighborhood houses were damaged in excess of $40,000, a survey has revealed. Until late last week only three of the eight had reopened, but plans were under way to have several others lighted by the end of this week. Still closed were the Liberty, Rialto, Colonial and New Rex, and the Alpine in nearby Wellsburg. The latter two were in process of remodeling when the floods came.

Directors Revise Membership Rules

HOLLYWOOD, April 12.—The board of directors of the Screen Directors' Guild, at a meeting at the Hollywood Athletic Club last night, revised the bylaws to extend membership to directors of independent features and short product.

The change which liberalized the eligibility rules provides that the applicant must have screen credit on two features and six shorts or one feature and three shorts within a three-year period. Originally no allowance was made for the direction of shorts. Ratification of the change by the membership is scheduled for some time in May. Phil Rosen will represent independent directors on the board, and Richard Wallace was named to substitute for William K. Howard on the directorate during Howard's absence in England.

Two More Pittsburgh Spots Set to Reopen

PITTSBURGH, April 12.—By next week, the two remaining firstruns downtown closed by the flood will be open again. They are the Fulton, which resumes Thursday with "Sutter's Gold" and the Alvin, due to get started again April 20 with "Rhodes."

The other houses damaged by the high waters were the Penn and Stanley, both of which have reopened.

The Stanley, showing pictures only while having its buckled stage replaced, will resume its former policy

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

BY training a lawyer and an in-the-background sort of fellow anyway, Leo Spitz is very sparse of comment about the changes which last week saw in the executive roster of Keith-Albee-Orpheum. You will remember that this was the development which brought about a reduction from thirteen to seven in the board, replaced the RCA representatives, including David Sarnoff, Herbert Bayard Swope and Frank Altschul of Lazard Freres and elected in their stead Spitz, M. H. Aylesworth and L. P. Yandell and effected a more harmonious working arrangement between RKO, the parent, and K-A-O, its liveliest theatre offspring. . . .

The procedure, Spitz conceded at the time, brings about a closer unification of the two and, having the approval of all K-A-O stockholders, represents an important step in the composition of RKO interests preliminary to a general reorganization. There, however, you have only part of the story. In what is conceivable as a combination of Spitz's modesty and caution, he told only a portion. You are now about to get the rest. Several years back go its beginnings. The situation then was not pleasant. Mike Meehan, who owns forty-three per cent of the sixty thousand shares of K-A-O preferred and is popularly believed able to muster enough additional to give him control, had been raising plenty of fuss with RKO management. . . .

The exact measure of how strained the relations were might be indicated by the plan, once afoot, for K-A-O to use its own buying power to purchase films where it could and would with complete disregard of Radio pictures. Sarnoff apparently could do little by way of appeasing Meehan's ire. Then came the move—it dates back approximately eighteen months — by which Swope was elected to the chairmanship on a platform which made of him a balance wheel committed to keep both factions placated, unruffled and calm. His administration was a good one and the ructions went from a roar to a sizzle. . . .

The significance of what has just transpired, however, is clear and simple even if Spitz prefers, at this time, not to talk. The import of his election to the K-A-O presidency rests in the confidence which is Meehan's that K-A-O, in the stock interest of which his holdings run three millions or more, will get a fair shake. That, in turn, indicates a step beyond and it has to do with reorganization of the parent, over-all company. With peace assured in K-A-O, the most disturbing and most disturbed member of the RKO family, the indication becomes patent that Spitz now will be able to progress faster in the move to take his company out of bankruptcy. . . .

Since this space appears to be shaping itself naturally as a general airing on matters RKO, there is a story to be told about the deal which brought Walt Disney into that corporate fold. It all began with a transcontinental telephone call from Brother Roy, whose job it is to keep Walt properly impressed with the value of the dollar and how to guard it, to "Deac" Aylesworth. "We're finishing up with United Artists. Are you interested in the product?" asked Roy, in effect, if not in verbatim language. You, or anyone else for that matter, could have blown over Aylesworth with a glance. Followed extensive conferences here with Attorney Lessing, acting for the Disneys, and a hurried trip to the coast, where Aylesworth never left Lessing's sight and vice versa. . . .

Where Lessing went, Aylesworth was sure to follow. He even caught the former dropping off to sleep at the wheel of his car one night in Hollywood, the circumstance making Aylesworth out to be some sort of a candidate for a Carnegie medal. Finally, the point was reached when Spitz advised Aylesworth and Ned E. Depinet to forget all else and .concentrate on the Disney arrangement. Depinet now calls it a pleasant assignment, but, regardless of that, the contract finally was signed to the complete discomfiture of at least one other major distributor who had an idea his own palavers for Mickey and those Symphonies were in the bag. They were, only it was labeled RKO instead of—well, never mind. What's the use of rubbing it in? . . .

When Phil Reisman heard about it, he issued forth with clarion calls of delight. For, overseas especially and domestically as well, the Disney product will give the rest of the RKO program a lift which will reflect in additional gross, just how much being one of those indefinable matters which defy computation. In point of terms, Aylesworth's deal—and the Disney arrangement very definitely was his from start to finish—is far and away the outstanding commitment in the entire history of the short subject field. No distributor to date has paid such a price for a series of pictures, each running under ten minutes. It is precedental, but the word also describes the sort of business RKO expects to do with the product. In Hollywood, Walt is speeding up his final batch for United Artists with the possibility no longer so remote that he will start deliveries to RKO a number of weeks ahead of the first anticipated January of 1937. . . .

Incidental note: One of the easiest retainers earned in corporate history was the $150,000 paid by RCA to Joe Kennedy for mapping the company's financial reorganization, the one approved a few days back. Kennedy spent exactly ten minutes on the task.

Association of ideas note: Kennedy was formerly chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission:

Short Subjects

"Winged Champions"

(Paramount)

The audience hears Ted Husing's voice as a blimp is shown flying over the Everglades in search of what the title infers. From that point the Husing descriptive powers and humor ad libs the natural beauty of flocks of ibis and egrets. Proceeding north it takes in a swan sanctuary off the Carolina coast where these birds winter. Fine camera work shows the natural flying ability of the birds as they land, take off and glide. Pelicans and sea gulls follow and the short closes with some excellent geese and duck hunting scenes which should please sporting elements. The Husing humor is at its best when the comical pelicans are shown. Production Code Seal No. 0840. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Betty Boop and Little Jimmy"

(Paramount)

The "Little Jimmy" of the cartoon pages makes his debut in this cartoon. He and Betty Boop are amusing themselves in an attic gym and are having a grand time using all the exercising machines. Betty gets caught in the toils of a vibrator and sends Jimmy out for an electrician. He wanders about and forgets all about his errand, but eventually gets back and accidentally disconnects the machine. By this time Betty has been reduced to a bag of bones but they laugh themselves back to normal and continue laughing to balloon size. The animation is good and the amusing rhymes should be entertaining. Production Code Seal No. 0777. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"The Little Stranger"

(Paramount)

The somewhat familiar story of a mother duck hatching a chick with her brood and the consequent bewilderment when the chick attempts to swim and quack, is again utilized in this finely colored short. Of course, the chick when it fails, is cast out and feels sad, but contrives a boat so it can be like the ducklings. A hawk swoops down and there follows spectacular animation and trick sound effects as the chick saves the duck family and brings about the demise of the hawk. A good and entertaining effort. Production Code Seal No. 0522. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The First Baby"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, April 12.—This is a simple tale of the wild excitement of a young couple undergoing parenthood for the first time, relying for its appeal on the utter naturalness of the reactions of the parents and grandparents of "the only baby in the world."

Trudy's mother refuses to believe she is not losing her daughter, only gaining a son even after the twentieth reassurance drives her near to collapse. Even to the altar she opposes the marriage. The first quarrel occurs on the honeymoon when Trudy confesses she has given her solemn word to live at home, until her mother gets used to the idea of doing without her. The arrival of the baby only complicates matters with the mothers-in-law and fathers-in-law standing despairingly by. Johnny's break for freedom in a home of his own ends in disaster when Trudy discovers a girl, left over and forgotten, after a housewarming in an apartment he had furnished as a surprise. The baby has to run a high fever and the in-laws high tempers before the youngsters arrive at independent parenthood.

Johnny Downs and Shirley Deane do excellent jobs as the painfully young and pathetically serious parents. Jane Darwell draws plenty of laughs and sympathy as Johnny's mother, who has eight children of her own and no time to be anything but sensible about her grandchild. Marjorie Gateson as Trudy's mother does equally well in her performance of the thankless role of the self-righteous trouble-maker. Taylor Holmes' comedy is brilliant as her downtrodden, apprehensively rebellious husband. Dixie Dunbar does a couple of skittish dances. Willard Robertson as the doctor, Gene Lockhart as Johnny's father and Hattie McDaniels as the maid all supply laughs. Lewis Seiler directed and John Stone produced. The original story and screenplay is by Lamar Trotti.

A New Deal Is MPTOA Hope From Confabs

joint Allied States-M. P. T. O. A. move for the correction of trade practice abuses conducted late in 1932 were the last voluntary industry effort at self-regulation of distribution and exhibition. Allied and M. P. T. O. A., at that time, joined hands in the promulgation of a program calling for a Federal investigation of the industry, the enactment of Federal and state legislation governing trade practices and the drafting of a new form of standard contract.

In subsequent meetings in New York Sidney R. Kent stepped in and aided in the drafting of a liberal form of standard contract and a supplemental program of trade practice regulations which included a provision for the setting up of a national industry appeals board for the hearing and settlement of serious trade grievances. At exhibitor mass meetings in Chicago and New York the corrective program was rejected in favor of the legislative one and M. P. T. O. A., which regarded the Kent program as the solution for the most serious exhibitor grievances of the day, withdrew from the exhibitor coalition to pursue that program further. The failure of some distribution companies to accept the program hampered its full development and it went into the discard with the coming of NRA the following summer. Allied proceeded to throw its support to the Brookhart block booking legislation, which also failed.

Separate Conference Suggested

M. P. T. O. A. leaders, following the dictates of the organization's annual meeting of directors, held in Miami early last month, now propose to stage their own conference with distributors, acting through a small, serious, working group. They emphasize that the sessions will not be "grievance" meetings or exhibitor mass meetings, and that "pyrotechnics and speechmaking" are not to be expected. To avoid circumstances which encourage diversion from the main objectives of such a meeting, and which have resulted in conflict and failure in the past, the M. P. T. O. A. committeemen are prepared to insist upon a closed meeting.

The preliminary session on Thursday will be confined to a discussion of recognized trade abuses and possible means of correcting them, it is planned. Thereafter, an adjournment may be taken to obtain legal advice on whatever corrective methods may be advanced. A re-convening of the meetings for final negotiations and agreements is expected thereafter. It is pointed out that the principal aims of the meeting will center on modifications of sales policies which would be of benefit to all exhibitors. If, however, the conferences come up against modification of exhibition practices, no commitments for other than the M. P. T. O. A. membership could be made without calling in additional exhibitor representatives. This suggests the possibility of later meetings of a more general character.

The principal subjects outlined for discussion by M. P. T. O. A. include increased and unqualified cancellation rights; the establishment of local boards, empowered to act for distributors and exhibitors on clearance, zoning and grievances; openly negotiated uniform, maximum clearance and zoning schedules; regulation of overbuying and unfair cut-rate competition; adoption of a simple, standard form of exhibition contract; elimination of the score charge, designated play dates and forcing of shorts with features.

Governors Aid Fund

Governors of 44 states will head the committee sponsoring the Will Rogers Memorial Hospital Fund celebration which will be observed nationally during the week of May 22-28.

"Anything" Tops the Pittsburgh Take

PITTSBURGH, April 12.—"Anything Goes" was the highlight of an unusually strong Holy Week. It went $1,200 over normal for a total of $6,200 at the Warner.

The business pickup was due to the fact that the town had been starved for film fare since the flood.

In East Liberty, Warners made the Regent a first run spot pending the reopening of the Penn and Stanley and in that small house, "The Bohemian Girl" and "Man Hunt" turned in an excellent $2,000.

Even the Casino, dropping its scale from 40 to 25 cents, shot into high with "Two in the Dark" and "Too Tough to Kill," getting $2,700, while the Davis kept both feet on the ground at $4,000 with "Road Gang."

Total first run grosses were $14,700. Average is $12,500.

Estimated takings for the week ending April 9:

"TWO IN THE DARK" (Radio)
"TOO TOUGH TO KILL" (Col.)

M-G-M had nine, two and 12; Paramount, seven, five and four; Republic, one, three and four; Radio, four, three and two; Roach, one, zero and one; Twentieth Century-Fox, four, three and seven; Universal, three, two and two; Warners, seven, one and eight; independents, four, four and four.

More Bertrand "Experts" Hit Federal Rule

income tax. This Federal commission idea may have its points."

Pat Casey, studio labor representative:

"I haven't seen or heard of the report, but if you're right in saying that it recommends Government control of the industry you may quote me as saying that I believe the business should be permitted to regulate itself, to work out the solutions to its own problems. I am opposed to Governmental interference in industry."

Sol A. Rosenblatt, lawyer, former NRA film code administrator:

"I prefer not to comment until I have read the report and digested it. Bertrand was assigned to my staff but what his methods of study and work in preparing the report were, I don't know. No, I have no comment to make, either, on the principle of Government control of the industry."

Tyrce Dillard, former Code Authority aide, author of an NRA report on perpetuating the operations of that body and salvaging film code procedures; now a member of the M-G-M legal staff:

"Although the report as published in your paper appears rather complete I prefer not to comment until I have seen the report itself. As a matter of fact I am just writing for a copy of it. I am very much interested in the subjects covered. As you know, I prepared a similar report some time ago. It seems to me that the Bertrand report does not make clear how the proposed machinery is to be made to function. However, I'd prefer not to be quoted until I have studied the report."

McNair Opionionless

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 12.—Professor Malcolm P. McNair of the Harvard Bureau of Business Research, commenting on the Bertrand report, said to MOTION PICTURE DAILY:

"I am, in general, opposed to Federal regulation of business, though conceding that under exceptional circumstances it may be required in the public interest. I do not consider that I know enough about the film industry to have an opinion whether any form of Government supervision is needed."

Try New Hub Booking

BOSTON, April 12.—A booking arrangement new to the Hub, within recent years at least, was in effect at the Loew's State and Loew's Orpheum during Holy Week. These day-and-date first run situations split their second feature. Both houses played "Bohemian Girl," but the State showed "You May Be Next" for its second attraction, while the Orpheum spotted "Lady of Secrets." Inasmuch as the houses draw to different tastes, there is a possibility that this unique practice may be retained.

Warners Contest Title

HOLLYWOOD, April 12. — Maurice Conn of Ambassador-Conn Pictures will use the title, "G-Men of the North" for his current Kermit Maynard picture, despite a claim by Warners that they hold the rights to the title "G-Men." Conn claims that his title does not conflict with the Warner rights.

U. S. Seeking Quick Action In Trust Case

Admits St. Louis Appeal Blocks N. Y. Hearing

St. Louis, April 13.—In an effort to get a quick ruling on the major distributors' attempt to take the civil angles of the local anti-trust case to the U. S. Supreme Court the Dep't. of Justice has appealed to U. S. District Judge Charles B. Davis at Cape Girardeau, Mo., to cut 10 days from the time allowed for filing papers so that the deadline will be April 26 instead of May 4.

In seeking the change U. S. District Attorney Harry C. Blanton admits for the first time that the appeal acts as a stay on the New York hearing of the case now pending and urges speed on the court so that the appeal can reach the highest tribunal during the present term.

Blanton contends the move to take the case to the Supreme Court is an effort to delay the New York hearing; that, in the meantime, the failure to supply first run product to F. & M.

Lawyers Saved Paramount, They Say; Rest—Oh, Well!

By SHERWIN A. KANE

Paramount officials and the rank and file in the company's studios, theatres, exchanges and home office who may have thought their work during the year and a half of the company's bankruptcy, which ended last June, had something to do with Paramount's profitable operations which made a reorganization possible, probably would have been surprised to learn yesterday, as did judges of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals here, that their efforts contributed nothing worth mentioning insofar as the results attained are concerned. It was the bankruptcy trustees, the lawyers, and the securities' protective committees, not the Paramount management or personnel, nor even constantly improving business conditions, that rescued Paramount and restored it to a speaking acquaintance with bankers.

That much could be adduced from testimony given to the three circuit court judges yesterday by Arthur Ballantine of Root, Clark, Buckner & Ballantine, counsel to the Paramount trustees, and Alfred Cook of Cook, Nathan & Lehman, counsel to the Paramount stockholders' committee. The two, with others not yet heard by the court, are appealing from Fed-

The crush at the Astor where "The Great Ziegfeld" is now rounding its first week is so great and so many toes are being stepped upon, M-G-M is pondering a free chiropodist service to take care of acquired corns, declared Si Seadler yesterday. Seadler is an advertising man with a publicity consciousness.

He also declared the corn cure will be offered gratis to competitors along Broadway and even into 6th Ave., meaning the Music Hall.

Sears, with Major Albert Warner, vice-president in charge of distribution, and S. Charles Einfeld, in charge of publicity and advertising, passed through here en route to New York from the coast.

All Exhibitor Groups May Go Into Confabs

Getting Started First Move, Says MPTOA

Representatives of all exhibitor organizations may be asked to participate in the M. P. T. O. A.-sponsored conferences with distributors on trade practice abuses and problems once the actual negotiations are gotten under way, it was stated in the M. P. T. O. A. monthly bulletin distributed to members yesterday. The conferences are scheduled to get under way Thursday at the Cinema Club.

Explaining its stand on the inclusion of representatives of exhibitor organizations other than M. P. T. O. A. at the conferences, the bulletin states that the organization believes that the need of such a meeting is so urgent that the important thing is to get it started and, once under way, the conference itself can invite whatever additional exhibitor representation it believes is necessary.

"M. P. T. O. A. has taken the initiative in this matter," the bulletin declares, "not to exclude any other exhibitor organizations which may feel they are directly concerned with the ultimate results, but because we feel it is urgent, important to the whole

Fox Carries Appeal Up to Supreme Court

WASHINGTON, April 13.—William Fox has taken an appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court from the $235,082 contempt of court fine imposed in New York by U. S. District Judge William Bondy on Feb. 20. The fine was imposed because of Fox's failure to appear for examination in a suit by the Capitol Co. of San Francisco to recover on a Fox guarantee in connection with the Fox Theatre there.

Fox contended the order to appear was served in a railroad station in Pennsylvania outside the court's jurisdiction.

Music Charge Cut Demanded By Kuykendall

favorable action is taken on a letter received today from George L. Berry, head of the Council for Industrial Progress, asking that time be given to all interests which wish to appear.

With the appearance of Kuykendall, the committee found itself confronted with a question that heretofore has received little attention—that of the music and seating tax. The only committeemen present were Representatives Daley of Pennsylvania, acting as chairman, and Risk of Rhode Island, neither of whom was familiar with the mechanics of theatre operation.

Explaining that the rental of a picture is merely a copyright license of public performance, Kuykendall pointed out that the exhibitor cannot alter the film with respect to the music, dialogue or action. "It is usually out of the question even to omit a part of the photoplay because of the continuity, plot and dramatic action, without spoiling it as entertainment," he said. Accordingly, he continued, the exhibitor has no choice in the selection of the music which is issued with the picture.

Objection of Long Standing

"For many years theatre owners have complained of the music tax arbitrarily levied on all motion picture theatres by Ascap," Kuykendall asserted. "Since the introduction of motion pictures with sound recorded on the film with the picture the situation in this respect has completely changed," he said. "When we used silent films, the music, if any, was provided by the theatre's own orchestra, organist or other musicians. We had at least a theoretical chance to use music not controlled by the Ascap combine. In the years 1927 to 1929 this was completely changed; the music is now recorded with the dialogue and picture and we have no choice in the matter whatever. An unexpected technical development not only revolutionized our business but also, under the present copyright laws which were written many years before talking pictures were even thought of, placed us inescapably in the grip of the Ascap combine."

Kuykendall pictured for the committee the methods of the producers in securing musical material for pictures, explaining that they secure rights for productions. "Then enters the combine of composers and music publishers into the picture," he continued. "It seems that the producer who acquired the tune only got the right to use it in making the picture. He is protected against any other studio or producer using the same tune in another picture, but that's all. He did not, could not, buy the public performing rights for the music, as these were already assigned to Ascap by the composer.

"Also, I understand, the producer doesn't get even "recording" right, but has to pay a "recording fee" to the combine before he can even record the tune on a film. I don't know whether this is true or not, as we are not producers. We do have saddled on us as exhibitors, what is known as the "score charge," an extra charge on each picture over and above the copyright license fee or film rental, collected by most distributors.

Shades of Easter

Cincinnati, April 13.—One of the problems confronting local downtown managers the other day was the number of patrons, both adult and children, who carried baby chickens into theatres. Although in proper containers, the chicklets kept up a constant chirping—and nothing could be done about it.

One manager declares that some of them chirped, "Cheap, cheap."

"What this actually represents, Heaven only knows; we have been given all sorts of stories about it by various distributors, but exhibitors uniformly feel that it is an unwarranted extra charge for which there is no real justification. It's just a racket to get extra money out of us, for which we get exactly nothing in return. Protests by exhibitors against this unfair extra charge are of no avail; the distributors can see only the money they get out of it and won't give it up."

Exhibitors have been told that the score charge represents the recording license fee collected by Ascap. Kuykendall explained also that it is for the use of the patented sound recording apparatus in the studio, that it was to cover the small orchestra used on sets, the cost of writing dialogue and depreciation on new equipment when sound came in.

"We believe that it covers exactly nothing that is not a part of the negative cost which is recovered by the film rentals collected from us," he commented; "that it is just a racket to collect several millions of dollars from exhibitors in the United States.

Tax Piled on Tax

"But now comes the Ascap music taxes on top of this," he complained. "Before the producer can exhibit his own picture in his own theatre, regardless of how much he paid the composer for the tune or how much of a copyright license fee he pays to show the picture, Ascap levies a music tax on the theatre which he must pay or get soaked a minimum of $250 for each and every time the recorded music is reproduced in the theatre. And every other exhibitor, every theatre, is subject to the same tax levy by Ascap.

"The complaint of the exhibitor," Kuykendall continued, "is that the composer or publisher has already been paid well for the tune, and again paid for the right to record it, but that, while the tune is an inseparable part of the picture, it still cannot be exhibited until the music tax is paid by the theatre. Exhibitors naturally feel that they are forcing him to pay a third time for something that he has already bought and paid for, to wit: a license to publicly perform or reproduce in his theatre the motion picture as recorded by the studio, intact and complete."

There is no limit to the amount that can be exacted by Ascap, he told the committee, explaining that attempts have been made to increase it by as much as 1,000 per cent and that last year it was raised from 50 to 100 per cent. It is an entirely arbitrary charge. not based in any way on what it is worth, he declared, adding that "there is no competitive market. It is not based on how much music is used in the theatre. One tune in a year, and you are subject to the same amount of tax as though you had used 10,000 of their tunes. Ascap is the only organization to impose this tax, although, as far as exhibitors know, music not controlled by Ascap may be played in theatres, giving some composer the legal right to recover the $250 minimum damage. If the license to show the picture doesn't cover the recorded music, then we never know when we are subjecting ourselves to this penalty."

Discusses Seating Tax

Attacking the accuracy of estimates by Ascap officers earlier in the hearings in which they claimed that only $800,000 a year is collected from the seating tax, Kuykendall said that on the basis of the 10,098,920 seats in the 15,378 houses regularly showing sound pictures the organization should secure at least $1,500,000, unless many theatres are not paying the tax. He contended that except for the occasional musical, copyrighted music is not an essential part of most talking pictures, music being used in dramatic pictures only to accompany the main title and occasionally for atmosphere, and for this purpose non-copyrighted. classical or semi-classical music is used. Where music is used as a part of stage shows, he argued, the acts themselves should pay the royalty on any copyrighted material they use.

"What we want," he said in conclusion, "is to be able to buy a license under copyright for exhibiting recorded motion pictures in our theatres that is complete, intact and all-inclusive for everything that is recorded on the film (and cannot be separated from it) with no extra charges, music tax, score charge, etc., tacked on or jammed down our throats after we have bought and paid for the show. We feel that Ascap uses the present harsh and unreasonable penalties and minimum damage provisions unfairly to impose a wholly unjustified exaction on every film theatre, even down to the smallest country town house, that costs us millions of dollars and for which we get exactly nothing in return that we have not already bought and paid for. I think that the combine has it in its power under the present law to take every theatre in America away from its present owner. I see nothing in the law to stop them. We cannot escape their grip as long as we show talking pictures."

W. S. Hart's Action Against U. A. Starts

William S. Hart's breach of contract and conspiracy suit against United Artists began yesterday afternoon in N. Y. Supreme Court before Justice Phillip J. McCook. Hart is seeking punitive damages, no special amount being specified. Counsel for Hart told the jury that he entered into a contract with U. A. in 1925 whereby he and his wife, Mary Hart, were to produce two pictures.

It was stated that Hart and Joseph M. Schenck selected the script, "Tumbleweeds," and that the picture was made a cost of $302,000, that before the picture was issued, the defendant had contracts out for its showing at a low rate compared to other United Artists starring pictures and that United Artists gave its first showing a week before Christmas of 1925 against his request. The plaintiff charged that "Tumbleweeds" was shown in few theatres and that it was given poor bookings, so that it made only $270,000, at a loss to the producing company of $30,000.

Counsel for United Artists indicated that the defendant endeavored to give as favorable bookings and exploitation as possible to the picture, but that it failed for three reasons: First, Westerns were dead; second, Hart was passe; third, that he was the lover in the picture and this role did not appeal to the fans, so that instead of a hoped for gross of $800,000 the total intake was about $450,000. The idea of a second picture was then abandoned. Hart took the stand during the last hour of the court session and described various conversations with the defendant and told of the making of the agreement. He will resume as witness this morning.

industry and should be started now. After the negotiations get under way, the joint conference itself can invite any other interests they desire to participate, including any of the local and state exhibitor organizations which are not as yet active members of M. P. T. O. A. Our sole purpose is to get it started. Support and encouragement of reputable exhibitors everywhere is welcome, as well as sensible advice and serious suggestions."

To date, the local I. T. O. A. is the only exhibitor organization which has asked to have representatives admitted at the conferences. The M. P. T. O. A.'s stand, as set forth in its bulletin, is regarded as that organization's answer to the I. T. O. A. request, as well as to other exhibitor organizations interested in the conferences.

Virtually every major distributor has signified his intention of sending responsible representatives to the meetings. All companies undoubtedly will be represented when the meetings get under way.

Ed Kuykendall, M. P. T. O. A. president, is expected here from Washington late today or some time tomorrow. The remaining members of the M. P. T. O. A. conference committee are also expected here tomorrow. They are Lewen Pizor, Philadelphia; O. C. Lam, Rome, Ga.; Charles E. Williams, Omaha; Jack Miller, Chicago, and E. C. Griffith, Oklahoma City.

The M. P. T. O. A. bulletin urged members and all other theatres to support the Will Rogers Memorial Hospital fund campaign which will be observed by the industry during the week beginning May 22. The bulletin points out that the campaign is deserving of complete industry support as the Rogers Memorial Hospital at Saranac Lake will be available to every sick and needy member of the industry, whether employed in theatres, exchanges, studios or business offices.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Showboat"

Hollywood, April 13.—Here is musical drama certain to thrill. Lavishly, but tastefully, produced; intelligently directed, its acting splendid, the picture impressively combines entertainment and commercial essentials completely assuring class-mass popularity.

The motivating story is deeply human in character, continually keyed to stir tender and sympathetic emotions as well as a love drama hitting right at the heart. Its music, particularly Paul Robeson's singing of "Ol' Man River," was received by a preview audience with thunderous applause and actually is an artistic masterpiece. The melodies rendered by Allan Jones, Irene Dunne and Helen Morgan, in addition to the charm of the score and the choral features, potently embellish the appealing plot power.

The scope of modern production technique, allowing the fullest in effects, faithfully preserves and accentuates the full qualities of the original story by Edna Ferber. The script and lyrics by Oscar Hammerstein, 2nd, and the music by Jerome Kern, plus the cast selections by Carl Laemmle, Jr., the producer, placed in the hands of James Whale, the director, afford opportunity for the greatest effort in his career.

His handling extracted the full values which the vehicle provided. As the picture was shown here, and accepting a preview audience's reactions as a gauge, everyone associated with the production will share in the credit of participating in what is probably the most important Universal production in years.

The preliminary sequences portray gaiety, color, glamour and excitement of the arrival of Charles Winninger's showboat. The dramatic trend enters as Donald Cook thrashes Arthur Hohl for trifling with his wife, Helen Morgan. Preluded by Robeson's rendition of "Ol' Man River" to hint further at dramatic contrast, romance enters with a tuneful meeting of Jones and Miss Dunne.

Forced by his rigorously moralistic wife, Helen Westley, to discharge Miss Morgan and Cook, Winninger, against her wishes, installs the lovers as the show's leads. As comedy, music and excitement fulfill their functions, Jones and Miss Dunne marry and leave the showboat after the birth of their baby. Living in poverty, deserted by her husband, and the child placed in a convent, Miss Dunne is found by Queenie Smith and Sammy White. Giving her a chance when she is sliding, Miss Morgan recognizes her erstwhile protege and disappears. Miss Dunne, found later by Winninger, goes on to great heights under his showmanship guidance.

Subsequently, Miss Dunne retires from the stage to train her daughter, Sunny O'Day, in her footsteps. On the night of the girl's debut, her mother recognizes the pathetic doorman as her husband. As both, reunited, stand by to complete the love drama, the daughter is acclaimed a worthy successor to her mother.

Convincing performances, contributed by Miss Dunne, Jones, Winninger, Miss Westley, Miss Smith, White, Miss Morgan, Robeson and the lengthy supporting cast, leave nothing to be desired. Similarly, the music is a treat, certain to charm any and all in both specialty as well as in choral numbers. It has a quality of lasting impression. For spectacle, "Showboat" has logically woven in all the color and excitement of the showboat era along the Mississippi, plus the cabaret and theatre glamour of the day. Dance arrangements by Leroy Printz are always in the spirit of the picture's mood.

A show that will grip the imagination and sate the appetite of any kind of audience, "Showboat" is destined for grand grosses if showmen will only put half the effort into the selling that the producers, writers, directors and players did in the making.

Looking 'Em Over

"Lorenzino de Medici"

(Nuovo Mondo)

An elaborate and well executed picture, this latest importation from Italy offers considerably more in the way of entertainment than did the first production shown at the Cine Roma, New York's all-Italian theatre. Set in the Florence of the days of the Medicis, the film tells the story of the assassination of the Duke Alexander, who ruled the city with a ruthless and bloodthirsty hand, by Lorenzino, one of the famous Medici family, who governed the city of Florence for many years.

The film has been produced lavishly, and with a ring of authenticity in costuming, settings and atmosphere. The cast is extremely capable, and the film, studded with sub-title translations of dialogue, is easy to follow even without a knowledge of the language, and presents an episode of history which should be of interest to those unfamiliar with Italian.

The younger de Medici is ostensibly the friend and counsellor of the duke, but in reality he is bent on freeing the people of Florence from the tyranny of the duke, and bringing about the restoration of the de Medicis. He is secretly in love with the exiled daughter of a former de Medici adherent, and when the latter returns secretly to the city, Lorenzino sees him, but refuses to reveal his plans. Working in his own way, despite the distrust of his own group, de Medici finally kills the duke, frees his sweetheart's father, and flees with her to Venice.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 88 minutes. "G."

"Federal Agent"

(Winchester-Republic)

While the production is generally adequate, the histrionic gyrations of the supporting cast as they act out their roles in this tale of G-Man activities hardly ever become convincing. However, there are some moments which, although they lack novelty, should provide what thrills are necessary to satisfy.

William Boyd, the Federal agent, is ready to start his vacation when he is assigned to a case on which his buddy was killed by a criminal outfit seeking the formula of a super-explosive. Boyd arrives on the scene, makes his contacts and enlists the aid of another agent, George Cooper, who offers the strained comedy sequences. Together they weave the net which eventually incriminates the gang. Irene Ware, who is involved with the gang with a vengeful motive, is thought by Boyd to be allied with the wrong side. Eventually, with her assistance, he brings about the end of the leader, Don Alvarado, who meets his end after the fashion of cartoon villains. He is slowly decomposed when he crashes into a collection of acids and chemicals in the final fight.

Others in the cast, schemers and otherwise, are Charles A. Browne and Lenita Lane. The screen play is by Barry Barringer. Sam Newfield directed.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

"Special Investigator"

(Radio)

By shrewdly mixing western small town and ranch backgrounds with city atmosphere Radio has given Richard Dix a vehicle that furnishes appeal to both types of his fans—the western enthusiasts and the girls who like to see him dolled up by high-priced tailors.

As the story opens he has just won a case as attorney for a racketeer and has been sharply censured by a judge. A short time later his brother, a G-Man, is shot by a gang that has robbed a bank of gold bullion.

Dix pays off a girl friend with the racketeer's check and starts west on a tip that the robbers will dispose of their loot by selling it as ore from a mine. He sets up the practice of law in a town near Reno and begins making contacts with the mobsters, but romantic complications set in when Margaret Callahan, sister of the chief gunman, Joseph Sawyer, arrives.

In the final roundup the shooting is done in the dark, so that the emphasis is placed on the union between Dix and Miss Callahan.

U. S. Seeking Quick Action In Trust Case

for the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central continues; that the dismissal without prejudice of the civil hearing here by Judge Molyneaux was within the rules of the Supreme Court; that the new case has been strengthened by the inclusion of individual defendants; that the decision of Judge Molyneaux that the acquittal in the criminal case was not res adjudicata was according to precedent, because the jury's verdict was not an affirmative verdict of innocence, but simply a finding that defendants had not been proven guilty beyond a reasonable doubt, and that the appeal was solely an attempt to delay the New York hearing.

Judge George H. Moore and Judge Molyneaux refused to hear the action here by disqualifying themselves. This made it necessary for Blanton to go before Judge Davis at Cape Girardeau.

David Loew's Joe E. Brown Films to RKO

Releasing Deal Is Set With Leo Spitz

David L. Loew has cast his fortunes with RKO. With Joe E. Brown, now completing his contract with Warners, as his first star, the former vice-president of Loew's, Inc. and son of the founder of that international enterprise, is understood to have signed a distributing deal for the forthcoming Brown comedies with Leo Spitz.

Brown goes over to Loew about August, or perhaps slightly later this year. The producing alliance between Loew and the comic runs for a period of two years and calls for the production of three features a year.

Distribution through RKO is assumed to prelude a deal now in negoiation whereby B. P. Schulberg will oin Radio and was seen last night by those familiar with Spitz's activiies as merely one in a series of outside deals to come.

Both Loew and Spitz were unavailable for comment regarding the Brown deal but a formal announcement on the subject is expected to be made momentarily.

Felix F. Feist Passes On After a Lingering Illness

By RED KANN

Felix F. Feist, who only a few weeks ago in the home of M. B. Shanberg at Miami Beach had wished for death, at 2.30 this morning had that wish fulfilled.

But before peace came to him, he had passed through a valley of suffering such as it might seem no mortal person could traverse.

It is less than a year ago that Feist returned from his first trip abroad, bronzed and apparently hearty, filled with the exciting flush of new scenes captured, thrilled with the beauty of the Old World, nostalgic for the day, now never to come, when he might return once more to visit the Louvre, to bask in the atmosphere of the older culture which is Europe's. More than anything else beyond his son, Felix, Jr. and his

HOLLYWOOD, April 14.—Paramount's "A" pictures will be budgeted at $500,000 and the "B" films will run about $200,000 or less, it was made known today by John E. Otterson. Both figures will be "elastic."

The decision was arrived at after a series of conferences at the studio which have been under way for the past week, with Adolph Zukor, Watterson Rothacker, William LeBaron, Russell Holman and others participating.

"With the exception of four, but with the number of specials not yet definitely determined, Paramount will set budgets of $500,000 for 'A' pictures," Otterson said. "The figure is elastic, however. Wherever a picture can be brought in below that cost, this procedure will be encouraged,

Nine National Distributors To Join Talks

Agree to Meet Exhibitors On Trade Practices

All of the nine national distributors yesterday had notified M. P. T. O. A. that they would participate in the exhibitor-distributor conferences on trade practices which will get under way following a luncheon in the Rose Room of the Cinema Club at 1 P. M. tomorrow.

The indicated distributor representatives who will attend the conferences are Abe Montague, Columbia; William F. Rodgers, M-G-M; Neil Agnew, Paramount; Ned E. Depinet or Jules Levy, RKO; W. Ray Johnston, Republic; John D. Clark, Twentieth Century-Fox; Paul Lazarus, United Artists; James R. Grainger, Universal, and Major Albert Warner, Gradwell L. Sears or A. W. Smith, Jr., for Warners.

A change in the M. P. T. O. A. representation will result from the inability of L. C. Griffith of Oklahoma City to attend the conferences. Griffith was confined to his home with influenza yesterday and it was considered doubtful that he would be sufficiently recovered in time to attend the conferences. Ed Kuykendall, M. P. T. O. Laemmle, Jr., Quits 'U' Officially Saturday

HOLLYWOOD, April 14.—Carl Laemmle, Jr., has asked to be relieved of his producer responsibilities at Universal, according to a statement issued today at the office of Charles R. Rogers, and will definitely sever his association with the studio on Saturday. The decision has been made of his own free will, it was said. He will announce his future plans shortly.

Laemmle, Jr., expressed his regret at leaving his many friends at Universal and voiced a sincere wish for the success of the studio under the new regime.

Leishman Stays for Choice of Successor

LONDON, April 14.—E. D. Leishman, who resigned recently as chairman of the committee on management of RKO Pictures, Ltd., and RKO International, will remain until his successor has been chosen.

Action on this is expected in New York next week when Phil Reisman, who is scheduled to arrive there Tuesday on the Ile de France, will go into conference with company heads.

Talk Theatre Payments for Rogers Fund

Behind the current campaign for the Will Rogers Memorial Hospital Fund is the hope that collections from the public in the nation's theatres ultimately will be dropped and the necessary funds raised through theatre memberships. These memberships are to be predicated on seating capacities.

The scale follows:

$15 for theatres seating from 500 to 1,000.
$20 for theatres ranging from 1,000 to 2,000.
$25 for theatres over 2,000.

Early response from thousands of letters dispatched from the organizational committeee, of which Major Leslie E. Thompson of RKO is chairman, in the last few days indicates many theatre operators favor the idea. Thompson explained at a press conference yesterday the indications that such a plan might develop nationally were very promising.

Collections in the theatres of the five major circuits—Paramount, National, Loew's, RKO and Warners—will prevail from May 22-28 inclusive. With this as a cushion on which the necessary funds will rest, the committee is now directing its energies toward enlisting the cooperation of independent circuits and independent theatres.

A general antipathy toward fund-raising by subscription gathered from patrons who have paid their way into theatres in search of entertainment prevails on the part of the major circuits, but it is felt no adequate substitute method has so far been conceived. In the case of independent theatres which either do not care to or have no facilities to collect money in this fashion, the membership subscription plan has been evolved. The anticipation goes with it that the latter plan will extend itself until the point is finally reached in future drives where the collection system may be abandoned.

The drive is being developed and handled on an industry-wide basis. The approximate 3,000 local chairmen lined up by the Will Rogers Memorial Commission will serve on behalf of the fund. Contemplated, but not yet set up, is a division of the country into its exchange centers with an authorized fund representative, probably an exchangeman, in each, to whom applications of the sick would go. Any film employe requiring medical treatment for tuberculosis is to be eligible, the number to be li ited only by the capacity of the h pital at Saranac Lake, N. Y.

Campaign plans include a trailer which Shirley Temple, Irvin S. Col Lowell Thomas, Bing Crosby a others will appear. Those theat which elect the membership route their contributions will be given one-sheet for permanent display.

THE GREAT ZIEGFELD

Glorified by the critics!

"It was the kind of evening Florenz Ziegfeld, Jr., would have enjoyed — a bang-up M-G-M premiere of a musical show LAVISH enough to fulfill the dream of any producer. A film as excellent as this is a godsend. Wm. Anthony McGuire has done an astonishing job with the script...The performances of Luise Rainer and William Powell, would have put over any film. There is Fannie Brice herself, at her funniest; a clever impersonation of Eddie Cantor; and a startling glimpse of A. A. Trimble portraying Will Rogers. There's Harriet Hoctor toe-dancing; Myrna Loy charming as the young Billie Burke; grand comedy performances by Frank Morgan, the dancing Ray Bolger, Reginald Owen and Nat Pendleton . . . It's a show Ziegfeld would have been proud to own, filled with the most beautiful girls I've ever seen on a screen; after three crowded hours, the audience was eager for more." —EILEEN CREELMAN, N. Y. Sun

"The most SPECTACULAR film to come out of Hollywood... fun, melody and loveliness. Spectacle after spectacle. Such lavishness never has been lavished upon a screen...William Powell performs with charm and zeal. Luise Rainer and Myrna Loy are gorgeous and glamorous . . . The picture is magnificent." —BLAND JOHANESON, N. Y. Daily Mirror

"In 'The Great Ziegfeld' the cinema pays lavish and SENTIMENTAL tribute to the most famous American showman since Barnum . . . It is a typical Ziegfeld show—beautiful, expansive, costly, tuneful, romantic and overpowering. Achieves the most beautiful and imaginative effect in this field yet presented." —RICHARD WATTS, Jr., N. Y. Herald Tribune

"If you want a history of musical comedy during the past forty years, 'The Great Ziegfeld' will give it to you; if you want to know how pulchritude became an institution, why bald-headed men sit in front row seats, where Fannie Brice, Eddie Cantor, Will Rogers, W. C. Fields and others got their start, or why Anna Held left home, 'The Great Ziegfeld' will satisfy your curiosity. All the names associated with the Ziegfeld tradition have been incorporated in a story that has HUMOR, humanity, romance and pathos. You will never see another musical film that exceeds it in opulence, inventiveness, splendor."
—THORNTON DELEHANTY, N. Y. Post

"For sheer beauty, splendor, opulence, this glittering spectacle takes its place as the last word in eye-and-ear entertainment. Practically a dozen or more musical pictures rolled into one. An extravaganza of such rich proportions that it runs three hours. It is a GLAMOROUS account of the illustrious producer's romance, ambitions and achievements. Unquestionably a motion picture event." —ROSE PELSWICK, N.Y. Journal

"A splendid picture, dazzling in the magnitude of its conception, brilliant in magnificence of execution. A production the great 'Ziggy', himself, would have viewed with proud satisfaction . . . Tells a warm, pulsating HUMAN story of individuals—those glittering, glamorous personalities of theatrical royalty. The spectacular climax is attained in the utterly thrilling presentation of the 'A Pretty Girl Is Like A Melody' number. We recall nothing so breath-taking on any screen. Laughter is sprinkled through the picture's scenes. There should be special mention for every player. Robert Z. Leonard's direction crowns his many triumphs."
—REGINA CREWE, N. Y. American

"For once in their lives the producers of a pet picture may drag out the word COLOSSAL . . . If ever a picture was produced on a grand, lavish, extravagant and glittering enough scale to be so described, it is M-G-M's 'The Great Ziegfeld'. The dialogue sparkles . . . Ziegfeld is superbly represented by William Powell. Fannie Brice is inimitable. Her meeting with Ziegfeld is one of the funniest things Miss Brice has done on or off the stage . . . Harriet Hoctor shines. Ray Bolger brings the house down. Myrna Loy is beautiful. The balance of the huge cast is excellent."
—KATE CAMERON, N. Y. Daily News

"A lavish and ornate M-G-M spectacle that is colossal, big, stupendous, overwhelming, BREATH-TAKING, awe-inspiring. One spectacle follows another in dizzying succession, one Ziegfeld show is piled on the next until the audience is left speechless and gaspless. A mighty achievement." —LEO MISHKIN, N. Y. Telegraph

"Thoroughly Ziegfeldian. Has the opulence, the lavishness, the expansiveness and the color of the old Follies ...It has the GLITTERING sets, the exuberantly extravagant song and dance numbers, the brilliant costumes, the whole sweeping panoply of a Ziegfeld show produced with a princely disregard for cost...One of its spectacular numbers, 'A Pretty Girl Is Like A Melody,' never has been equalled on the musical comedy stage or screen." —FRANK S. NUGENT, N. Y. Times

"A production as LUXURIOUS and lavish as any the late Florenz Ziegfeld, Jr. ever produced. The theatrical ups and downs of the Glorifier of the American Girl offered the very stuff of which zestful and glamorous films are born—music, romance, excitement, adventure, color. A blend of homage, humor and heartbeat. A film that should command your immediate attention."
—WILLIAM BOEHNEL, N. Y. World-Telegram

"Colossal is the easiest adjective. A tribute to the late showman, 'The Great Ziegfeld'."
—WINSTON BURDETT, Brooklyn Eagle

Attack Made On Copyright Changes Now

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, April 14.—The enactment of any sort of copyright legislation at the present session of Congress was sharply opposed today by representatives of distributors as highly dangerous to American interests.

Appearing before the House Patents Committee, which expects to end its sessions tomorrow, Edwin P. Kilroe and Fulton Brylawski warned that amendments to the Berne convention which would strike at the very heart of American copyright law were to be considered at the Brussels conference this year.

Urging that consideration of the legislation be postponed until next session, Kilroe told the committee that none of the three pending bills was satisfactory to the distributors, but suggested that by taking the best provisions of each a measure might be prepared which would solve many current problems.

The session today was enlivened by the acid criticism by Representatives Deen of Georgia and O'Malley of Wisconsin of the action of Representative Daly of Pennsylvania in assuming the chairmanship of the committee in the absence of Chairman Sirovich of New York and Acting-Chairman Lanham of Texas. Both complained that although they outrank Daly, neither had been asked to take charge. They admitted they would not have accepted in view of the "embarrassing" situation the committee has been placed in because of its unorthodox method of conducting the hearings.

"My skin is rather thick," Daly retorted dryly.

Film Industry Big Spender

The film industry is the greatest user of copyrighted material in the world, spending $15,000,000 to $25,000,000 a year, with seven or eight of the major companies spending $2,000,000. The only concern of the industry is to obtain a law which is clear, but none of the pending bills is acceptable, he said.

Kilroe listed the proposed merger of production and exhibition rights, the provision for a 56-year copyright with the owner limited to 28 years in disposing of his rights, and the granting of copyright to interpretations as objections to the measures. He declared that no lucid explanation of the production-exhibition rights clause has been given, and that Supreme Court interpretation would be necessary before its extent could be determined.

He said that exhibitors might find themselves adversely affected by the provision, although it has been said they sought it. Kilroe said the producer would have to acquire the exhibition rights for the exhibitor, which would increase the cost of the picture, but this would not protect the theatre owner from the seating tax if he used any music other than that on films appearing on his screen.

Both Kilroe and Brylawski opposed adherence to the Berne Convention on the ground that if the pending amendments are adopted at the Brussels conference they will seriously impair the rights of American authors. Brylawski pointed out that the pending bills contain reservations designed to protect Americans and declared that we could not enter the Convention with reservations, and that if we did join the union no laws inconsistent with those of the Berne Convention could apply.

Discussing the Duffy Bill, he urged the extension to features of the protection to be granted newsreels against damages for the innocent inclusion in a current events scene of copyrighted material. Such material, although adding nothing to the feature, would subject it to charges of infringement, he pointed out.

The discovery of a possible new method of evasion makes necessary a change in the provisions exempting from royalty charges performances to which no admission is charged, he said. The provision was put into the Duffy Bill, and so written, at the suggestion of the industry, as to bar the showing of pictures, but it now becomes possible for the sound accompaniment to be used, he declared. He noted the "Hollywood Hotel" radio program where scenes are given from films, with the material taken from the film's sound track. The same device might be adopted elsewhere under the bill, he said.

Hess on Damage Clause

Gabriel L. Hess, M.P.P.D.A. general counsel, devoted himself to a discussion of the minimum damage clause and pirating. He criticized exhibitors for seeking elimination of the $250 minimum clause, declaring it offered them their best protection against dishonest competitors. He read a letter from Stanley D. Kane, secretary of Allied Theatre Owners of the Northwest, reporting the rejection of a membership application from a known bicycler. Kane, in his letter, declared that no "independent exhibitor organization can succeed while condoning or attempting to condone racketeering of this type."

"Except for minimum statutory damages," Hess said, "there are no practical remedies by which the distributors can protect themselves and honest exhibitors from pirated exhibitions. Minimum damages solve a problem for the courts by Congress taking legislative notice of the fact that compensatory damages will make infringers realize that the price of not licensing is not merely the license fee withheld, but a part of the cost of detection and procedure under copyright against non-licensing users," he declared.

Hess continued, "I earnestly ask that before any legislation amending our copyright law be favorably reported, the following be preserved:

"(1) The right to protect our licensed customers from unfair competition by permitting us to control the time, place, method and manner of exhibition of our pictures under our copyrights. This requires eliminating the word 'publicly' qualifying the exhibition right in the Duffy and Daly Bills and any requirement of admission charges, as applied under the Duffy Bill.

"(2) The preservation of minimum statutory damages to deter piracies, to insure mass licensing and to provide compensation for expense in disclosing and proceeding against infringers.

"(3) The preservation of the Townsend amendment of 1912 in the damage section, whereby damages are restricted to the infringing manufacturer or distributor."

Allied States submitted a brief asking amendment of the Duffy Bill to provide that all copyright assignments shall include the right to reproduce sound as well as action, so as to eliminate triple charges upon exhibitors for sound pictures. In all other respects the organization approves the Duffy Bill, and will not insist on its amendment if controversy is to result, it was said. "It merely means that the producer-distributor shall bargain for and obtain all necessary rights and embody them in a single license for a single charge," it was explained.

Allied also opposed any effort to maintain the minimum damage clause, alleging that it had been used as a club where purely innocent violations had occurred.

The hearings will close tomorrow with the final appearance of Nathan Burkan, Ascap attorney, who will discuss the legal situation.

ceipts, the Astor has played to S.R.O., and standees every performance thereafter.

A midnight show on Saturday, which ended at 3:45 A.M. Sunday morning, brought a gross of $1,128 and was the first attempted by M-G-M with any attraction at the same theatre since "Grand Hotel." The advance sale is running at a heavy rate and all is smiles around the M-G-M office.

M-G-M is so enthused over early results of out-of-town engagements that it already has drawn the conclusion that roadshow business of pre-depression days is again in the cards with attractions that rate. Currently, the picture is playing two-a-day in Boston, Chicago, Detroit and Philadelphia and opens at the Carthay Circle, Hollywood; the Capitol, St. Petersburg, Fla.; Victory, Tampa; and Florida at Daytona tonight. Monday night saw premieres at the Paramount, Miami Beach and Grand at Orlando. Immediate future dates include the National, Washington, and His Majesty's, Montreal, April 19; Arcade, Jacksonville, April 22; Hanna, Cleveland and Nixon, Pittsburgh, April 26.

Admission Tax Bill Passes N. J. Assembly

TRENTON, April 14.—The theatre tax bill which has been debated in one form or another in the New Jersey Assembly for weeks was passed tonight by a vote of 31-25.

The measure calls for a tax of one cent on every 25 cents of theatre admission or fraction thereof.

The bill goes to the Senate tomorrow.

Court Refuses To Allow U.S. Case Changes

sponded by pointing out that their answers to the Government's complaint were due on Thursday and each said that an answer would be filed on that day. Rice's fears that further delays might be sought appeared to be allayed by these assurances.

The Government attorneys, it was said, expected that new defense motions might be made on Thursday in place of the filing of answers. The defendants, however, probably will set up the question of res adjudicata in their answers as a separate defense, Government attorneys believe. This question, involving points raised in the defendants' proposed appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court, might have to be decided before the actual taking of testimony in the trial in U. S. District Court here.

Russell Hardy, chief of Government counsel in the case, leaves today for Cape Girardeau, Mo., where he will argue the Government's motion on Friday to advance the time in which defendants must file papers in their Supreme Court appeal from May 4 to April 26. In its Missouri motion the Government alleges that the appeal is a move to delay trial of the new Federal action here and that, unless the appeal is advanced, it cannot be heard by the Supreme Court until next fall, in the meantime delaying trial in the district court here.

Rice, however, stated yesterday that he believed a postponement of the New York trial in the face of the pending Supreme Court appeal was entirely within the discretion of the local district court, even though the Government was to lose its Missouri motion to hasten hearing of the appeal. He said that any move to delay trial here until the Supreme Court appeal had been decided would be opposed by Government counsel.

daughter, Mrs. Myron Nast, and his grandchildren, Feist wanted to travel when he felt his period of service to Nicholas M. Schenck and M-G-M had run its course.

Yet, as he hoped, he also put the thought out of mind. Metro to him was an all-consuming something, a responsibility which he welcomed and for which he was determined to work without end. Feist always bent his personal inclinations to his high post. When his health began to fail Metro was waging its fight in Chicago and preparing to build theatres there. Feist embarked on trip after trip when he should have been nursing his health. After Al Lichtman joined the company and Metro's new sales policy, having been evolved, had to be sold to exhibitors up and down the land, Feist joined in that barnstorming tour when, again, he should have been under medical care.

Probably, he would have continued at what faster sacrifice now makes no difference had he not been dispatched to Hot Springs a few months ago, there to seek a way to recovery. It failed to help. From Hot Springs the losing trail led to Miami Beach, there to make Feist a house guest of Shanberg, his traveling companion.

Arthritis, the physicians said it was. And for arthritis, they treated him. Treatments of various sorts brought no encouraging response. The teeth maybe, thought the doctors. And so they began to extract his teeth, hunting for the root of the trouble. Then, only about two weeks ago the ailing man went into Mt. Sinai Hospital here in New York. "No visitors" was the order.

The condition grew worse. His children were hurried east from Hollywood by 'plane a few days ago. Feist's associates at Metro where he was held in an affection and in an esteem matured over the long 11 years he had been general sales manager there spoke in whispers and held their breath over the weekend; the end was that close. Hospital bulletins took on more ominous overtones yesterday and last night. "Condition unchanged," was one. "Very badly off, condition unchanged" was another. Finally came the word which brought Feist the relief he so ardently had wished for and which told his industry and his innumerable friends that one of its sweetest characters; one of its leading executives had traversed his earthly span.

Medical men, discussing such things dispassionately, agreed that against the ravages of cancer there was no stoppage and that the kindliest relief for Feist was the death that finally came to him during the night.

Twenty-nine years of and in this business, Felix F. Feist came from the advertising field to motion pictures in 1907 as advertising manager of the Kinemacolor Co. of America. In two years, he was elected president of Celebrated Players Film Corp. of Chicago where he remained until 1913. Then, opportunity turned up in the guise of the general managership as well as the secretaryship, of the Equitable Pictures Corp., later to be merged with World Film.

It was in 1920 that the Goldwyn Dist. Corp., in recognition of his rapid strides forward, made Feist a vice-president and its general sales manager. Two years later he joined Joseph M. Schenck, then an independent producer, as supervisor of distribution where he remained for five years. In 1925 he was appointed general sales manager of M-G-M, his last post.

Feist was inordinately proud of the company which employed him. He was proud of its record over the years; glad to work for the "General," as Nick Schenck's associates call him. He was a distributor, a thoroughly dyed-in-the-wool distributor, of course, and, as such, it was entirely natural that some exhibitors constantly thirsted for his scalp. And yet, presuming to talk at large for these theatremen, it must have followed that, differences or no as the seasons unfolded, they, of necessity, could not but respect the measure in which he executed his commitment to his company and to his business conscience.

When his wife died months ago, Feist felt the loss very keenly. The first shock over, the permanent shock remained. But Feist, wisely, took the only course that served, in measure, to propel his personal difficulties into the background. He immersed himself so thoroughly in work, went at it with such prodigious ferocity that his last year's trip overseas became a necessity which resisted further challenge. It would seem now that the benefits then gained either were fleeting or the malignance of his malady had advanced too far. The path, from that juncture, led steadily downward.

His worldly chapter is completed now, but in the minds of those who knew this man the warm glow of his friendship will not so soon be dimmed.

but there will be no sacrifice of quality to economy. If, while in work, an 'A' picture promises to be worthy of further investment, funds will be provided in excess of the amount established."

In an informal discussion of current product he said that several "B's," particularly "Hands Across the Sea," had proven better investments than "A's." He also believed that with the additional expense of a couple of star names "Until We Meet Again" would be an "A" picture and that is one of the reasons why budgets for both "A's" and "B's" must be flexible.

It is understood that the complete program for the new season will not be announced before the convention.

had been added to the committee and will attend in place of Griffith.

Jack Miller of Chicago, a member of the exhibitor committee, also arrived yesterday. O. C. Lam, Rome, Ga.; Lewen Pizor, Philadelphia, and Charles E. Williams, Omaha, the remaining members of the committee, are expected here today.

Indications are that the initial conference tomorrow will consist of general discussions of the objectives of the meeting and possible solutions for all trade practice problems which can be acted on at this time. Thereafter, individual subjects such as clearance and zoning, conciliation programs, exhibition contract revisions and others, may be assigned to committees for discussion and recommendation. Modifications of sales policy, including increased cancellation, abolition of the score charge, the forcing of shorts with features and other subjects may be taken up with distribution companies individually.

Before seeking solutions of such general industry problems as the negotiation of uniform clearance and zoning schedules; the establishment of local boards for the conciliation of trade grievances and regulation of exhibition practices, the conference is expected to receive representatives from all interested exhibitor groups.

The plaque is the work of the Italian sculptor, Carlos Taliabue.

Reserve Ruling on Para. Fee Appeals

over the Paramount court proceedings, disallowed both petitions in their entirety. The two firms are appealing from that decision.

W. D. Whitney, of the Cravath office, made the appeals for both his firm and Kuhn, Loeb. He reviewed the work of the two in first organizing the principal creditors' committees and in advancing a plan of reorganization to such a point that it supplied more than the basis of the plan which was finally approved by the court and under which Paramount was reorganized. Judge Coxe has held that while these labors were valuable and should have qualified them for an allowance, a latter day change in the position of the two in the reorganization ultimately disqualified them. This was the naming of Kuhn, Loeb officers as defendants in suits for recovery brought in behalf of Paramount by the bankruptcy trustees. When the suits were filed Kuhn, Loeb concluded that for the good of the reorganization it should withdraw from active participation in the proceedings, which it did. Judge Coxe held that this withdrawal, in advance of the presentation of the plan to the court, disqualified Kuhn, Loeb and its attorneys as "reorganization managers," as which they would have been eligible for a fee. Although creditors' committees subsequently stated that the bankers and their attorneys were employed by them, Judge Coxe responded that the committees were without authority to retain them.

An appeal by the stockholders' protective committee from Judge Coxe's allowance at $10,000 of an application for $33,116 for Coverdale & Colpitts, accountants employed by the committee, was also heard yesterday. The appeals of Root, Clark, Buckner & Ballantine, counsel to the Paramount trustees, and Cook, Nathan & Lehman, attorneys for the stockholders' committee, were heard the preceding day. The Root, Clark firm applied for a total of $950,000 and was allowed a total of $450,000. The Cook firm asked $250,000 and was allowed $115,000.

Seven additional appellants whose petitions for fees were either reduced or disallowed by Judge Coxe will be heard by the Circuit Court some time next month.

Futter-Keene Suit Goes to U. S. Court

Los Angeles, April 14.—Walter Futter's suit for an injunction to prevent Tom Keene from working in independent pictures has been transferred from the Superior Court to U. S. District Court, and is now before Judge Leon Yankvitch.

Keene insists his contract cannot be for exclusive services, as it allows working in major productions. He contends, therefore, that he cannot be enjoined from seeking work.

A refusal by Judge Yankvitch to grant the injunction would upset a number of non-exclusive contracts, as these pacts have been standard.

Long-Termer to Wolfe

Hollywood, April 14.—Mannie Wolfe was today given a new long-term contract as Paramount story head.

Breaking Out

It came to light at the RKO sales convention in Chicago last year, at the dinner which climaxed the convention, Leon J. Bamberger and what apparently was his suppressed desire leapt right to the fore. As master of ceremonies, he displayed a comedy sense and feet that proved themselves very nimble.

"The guy must have wanted to be an actor," remarked a couple of topflight Radio executives.

Bamberger still does and, moreover, is doing something about it. He and his wife have the leads in a revue called "More Neighbors" which will be put on at the Community House of Temple Israel at New Rochelle April 18.

President's Talk Campaign Keynote

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

Washington, April 14.—"More employment and adequate pay" was seen today by political observers in Washington as the Democratic labor plank in the coming campaign platform.

Evaluating President Roosevelt's address at Baltimore last night, political soothsayers saw in his warning that unless industry acts the Government will give consideration to the question of hours and wages, a tacit promise that if he is re-elected Congress will be asked for such legislation at the next session.

Evidence of the President's intention to make a drive for increased employment is seen in the fact that at Baltimore he reiterated and enlarged upon the more closely veiled warning in his relief message to Congress delivered March 18, in which he said that industry must prepare to shoulder a greater share of the burden of caring for the unemployed either by providing expanding working opportunities or accepting heavier taxes.

It is not expected that Mr. Roosevelt will take any steps at this session to secure legislation fixing a maximum working week and a minimum wage, but such a measure will be held out to labor as an inducement to vote him another four years in the White House. No action which might be taken by industry to increase employment and wages would weaken such a plank since it is generally conceded that all the unemployed could not be absorbed. In view of this knowledge it is not expected that industry will immediately attempt to use additional labor beyond that called for by the usual summer upturn in activity.

Boost Scale for "Deeds"

Seattle, April 14. — Admission rates at Jensen-VonHerberg's Liberty have been boosted from a 25 cents top to 40 cents, exclusive of loges, for the current engagement of "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town." The theatre's usual dual-feature policy has been discarded for the present run, which is tentatively set for four weeks.

Hart on Stand All Day in U. A. Action

William S. Hart was on the witness stand for the entire day yesterday in connection with his $500,000 suit against United Artists. The case is being tried before Justice Phillip McCook in N. Y. Supreme Court. Under questioning by his counsel, Frederick Hemley of the firm of House, Grossman and Vorhaus, he told the court that his venture with U. A. cost him a loss of $30,000 personally and that the $302,000 which went into production of "Tumbleweeds" was a total failure as well.

He asserted that "Tumbleweeds" was booked at figures which spelled a definite loss and that this was done so that he would be forced out of producing and compelled to return to acting.

Hart testified that after the first picture had been released only two weeks U. A. recommended that he not go ahead with the second picture. However, he said five months later Joseph M. Schenck offered him $50,000 to go ahead with the second picture and $1,000 a week while it was in the course of production by which he would have received $58,000 from the second picture as against 30 per cent of the profits. This offer, he said he declined. He said he made an average of $120,000 per picture out of 27 pictures which were released through Famous Players. He will resume on the stand again this morning. Counsel indicated the trial would last the remainder of the week.

"Ecstacy" Is Held Up

"Ecstacy," the Hungarian film over which Samuel Cummins waged a court fight a year or more before getting it by the U. S. Customs, has encountered censor trouble. It is now being cut to meet the censors' objections and will be viewed again by the board.

A T & T Gain $20,000,000 From Films

Gifford Tells Meeting Activity Profitable

The film activities of A. T. & T. have brought $20,000,000 to the company's stockholders thus far, declared Walter S. Gifford, president, yesterday, in reply to a question by a stockholder at the company's annual stockholders' meeting.

"Our investments in motion pictures have proved very profitable," said Gifford. "We still have $800,000 invested in picture productions."

Indulging in a lengthy discussion of the communications company's screen activity, Gifford said the company is in the film business only in a small way. Productions financed by A. T. & T. represent only nine-tenths of one per cent of the film industry's total, he declared. He specifically stated that the company has no desire to broaden its activity in the film field. Gifford's statements were in reply to questions concerning the affairs of the company which were brought up at the recent inquiry into the company in Washington. He pointed out that the company plans to withdraw completely from the financing of films, which it entered only to help out customers who had fallen into debt.

Preliminary figures cited by Gifford indicated that A. T. & T.'s net income for the year ended March 31 increased to $130,157,095, from $118,916,232 for the previous 12 months. The net is equal to $6.97 per share on the capital stock, compared to $6.37 the previous year. Total operating revenues rose from $88,995,867 to $97,725,732.

Para. Retains Lease On Brooklyn Theatre

Paramount retains a 20-year lease on the Brooklyn Paramount under provisions of the reorganization plan for Allied Owners, Inc., which holds title to the theatre. The house is now being operated for Paramount by Si Fabian, whose offer to take over the lease was held several months ago to be the best of several received by Allied Owners. All of these, apparently, were rejected in favor of the new agreement with Paramount.

The Allied Owners reorganization plan was consummated some time ago. Yesterday, Federal Judge Robert A. Inch in U. S. District Court at Brooklyn signed an order directing Percival Jackson, William Greve and Stephen Callaghan to turn over to the new company assets in their possession.

Unrestricted Cancelling Up to 10% Held Probable

Distributors Are Believed Willing to Offer Concession

Definite indications that distributors favor the elimination of all restrictions on the present 10 per cent cancellation right, one of the cardinal points sought by the M.P.T.O.A., are in evidence as representatives of all nine national distributors prepare to meet today with the M.P.T.O.A. master committee at the Cinema Club in what is regarded as the most important move for industry self-regulation since the practical enforcement in 1934 of the production and advertising codes.

In addition to the elimination of all restrictions on the present 10 per cent cancellation right, the M.P.T.O.A. committee is also prepared to ask an increase in the cancellation privilege to 20 per cent. Whether or not they will be successful on this point is problematical. Distributor opinion, unofficially, indicates that once an unqualified 10 per cent cancellation has been set up, efforts to increase the cancellation right will be vigorously opposed. Some exhibitors believe that a big victory can be chalked up for the M.P.T.O.A. committee if it succeeds in obtaining a compromise 15 per cent cancellation.

Pall of Felix Feist's Death Blankets World of Films

By RED KANN

A hush settled upon the industry in New York and throughout the United States when the news of Felix F. Feist's death became generally known yesterday.

It was reflected principally, of course, in the executive quarters of Loew's and M-G-M. There, his associates who had known for days that there was no escape from the illness, met the word of his passing in silence or in broken speech. Little, except the necessary routine, was done all through the day. "We are having trouble in concentrating," was how one executive put it.

For Feist, long with Metro and highest in the councils of its distributing arm, was held in profound business esteem as well as in genuine personal affection by his sidekicks. When Nicholas M. Schenck told MOTION PICTURE DAILY in a voice not always under control that Feist had been his pal as well as his business associate, he expressed the sentiment of the Loew and Metro organizations complete. That sentiment was expressed by many others within the ranks in their own

Hollywood, April 15.—Will H. Hays on the passing of Felix Feist:

"In the history of the development of the selling of motion pictures, Felix Feist's name will always stand high. His services to his company and to the industry were greater than any brief word can summarize. He was as friendly of heart as he was quick of mind and all those of us who worked with him and knew him have lost a friend we will deeply miss."

Warners Now Evolving Seat Tax on Music

A seat music tax policy for theatres using Warner music is being evolved by the company and will be made known within the next few days, it was stated at the Warner offices yesterday.

Reports that the company would establish a seat tax ranging from one to four cents, scaled according to seating capacity, were ignored by Warner officials. Herman Starr, vice-president and in charge of the company's music operations, declined to affirm or deny the reports. Through a spokesman he said the policy would be announced in a few days.

that the companies allegedly formed a price-fixing pool as a move to help Warners gain control of three St. Louis theatres, the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central.

In a second count in the action by McKittrick, he named the four companies as forming a pool with Fox Midwest, Universal, Twentieth Century-Fox, M-G-M, Columbia and United Artists to control the sale of films in Kansas City, Springfield and Joplin. McKittrick is considering the filing of injunction proceedings in circuit court here against the same four defendants to restrain them from acts to further the alleged conspiracy.

In the civil suit which followed the criminal action in St. Louis, attorneys for the defendant distributors from time to time stressed the fact that the points at issue had no bearing on interstate commerce and that Fanchon and Marco, if they felt aggrieved, had the Missouri state courts at their disposal for future legal actions.

Fox Theatres Loss Is Put at $46,748

A net loss of $46,748 was reported yesterday by Fox Theatres Corp. for the last half of 1935, in a receiver's financial accounting filed with the U. S. District Court here by Milton C. Weisman.

A loss from consolidated operations of $320,910 for the receivership period from June 22, 1932, to Dec. 31, 1935, also was reported. The receiver estimated the company's assets at $9,711,086, which included a $15,000,000 claim against William Fox written down to $7,500,000, and cash of $780,217. Liabilities include $3,000,000 in claims against the company which have been allowed and $1,627,649 which represents a reserve for 20 per cent of the amount of disputed claims.

Of $24,285,033 of claims filed against the company, $2,949,103 have been allowed. Of an additional $9,259,474 of claims, $8,148,249 is in dispute.

Fox Theatres' original investment in Fox Metropolitan Playhouses, recently reorganized, is listed as having been realized at $150,000, or a book loss of $5,626,176. The company realized $6,640 on its investment in Fox New England Theatres, Inc., or a book loss of $2,267,884.

Warners Evolving Seat Tax on Music

lect no seat tax from theatres using their music, intending to have the full charge paid at the recording source, which would be by producer users of the music. Opposition from song writers who claimed that they would be deprived of the performing rights fees for their work under this policy is reported to have necessitated a change of plans. The Song Writers' Protective Ass'n. said yesterday, however, that it had lodged no formal protest with Warners for the latter's failure to levy a seat tax against theatres since the Warner music companies withdrew from Ascap, Jan. 1.

The Ascap tax rate ranges from 10 cents to 20 cents per seat, scaled according to seating capacity.

N. J. Senate Beats Tax on Admissions

TRENTON, April 15.—The State Senate tonight defeated by a close vote the amusement-luxury tax bill, which was passed by the Assembly last night. The Senate defeated the measure by a margin of four votes.

Opponents were disconcerted to find new Senate regulations barring them from the floor 30 minutes in advance of the session. This was designed to prevent attempts to influence members at their desks in advance of the session. The amusements levy exempted all admissions up to 10 cents. From 11 to 25 cents the tax was one cent. The rate beyond that was one cent in each succeeding 25-cent bracket or fraction, or roughly four per cent of receipts. Theatres could absorb the tax or increase admissions to cover it.

Following defeat of the bill tonight the Republicans caucused in an effort to incorporate amendments which would assure passage.

One answer will be filed for Warners, Paramount, RKO and subsidiaries and individual defendants associated with them. A separate answer will be filed on behalf of George Schaefer, Sam Dembow and Ralph Kohn.

It is expected that the Government will move to have a trial date set shortly after the answers are in.

Feist's Death Settles Pall On Industry

way and that way was not always entirely coherent.

There was one executive, whose name it is the kindly act not to mention, who began to dictate a few words of tribute to Feist's memory over the telephone only to find his voice break; a silence on the line and finally his secretary, not so glib-tongued herself, finishing where her superior could not.

There was Sam Eckman who first heard the news from the London Bureau of THE DAILY to express, at the outset, his amazing disbelief that Feist was actually gone.

Many important figures in the industry learned the distressing news first when reporters for this publication matched the circulation of yesterday's edition with word passed along by telephone. The tributes then began to pour in. All through the morning they came in volume. And through the afternoon and into the early evening as well. It seemed as if the New York industry had, by unorganized effort, combined for an identical purpose.

Then Kansas City reported by telegraph how it felt. Cleveland followed and Boston. Then Pittsburgh, Chicago; Ed Schiller from Atlanta, E. V. Richards from New Orleans, Karl Hoblitzelle from Dallas. Barney Balaban in Chicago found himself peculiarly shy of words. Will Hays made a gracious gesture and Louis B. Mayer, Irving Thalberg, Eddie Mannix, Al Lichtman, Howard Dietz, Hunt Stromberg, Harry Rapf and innumerable others in and out of the Metro studios at Culver City.

Other men have died in this industry, but about Feist the impression last night seemed inescapable that the words of praise heaped around his character, his disposition and deportment, his record in the industry were warmer, more genuine and beyond the perfunctory phrases which are exchanged in matters of this kind.

By request of the immediate family of which Felix Feist, Jr. now becomes the head, no flowers are to be sent. What is left of Feist's father yesterday was carried to the Universal Funeral Chapel at 597 Lexington Ave. to remain there until the services are held at 10 o'clock Friday morning at Temple Emanu-El, 1 East 65th St. Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson will officiate at that time, but Dr. Jonah Wise, a personal friend of the deceased, will deliver the final eulogy. Feist will be laid to rest in the family plot at Woodlawn Cemetery alongside his wife who died some months ago.

Tribute Limitless to Felix Feist's Memory

Tribute to the memory of Felix F. Feist virtually deluged MOTION PICTURE DAILY all of yesterday. They came from the far corners of the land and from London and included these:

Sidney R. Kent, president, Twentieth Century-Fox: "I am deeply grieved to hear of the passing of Felix Feist whom I have known as a friend for many years. The industry has lost one of its most prominent executives and his fellow workers will miss his sympathetic friendship and kind consideration."

Leo Spitz, president, RKO: "The passing of Felix Feist will leave a great void in the hearts of his friends and in the industry generally. He will long be remembered as one of the most constructive forces in the industry."

David Bernstein, vice-president and treasurer of Loew's, Inc.: "We have lost one of our own. What else is there to say?"

Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the board, Twentieth Century-Fox: "Felix Feist has been my intimate friend for more than 20 years and his death was a distinct shock to me. My sincerest sympathy goes out to his family and co-workers in their bereavement. An outstanding leader in our industry ever since he entered it in 1907, his passing will be deeply felt by the thousands scattered throughout the country who knew him as a friend."

J. Robert Rubin, vice-president, M-G-M:

"The death of Felix Feist is a tremendous shock. It is a loss not only to the organization with which he had been so long associated but to the industry itself. Those of us who worked with him had great respect for him as an executive and great affection for him as an associate. There are few men that one meets who were as efficient and had the lovable qualities as did Felix Feist. I valued him as a close, personal friend."

M. H. Aylesworth, chairman of board, RKO: "Felix Feist had the admiration of his associates both within M-G-M and the entire industry. His reputation and record for honesty were an inspiration for sales executives throughout the entire motion picture industry."

Major Albert Warner, vice-president of Warners: "The passing of Felix Feist is an irreparable loss. The whole industry mourn and miss him. As for me, he was one of my very closest friends. A man of real character, astute, courageous to the core, tireless in every task he undertook and also deeply generous and kindly—he was one of whom the entire film business could be, and was, proud."

Charles C. Moskowitz, in charge of the Loew metropolitan circuit: "I have lost one of my best friends."

Earle W. Hammons, president, Educational: "It was with a shock and a deep-sense of personal loss that I heard today the sad news of the passing of Felix Feist. I had known him for about 20 years, had watched his work, and had admired him both as a business leader and as a man. His death is a real blow to the picture industry and it leaves a place in the hearts of his friends which cannot be filled."

Leopold Friedman, general counsel of Loew's, Inc.: "I knew Felix Feist all my life and long before most of his associates here. I knew his father as well. I had gotten to know Felix and his qualities and to tell you simply that I shall miss him is to put it simply enough."

Ned E. Depinet, president, RKO Dist. Corp.: "The industry has suffered an irreparable loss through the passing of Felix Feist. His memory will long be treasured in the hearts of his legion of friends and associates as an inspiration to those who remain to carry on."

Spyros Skouras, president, National Theatres: "The finest human being I knew. He was a great and loyal friend. The industry will miss him. Nothing you might say could be too laudatory."

Joe Vogel, in charge out-of-town Loew theatres: "A fine executive and a genuine friend. I shall miss him."

George J. Schaefer, vice-president and general sales manager, United Artists: "The industry has suffered a great loss in the passing of Felix Feist. He was beloved . . . true to his trust, true to his friends . . . he was a grand man and his memory will live forever in the hearts of those who knew him."

Gradwell L. Sears, western sales manager, Warners: "In my opinion Felix Feist had more character than any man in the industry. I knew Felix for practically 20 years, and his passing is a tragic blow. The industry has lost a valuable man."

C. C. Pettijohn, general counsel, M.P.P.D.A.: "The death of Felix Feist is an industry loss. No one in the business had more friends and no man was more loyal to those friends than was Felix Feist. It seems as though the news of his passing has spread a shroud of gloom over everything this morning. At the prime of his career, it seems his name surely must have been called out of turn."

Clayton Bond, chief film buyer, Warner Theatres: "The distribution division of the industry has lost one of its most brilliant minds. I have lost a great friend."

Harry D. Buckley, vice-president, United Artists: "In the passing of Felix Feist the industry loses one of its great sales executives. A colorful personality, beloved by all who knew him, his death is a distinct loss to his legion of friends as well as to the business."

Abe Montague, general sales manager of Columbia: "Words are inadequate to express my personal loss in the passing of Felix Feist. Not only have I lost a true friend, but the industry has lost a man definitely recognized by us all as having stood for only the squarest and finest principles. Felix will truly be missed."

George Skouras, Skouras Theatres: "I don't know where to begin. Felix had my greatest admiration as an individual. He was a thoroughbred in every sense and a person who never could or would do another harm."

Joseph W. Bernhard, general manager, Warner Theatres: "I share the feelings of all of Felix Feist's close friends on this day of mourning for the industry."

Ed Kuykendall, M.P.T.O.A. president: "The entire industry is stunned by the loss of a man of proven ability. Felix Feist inspired the confidence of every person with whom he came in contact. Mark Ostrer, chairman of the board, G. B. Pictures, Ltd., by cable from London: "Deeply moved by the passing of my friend, Felix Feist. Have many pleasant recollections of his unfailing humor and business probity. American industry is the loser in his untimely death."

James R. Grainger, general sales manager, Universal: "I was extremely sorry to hear of the passing of Felix Feist. I knew him intimately for 20 years and he was a credit to himself and the film industry alike."

Jeffrey Bernerd, general manager of distribution, G. B. Pictures, Ltd.: "It is with deep and sincere regret that I learn of the passing of Felix Feist. A dynamic personality, imbued with a fine sense of humor, kindly, fair and human; these were only a few of his many fine attributes. His loss is indeed one that will be felt throughout the entire industry both in the United States and England."

Frank C. Walker, general manager, Comerford circuit: "Felix Feist was a fine citizen. I knew him since I entered the film business and was devoted to him. The industry sustained a great loss in his passing."

John D. Clark, general sales manager, Twentieth Century-Fox: "The passing of Felix Feist will leave a void in the executive ranks of our industry that will be difficult to fill.

"Associate, Pal"

"What can I say about the death of Felix F. Feist? He was not only my business associate, but my pal as well," Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's, Inc., and M-G-M, said to Motion Picture Daily yesterday. "It is not only a loss to the industry, but to all the boys here and to me personally as well."

Through the battles, thick and thin, three men flanked Felix F. Feist in his conduct of M-G-M sales over the years. What they had to say about his death yesterday follows:

William F. Rodgers*, eastern sales manager: "I am not given to oratory. I have lost a fine business associate and a very, very good friend. Beyond that, I don't know what there is to say."

Tom J. Connors*, southern and Canadian sales manager: "He was one of the loveliest men I have ever known. Not only was he an associate, but a pal. Felix, Bill Rodgers, Eddie Saunders and I had had lunch regularly for the last 11 or 12 years. Our company not only has lost a grand leader, but the industry as well. He was one of the squarest men that ever lived."

E. M. Saunders*, western sales manager: "In the passing of Felix Feist not only the industry but the world has lost a real man and we of M-G-M have lost a pal He leaves a vacancy in our hearts which can never be filled."

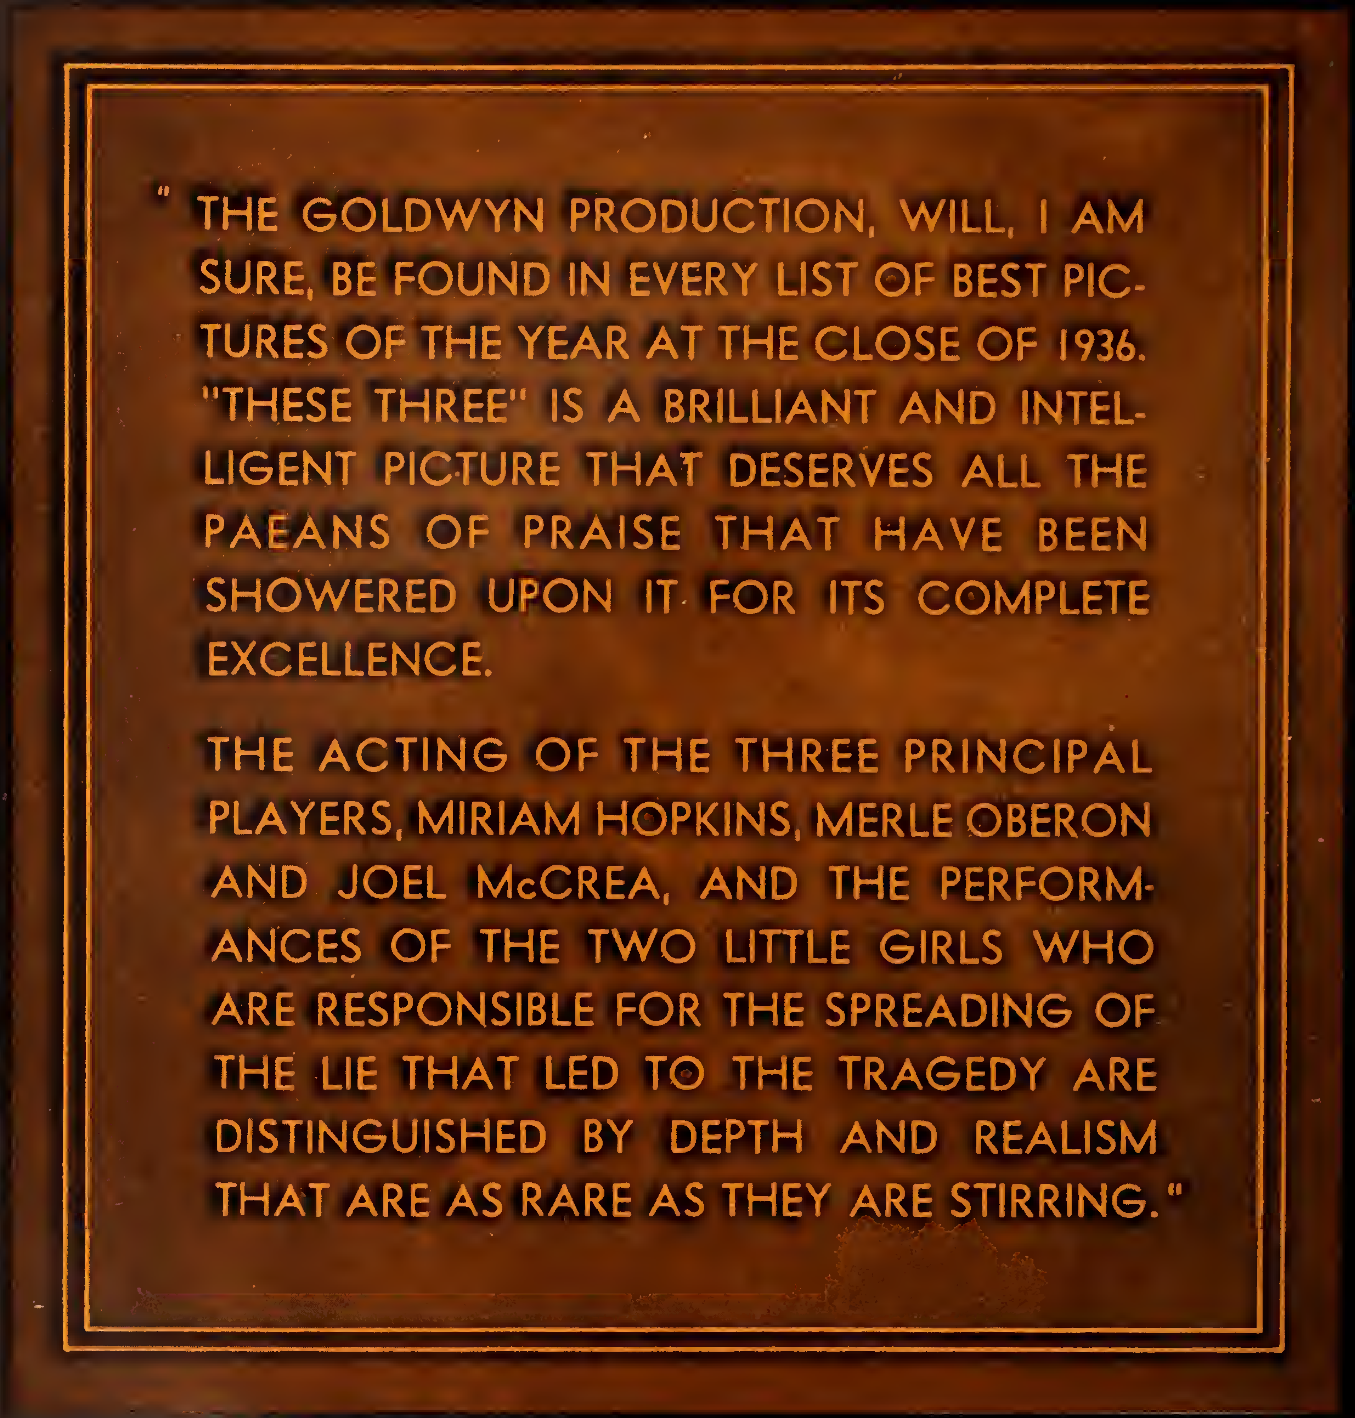
OF THE THIRTY OR MORE ODD PICTURES SEEN DURING THE MONTH THE ONLY ONE THAT HAD ANY REAL CLAIM TO DISTINCTION—AND IT IS WELL WORTH REMEMBERING THAT IT IS ONE OF THE REALLY DISTINGUISHED FILMS OF RECENT YEARS — IS "THESE THREE," SAMUEL GOLDWYN'S PRODUCTION. A SECOND VISIT RECENTLY TO THE RIVOLI CONFIRMED ANEW THE FIRST IMPRESSION AT THE TIME OF THE PREMIERE — THAT HERE IS A GENUINELY DISTINGUISHED PHOTOPLAY, ONE THAT IS A VAST CREDIT TO EVERYONE CONCERNED WITH ITS PRODUCTION.

NO NEED, OF COURSE, TO RELATE AGAIN THE STORY OF THE HAVOC THAT A MALICIOUS LIE, PERPETRATED BY A FIENDISH LITTLE BRAT, CAUSES IN THE LIVES OF THREE INNOCENT PEOPLE, BUT EVERY REASON TO REMIND YOU AGAIN THAT IF YOU MISS THIS EXCELLENTLY WRITTEN, SKILLFULLY DIRECTED AND SUPERBLY ACTED FILM YOU WILL BE CHEATING YOURSELF OF A RARE EXPERIENCE IN THE CINEMA."

A rare and original medallion of praise by William Boehnel

N. Y. World-Telegram



" THE GOLDWYN PRODUCTION, WILL, I AM SURE, BE FOUND IN EVERY LIST OF BEST PICTURES OF THE YEAR AT THE CLOSE OF 1936. "THESE THREE" IS A BRILLIANT AND INTELLIGENT PICTURE THAT DESERVES ALL THE PAEANS OF PRAISE THAT HAVE BEEN SHOWERED UPON IT FOR ITS COMPLETE EXCELLENCE.

THE ACTING OF THE THREE PRINCIPAL PLAYERS, MIRIAM HOPKINS, MERLE OBERON AND JOEL McCREA, AND THE PERFORMANCES OF THE TWO LITTLE GIRLS WHO ARE RESPONSIBLE FOR THE SPREADING OF THE LIE THAT LED TO THE TRAGEDY ARE DISTINGUISHED BY DEPTH AND REALISM THAT ARE AS RARE AS THEY ARE STIRRING."

Here is a tribute by Kate Cameron of N. Y. Daily News to Samuel Goldwyn's "These Three" so glowing, so outstanding that it merits casting in permanent bronze.

The case now pending, the court was told, "is of major importance to producers and distributors of pictures" and if the decision stands "it will impose a very heavy burden" upon industry.

"We are particularly concerned in the interpretation of the law as it applies to the public domain," it was explained. "If this source of material is restricted or its free use rendered hazardous or doubtful, the effect upon the industry will, indeed, be very serious. The law as it affects the rights of prior and subsequent adaptors of a public domain work is of immediate importance to them as producers of motion pictures."

The intervening companies explained that there is a "growing demand for pictures based upon material in the public domain. Such pictures are more expensive than the usual run of films, seldom running under $500,000."

At the same time, it was pointed out, "practically all public domain works on which such photoplays are based have been previously dramatized by well known writers, generally by several prior dramatists, and these prior protected stage versions are known to the modern dramatists of stage and screen.

"In undertaking such adaptation and its required production investment," the brief continued, "some definite degree of certainty as to the scope of the copyright protection to be accorded prior adaptors is necessary. Obviously, one would hesitate to readapt literary material long in the public domain if by so doing he would run the risk of a suit for plagiarism, and obviously, also, one who undertakes the work of readapting public domain is presumably acquainted not only with the source material, but with the work of earlier adaptors."

"If companies are to produce motion pictures based upon the classics, they must be adapted and presented with a natural, logical and customary form of adaptation and must in many cases be modernized as well," the court was told. "In adapting old works, similarities are bound to appear, and if the first adaptor is to preempt the field for future adaptors in matters that are not wholly new or original with the first adaptor, this court should say so authoritatively, so that future adaptors and producers of motion pictures will be forewarned."

The plaintiffs in the original action against M-G-M have until April 24 to file their answer to the request by M-G-M for a review of the Circuit Court of Appeals decision. It is expected that the Supreme Court will hand down its decision on a review of the case on April 27. If the review is granted, the case will go on the regular calendar.

ment of local industry grievances and the establishment of means for openly negotiating uniform clearance and zoning schedules is expected to be well advanced as a result of the exhibitor-distributor conferences. Prospects for elimination of the score charge and effective means of eliminating the forcing of shorts with features do not appear to be too bright on the eve of the meetings. Subjects such as these, together with simplification of the exhibition contract, probably will have to be ironed out by the exhibitor committee or sub-committees with individual distribution companies.

Representing the M.P.T.O.A. at today's conference will be Ed Kuykendall, president; O. C. Lam, Lewen Pizor, Fred Wehrenberg, Charles E. Williams and Jack Miller. Two other members of the exhibitor committee, Morgan Walsh and L. C. Griffith, who are ill at this time, may appear for later conferences at which final agreements will be made. The present session may be adjourned tomorrow and reconvened when definite plans are settled upon. Today's session will probably be given over to the enumeration of problems facing the meeting and designation of those that can properly be acted upon by the two groups.

Distributor representation will include Abe Montague, Columbia; William F. Rodgers, M-G-M; Neil Agnew, Paramount; W. Ray Johnston, Republic; Ned Depinet, RKO Radio; John D. Clark, Twentieth Century-Fox; Paul Lazarus, United Artists, and Gradwell L. Sears, Warners.

Cobb Lauds Rogers And Drive for Fund

Irvin S. Cobb pays a high tribute to Will Rogers' work in behalf of those in need during the later years of his life in a letter addressed to the committee handling the Will Rogers Memorial Hospital Fund Drive to be conducted in film theatres from May 22 to May 28.

"All the world knew Will Rogers as a friend and loved him as a friend," he wrote, "but some of us were privileged during those latter, fruitful, happy, laughing years of his to have more intimate contact with him than the rest did; and we know how much of self sacrifice, talent, energy and cash he gave to aiding the needy and the poor and the unfortunate of his profession."

Author, Not Star

"Ace Drummond," one of Universal's four serials for 1936-37, is based on the King Feature Syndicate newspaper cartoon strip by Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, but will not star the aviation ace, as advertised by the company yesterday in Motion Picture Daily.

The error occurred in the preparation of copy in the Universal advertising department.

Statistics Feature Hart vs. U.A. Suit

Statistics formed the testimony all day yesterday in the $500,000 conspiracy and breach of contract suit of William S. Hart against United Artists on trial before Justice Philip J. McCook in N. Y. Supreme Court.

G. H. Frost, an accountant from Los Angeles, presented records to support Hart's claim that United Artists had charged him for 165 more prints than were ordered on "Tumbleweeds."

Frost was followed on the stand by Alfred Hines, who was with United Artists in 1925. He presented statistics in connection with various U. A. releases designed to show how the probabilities of business were estimated. Under cross-examination Hines said the statistics at that time indicated that "Tumbleweeds" would be a flop. He will return to the stand again today.

Ampa's Nominations Are Up Again Today

Ampa's weekly meeting today at the Astor will be another business session open only to members who seek to thresh out the tangle over a slate of nominees and the proposal to enlarge the board of directors.

Some of the men nominated last week in addition to the regular nominating committee's report are understood to have withdrawn their names. In the meantime, the regular committee, which sought to resign last week, has resumed work and will again present a full slate today, it is reported.

New Film Emulsion Tests Are Revealed

Production of positives without first having made a negative is one of the aims of a series of experiments being carried on by the Photo Emulsion Laboratory headed by Dr. Miller Reese Hutchinson, a former Edison associate.

Hutchinson says the invention was an accident. Blacks appeared where whites were expected on a film; prints were blacker with the least exposure to light. Positives can be printed from positives and negatives from negatives, he says.

U. S. Review Asked On Washington Tax

Washington, April 15.—Rejection of the petition of Washington state authorities for review of the decision of the state Supreme Court holding film distribution to be intrastate commerce was asked of the U. S. Supreme Court yesterday in a brief filed by the eight major distributors, all of whom are parties to the suit.

The case arose with the refusal of the distributors to pay the state income tax, and came to Washington on appeal after the state Supreme Court had rendered a decision in favor of the group.

In their brief in opposition to Supreme Court review, the companies contend that the states are without power directly to burden interstate commerce and declare that distributors furnishing films to Washington exhibitors from outside the state are not engaged in intrastate business, although it is admitted that the exhibition of films is a local business.

"The sole function of the distributor," it was explained, "is to supply the films. This function is completed when the pictures are delivered to the exhibitor by transportation from without the state.

"The petitioners maintain that the films having come to rest within the state lose their interstate character. Our answer is that the distributors pay a personal property tax on the films."

Meeting the state's contention that payment of the property tax is inconsistent with the claim of immunity from the income tax, companies asserted there is no inconsistency, but that the payment of the property tax is merely in accordance with a law which they consider appropriately covers them.

MOTION PICTURE
DAILY

Finds 50% of Adults Rare Picture Fans

"Fortune" Check Points Up Potential Market

Fifty per cent of the nation's adults go to pictures once a month, less than once a month or never.

The country's children are far better customers, 66.1 per cent attending in varying measure and only 33.9 per cent never at all.

These are the highlights of one portion of the fourth installment of a national survey by Fortune, class monthly published by Time, Inc., who also publishes Time Magazine and produces The March of Time. The probe was based on the divisions set up by the U. S. Census Bureau and, insofar as pictures are concerned, would indicate that a vast untouched market exists within the American public.

Fortune's first query was:

"How often do you and your children go to the movies and what do you go to see?"

The reply was this:

"Except that the moving picture industry has some 18,000 theatres with a seating capacity of nearly 80,000,000 persons weekly (at the rate of one seat filled only once each day) and that there are about 70,000,000 paid admissions weekly at the average admission of 20 cents—little is known about U. S. movie-going habits. The results of Fortune's questions contribute a little additional data on this persistent, but no universal method of passing the time of day:

More than once a week....	13.0%
Once a week............	24.9
More than once a month..	12.1
Once a month...........	13.2
Less than once a month...	21.1
Never	15.7

"A quarter of the nation's adults, then, go to the movies once a week, a half go more than once a month. The other half, who go once a month, or less, or never, are the reason that the theatre division of the industry has an embarrassing oversupply of capacity on its hands."

The magazine next asked:

"Do you go to see any good film, or do you wait and go to see only certain pictures?"

"Any Good Picture" Popular

On this score, the survey has this to say for itself:

"The answers show that 46.7 per cent of the people go to see 'any good' picture. These are probably the backlog of the industry, thanks to which its over capacity is not worse and thanks to which even the worst of Hollywood's output gets some showing before its costs are written off. Another peculiarity is that frequency of movie-going is nearly independent of the economic circumstances of the customers. Of the prosperous, 28 per cent go once a week, 26.6 per cent of the lower middle class, even 19 per cent of the poor, who are by definition in this survey the unemployed and the partially unemployed. Only the negro is not a habitual moviegoer —45.7 per cent never go; but this is chiefly because he lives in scattered rural communities.

"Still another advantage the movies enjoy over other forms of entertainment is that children are also regular customers even better than their parents. Of the people interviewed who said they had children, the replies to this question were as follows:

"(If children) how often do they go to the movies?

More than once a week....	17.8%
Once a week............	38.6
More than once a month.	9.7
Once a month..	10.6
Less than once a month...	16.2
Never	7.1

"With more than half the children attending once a week or more, the industry is assured of at least 17,000,000 weekly admissions to help fill its 80,000,000 seats a week although generally at half price. And 45.2 per cent of these (54.3 per cent of those between six and eleven, 38 per cent of those between 12 and 18) get their movies in the afternoon, according to the parents in Fortune's sample."

Cancellations and Local Boards First Topics; More Talks Set

A majority of sales managers in attendance at the opening conference of exhibitors and distributors on trade practice problems at the Cinema Club yesterday voiced sentiments in favor of eliminating all restrictions on a 10 per cent cancellation privilege and favored the establishment of local boards to conduct voluntary arbitration of industry disputes.

The opinions were unofficial, it was stated following the meeting, due to the fact that the sales managers were not empowered to commit their companies to any final position in advance of conferences to be held later with company heads. Yesterday's conference between the M. P. T. O. A. master committee and the sales heads of seven national distributors was confined, primarily, to discussion of increased cancellation privileges and the establishment of the local conciliation boards, which were said to be regarded as the two fundamental problems at issue. Other problems embraced by the M. P. T. O. A. 10-point program for self-regulation in distribution and exhibition were touched upon only briefly.

May End the St. Louis Case in A Settlement Outside of Court

Efforts are under way to adjust the St. Louis situation, already twice the subject of Federal suits against Warners, RKO and Paramount in St. Louis and about to become a third in the Federal court for the southern district of New York, out of court.

Interested executives and attorneys, who comprise the vanguard in the move, are making no statements. In fact, several lawyers who conceivably are parties to negotiations, are disclaiming complete knowledge of any such plan.

Motion Picture Daily* learned last night, however, that the possibility is not remote that an adjustment agreeable to all necessary parties may be reached. The Government's sanction is necessary and, it is reported, would be forthcoming.

Details Asked In Government Civil Action

Answers were filed in U. S. District Court here yesterday by the principal defendants in the Government's action against Warners, Paramount, RKO and individual defendants and a bill of particulars was asked of the Government to clarify many of the allegations contained in its complaint.

A hearing on the defense petition for a bill of particulars was set for Tuesday in Federal Court. The Government's attorneys are expected to oppose the petition and pending a court decision on whether or not it should be granted it is doubtful whether the Government will ask the court to set a trial date for the suit itself. This is seen as delaying the actual setting of a trial date by a few days, at least.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

IT will come as surprising news, perhaps shocking news, to many, not excepting this observation point, to learn that Hollywood's starring cluster, a very limited firmament by the way, is living in . . . "a smarting sense of injustice."

". . . practically in servitude for life."

Under contracts which are "entirely one-sided."

". . . in a state of perpetual bondage."

". . . are constrained by their coolie contracts."

Mr. Hearst says so, or at least, an editorial spokesman for him said this and more in comment which appeared in an unusual spot in yesterday's New York American and maybe in others of the Hearst newspapers across the nation as well. The position in New York flanked the regular daily column of Regina Crewe, film critic of The American, on the film page. . . .

Before our amusement, or amazement, gets out of hand, read on and further about the latest and, in some ways, the most curious of the Hearstian outbursts. From the editorial, designated clearly as such in order to establish whose rash idea this is:

> "The studios are having a great deal of trouble with their stars and a great deal of the trouble they have brought on themselves. In the first place, many of the contracts are essentially unfair to the star. Many of these contracts are made over such long periods that the stars are practically in servitude for life. . . . Contracts can now be made with a promising young star at a trivial sum over a period of seven years. No matter how great and successful and how valuable the star may become to the producer, no increase in salary can be made except at the producer's volition and to the extent that he considers desirable. If the star refuses to continue at an inadequate compensation, he or she gets no pay at all and the contract still holds. This naturally arouses in the star a smarting sense of injustice." . . .

But wait. There's more:

> "Another extremely unjust feature of the contracts the producers force upon their employes is the yearly option . . . the producer has the right to terminate the contract at the end of every year, but the employe must continue for the full seven years. The contract, therefore, is entirely one-sided. It binds the star for seven years, but binds the producer for only one year. . . . A third most unjust provision in these one-sided contracts allows the producer to hire out the star exactly as bondsmen in olden days were rented out. The star gets no additional compensation for this slave-trade transaction, but the producer may, and practically always does, make an enormous profit out of the deal." . . .

> "The stars are not peons. They are not coolies. They resent this injustice. They also resent the fact that they are being paid by their bond-master only one-fifth or one-tenth of what others are willing to pay for their services. Yet the star cannot get jobs at these higher salaries which others are willing to pay. They are constrained by their coolie countracts. So the producer rents the stars out and he gets the money. There surely are laws in this free state to prevent this kind of peon labor. And if there are no laws the legislature would better get busy and pass some.
> "At least, the legislature can repeal the seven-year bondage law which was feloniously passed by a former legislature traitorous to the public interest.
> "Instead of raising the peon period from five years to seven, it should have been reduced to three years.
> "Perhaps labor generally will sense the threat to their independence in these coolie contracts."

Considerable, it is apparent, might be written by way of puncturing the sad picture which the Hearst editorial paints. Vic McLaglen, asking and getting $100,000 a picture since he won the Academy award; Freddie March, up to $125,000 when this writer was in Hollywood a few weeks and probably beyond that figure by this time; Claudette Colbert, starving with dignity at roughly $100,000 per job; Marlene Dietrich, earning $200,000 a negative and Bill Powell demanding the identical stipend—this is the way it goes under the current Hollywood system which the landowner of San Simeon declares encourages servitude, peonage, injustice. Pity the poor star who is underpaid and exploited on $4,000, $5,000, $6,000, $7,000, $8,000 a week, including Federal and California taxes and the agents' ten per cent! . . .

Exactly what the editorial strikes at is not clear so far. What is clear and obvious is that something not on the surface lurks behind the decision which wrote it. Mr. Hearst, it might be significant to bear in mind continually, is one of America's prize champions of special interests, especially when special interests coincide with his own. Something, of course, is on his mind. That it is the welfare of the downtrodden, crushed-by-the-heel star is an attitude this space vigorously refuses to believe. . . .

Alfred Hines, formerly in the U. A. sales department, was again called to the stand yesterday in William S. Hart's $500,000 suit against the distributor for alleged conspiracy and breach of contract, now on trial before Justice Philip McCook in N. Y. Supreme Court.

More statistics regarding "Tumbleweeds" were unraveled. Hines admited that contracts for the picture had been held up until exhibitors agreed to take "Wild Justice" with the film.

The case is expected to run another week.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Let's Sing Again"

(Principal)

HOLLYWOOD, April 16.—As produced, this picture achieves Sol Lesser's purpose of presenting his youthful singing protege, Bobby Breen, under auspicious circumstances. The boy, possessing a remarkable singing voice, is given much opportunity to display his talent. The enthusiastic manner in which the preview audience received him gives indication that his work alone should center much of the public interest on the picture. The story is a human-interest drama with a hokum comedy contrast.

Breen becomes an inmate of an orphan home when his mother, Ann Doran, who has deserted her husband, George Houston, dies. Running away with a visiting traveling show, Breen comes under the wing of Henry Armetta. He, an erstwhile opera star reduced to the status of a comic clown, sees great possibilities in the child's voice. As the heavy, Grant Withers plans to adopt the boy to bolster up a flopping act. Armetta and Breen flee from the show. Bound for New York, Armetta hears a radio broadcast and recognizes the voice of an old pupil, Vivienne Osborne, now a famous diva. Arriving at their destination, Breen reunites Miss Osborne and Armetta. The trailing Withers, catches up when the pair are in Miss Osborne's home where Houston is singing his "Lullabye." The boy, picking up the chorus, is recognized by his father to foil Withers.

Breen's singing of the theme song, "Let's Sing Again," and Houston's "Lullabye" and "The Farmer in the Dell" are little musical gems that have a delightful contrast in Armetta's comedy and drama contributions. Breen and Armetta dominate the show, but capable performances are accredited to Withers, Miss Osborne, Houston, Lucien Littlefield and Inez Courtney in the support.

Based on an original screenplay by Don Swift and Dan Jarrett, the show is smartly directed by Kurt Neuman to concentrate the attention on Breen's singing and Armetta's comedy. The entertainment value of each make for a ready showmanship that can be easily used to arouse patron interest.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,152. Running time, 67 minutes. "G."

"Big Noise"

(Warners)

HOLLYWOOD, April 16.—There is genuine appeal in this comedy, especially to oldsters of the hard-working class who are now seeking leisure. Guy Kibbee, who has been shunted out of control in a woolen mill by younger men, uses the enforced leisure by making himself and his family utterly miserable until he finds release from the monotony of his existence by secretly purchasing a share in a cleaning business.

Established in his new calling he finds that racketeers have muscled into the business and are exploiting the cleaners. After a bomb wrecks his shop he decides to fight. He tricks the rival mobs to his shop, where they oblige by shooting each other out of existence.

The love interest in the tale is maintained by Kibbee's daughter, Alma Lloyd, and his young partner, Warren Hull. Marie Wilson, as a nit-witted little clerk is excellent. Additional good support is offered by Dick Foran, Henry O'Neill, Olin Howland, Virginia Brissac, William Davidson, Andre Beranger, Edward McWade, Robert Emmett Keane, Al Hill, Eddie Shubert, William Pawley, George Lloyd and Emmett Vogan. The screen play is the work of George Bricker and William Jacobs, adapted from the story by Edward Hartman. Frank MacDonald directed and Bryan Foy produced.

Short Subject

"March of Time, No. 4"

(RKO)

Containing four episodes of widely diversified interest, this latest issue of the "March of Time" rates with previous releases especially in the fact that all types of audiences should find something of interest in this number. With the usual expert photography and skill in getting behind the surface for significance, the reel is devoted to the controversial Florida ship canal project, the recent field trials to select the best bird dog in America, the development at Princeton of the Veterans of Future Wars and the operation of arson detection methods by fire departments.

The initial sequence, which pictures the amazing ditch which has been excavated with Federal money, and without Congressional approval, describes the root of the controversy. Jacksonville interests seek thus to make the city an important port, farmers in the area fear for their precious irrigation supply. Interesting is a portion of Senate debate between Senator Fletcher of Florida, canal champion, and Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, who has made an issue of the canal project.

The interest which lies in superlative animal skill features the bird dog competition, as pointers and setters vie for the honor of national champion.

Reenacted is the origin of the Veterans of Future Wars, an idea cropping from the minds of three Princeton students, and which has spread over the country. They seek a bonus, payable in advance, for their service in the next war, which they see as inevitable within 30 years.

The final episode details the widespread and highly efficient activity of the arson squads of the fire departments, which virtually had their beginning in the work of Fire Marshal Brophy in Brooklyn 24 years ago. The spectacular manner in which he directed the capture of an arson group there is pictured in highly effective fashion.

Previewed without production code seal. Running time, 23 minutes. "G."

Flash Previews

"The Robber Symphony"—An English feature, produced by Concordia Films. Broadway will undoubtedly like the comedy and drama of this opera fairy story. It contains, in addition, some magnificent Alpine scenes.

"Captain Calamity"—Another in the Hirliman color series, this one has thrills and action aplenty, interesting melodrama and is nicely seasoned with some good music.

These pictures will be reviewed in full in a coming issue of MOTION PICTURE DAILY.

Hal Horne, was at the same time withdrawn, in favor of the following nominees submitted by Charles Leonard's "regular" committeemen:

For president, Gordon White; vice-president, Charles Leonard; secretary, Ralph Lund; treasurer, Herbert Spencer Berg; trustee, William Ferguson. White, Berg and Ferguson are now serving in the same spots.

Nominated for the directorate, and likewise assured of election, were: White, Leonard, Lund, Berg, Monroe Greenthal, Barret McCormick, Tom Waller, George Gerhard and Milton Silver.

Ampa's members, in session for the regular Thursday luncheon-meeting, at the Hotel Astor, tentatively accepted the artist's design for the medals that will be awarded to the best trade paper, fan publication and newspaper advertisement published in 1935 by the New York advertising departments of distributors, and to be judged by prominent trade, fan and newspaper editors and publishers. The judging will take place at next Thursday's meeting, and election of officers at the following meeting.

James P. Cunningham moved, and was seconded, in a resolution expressing the sympathy of all of the Ampa on the death of Felix F. Feist. A committee was delegated to represent the membership at the funeral.

In reconsidering its resignation, the nominating committee abandoned its attempt to enlarge the board of directors, because of unconstitutionality involved. Chairman Leonard, however, urged the members to insist on securing greater representation on the board.

indicates that considerable difficulty will be encountered in developing a bill which will give Ascap all that is asked for during the hearings. Representative O'Malley has been consistently an enemy of Ascap. While several of the members named have evinced sympathy with the music organization's point of view, others are antagonistic.

Although the committee may develop legislation for submission to the House, there is little likelihood of its enactment in this session in view of the desire of Administration leaders in Congress to sidetrack all controversial matters not on President Roosevelt's "must" list in order that the session may adjourn early.

Attorneys said the report is without legal significance as it can be materially qualified by the final report to be filed with the court after the findings have been passed upon and the briefs submitted.

RESOLVED, that we tender these heartfelt expressions of condolence and deep sympathy to Mr. Feist's family.

Eulogies of Feist Continue in Flood

Additional comment on the death of Felix Feist follows:

GEORGE W. WEEKS, general sales manager, G. B.: "In the untimely passing of Felix Feist, the industry has lost one of its finest characters. For many years I have had occasion to come in close business contact with him, and never once did he take advantage of a friendship, nor did he overstep the bounds of business ethics."

HARRY HUFFMAN, first run operator in Denver visiting here: "Mr. Feist's death is a loss to the industry. The work he accomplished and the work he stood for will serve as a perpetual guide for those who follow."

A. H. SCHWARTZ, president, Century Circuit: "The death of Felix Feist came as a shock to the industry and his personal friends, in whose regard no man was held in higher esteem."

HARRY GOLD, assistant to George J. Schaefer, United Artists: "Felix Feist was one of the industry's truly fine figures. An outstanding sales executive, he possessed rare qualities."

A. P. WAXMAN, advertising counsel, G. B.: "Felix Feist is gone, but the memory of his genial and effervescent personality will ever linger in my memory. For more than 22 years I have had both business and social relations with Felix and never in that time had he by deed or action been other than what the words 'true gentleman' implied."

The Jewish Theatrical Guild, DAVID FERGUSON, executive secretary: "The Guild mourns deeply the passing of Felix Feist. He was a life member of the organization, having been one of the first to join when the Guild was established 12 years ago. Although he had not been active in recent years he could always be depended upon to lend his support."

BOSTON, April 16.—WALTER LITTLEFIELD, Allied leader, said: "Speaking as a personal acquaintance, the industry has lost a great asset."

FRANK LYDON, vice-president, Allied: "The industry can ill afford to lose men of Feist's calibre."

MAURICE WOLF, M-G-M manager: "The men in the field loved Felix Feist and his passing is a great loss to them as well as the industry. He was a fine leader."

H. M. ADDISON, district manager for Loew's: "Feist's death is a great blow to all and particularly M-G-M. The industry will miss him tremendously."

CHICAGO, April 16.—ABE FISCHER: "I feel a great personal loss. He was so naturally gracious. I shall never forget him or his many real courtesies to me."

FELIX MENDELSOHN, branch manager, M-G-M: "I will always remember with a great deal of pleasure the many years I was associated with Felix Feist. He was a great and lovable character and I feel a sincere personal loss in his passing."

ARTHUR SCHOENSTADT, Schoenstadt Theatres: "Felix Feist was a man who was fair in all controversy. I am but one of many who are deeply grieved at his passing."

W. A. V. MACK: "In the passing of Felix Feist our industry has suffered an irreparable loss. His magnetic personality and democratic spirit endeared him to everyone with whom he came into contact."

CINCINNATI, April 16.—EDWIN M. BOOTH, manager of the M-G-M exchange: "Feist was my personal friend for many years. Words are inadequate to express my deep sorrow. He was intensely human, lovable and considerate, as evidenced by his practice of invariably requesting two minutes of silence with bowed heads in memory of Marcus Loew before the opening of every convention. His sterling qualities and marvelous character will live forever as an inspiration to this industry."

ALLAN S. MORITZ, manager of the Columbia exchange: "Feist's passing leaves a void in the business and social world that will be hard to fill. He had a host of friends here."

CLEVELAND, April 16.—I. J. SCHMERTZ, Twentieth Century-Fox branch manager: "The passing of Feist is a terrible loss to the entire industry."

HENRY GREENBERGER and MAX LEFKOWICH of the Community Circuit, Cleveland, issued this joint statement: "We deeply regret the loss of a man of Feist's caliber in the industry. He was a fine gentleman and wielded a wide influence for good."

FRANK DREW, M-G-M branch manager: "The death of Felix Feist is a terrible shock. He was one of the most beloved men in the industry."

MYER FINE, Associated Theatres: "The industry has lost one of its biggest leaders. Feist was a fine man whose death we sincerely regret."

NAT WOLF, Warner zone manager: "The death of an inspiring character like Feist leaves the industry crushed. He set the high standards on which this industry has been built and his death is a great industry loss."

DETROIT, April 16.—FRANK J. DOWNEY, branch manager, M-G-M: "I cannot adequately express my deep grief over the untimely passing of our great leader and my warm personal friend. I speak the feelings of each and every employee of the Detroit branch in expressing the deepest of sorrow."

M. M. GOTTLIEB, branch manager, Universal: "The industry has lost one of its outstanding leaders and a fine man."

NAT LEVY, divisional manager, RKO: "Mr. Feist's death is a tremendous loss. He was a splendid fellow personally and loved by all."

J. E. FLYNN, M-G-M divisional manager, was in Buffalo today.

KANSAS CITY, April 16.—H. P. WOLFBERG, M-G-M district manager: "I knew no man so universally loved, who never threw a curve to a competitor or to his own men. He was known for his humbleness as his success increased and his eagerness to help anyone less fortunate."

WASHINGTON, April 16.—SAM A. GALLANTY, division manager for Columbia: "The loss is the industry's and not Metro's alone."

HARDIE MEAKIN, managing director of Keith's: "He was the squarest shooter of them all."

SAM WHEELER, branch manager, Twentieth Century-Fox: "His passing removes a dynamic personality and is a great loss to all."

ABE LICHTMAN, circuit operator: "The industry loses one of its best men."

From Roanoke RUDOLPH BERGER of M-G-M said: "Passing of our leader and friend is a saddening shock. We who have worked with him so long appreciated his sterling qualities. Our organization will ever bear the imprint of his soul and spirit."

CARTER T. BARRON, Loew divisional manager: "To know Mr. Feist was to love him. His going has cost the industry the sweetest, finest, most inspiring character it has known."

The M-G-M exchange will observe 10 minutes of silence Friday morning as services get under way in New York and already has sent a floral piece to New York.

HAMILTON, O., April 16.—TRACY BARHAM, general manager of Southio and Midhio Theatres: "He was the personification of a perfect gentleman. I always admired him for his high ideals and straightforward business tactics and most deeply regret his death."

LEXINGTON, Ky., April 16.—ANNA BELL WARD, general manager, Phoenix Amusement Co.: "I have lost one of my best friends."

DALLAS, April 16.—R. J. O'Donnell described the death of Felix F. Feist as a "distinct loss." He had this to say: "The passing of Felix Feist is a distinct loss to me personally as our friendship and business association had extended over a long period. Cancellations, Local Boards Are Discussed dividual companies, beginning probably late next week.

Attending yesterday's session as M. P. T. O. A. representatives were Ed Kuykendall, M. P. T. O. A. president; Fred Wehrenberg, chairman of the board; Charles E Williams, Omaha; O. C. Lam, Rome, Ga.; Jack Miller, Chicago, and Lewen Pizor, Philadelphia. Representing distributors were William F. Rodgers, M-G-M; Neil F. Agnew, Paramount; James R. Grainger, Universal; Paul N. Lazarus, United Artists; Jules Levy, RKO; John D. Clark, Twentieth Century-Fox, and Abe Montague, Columbia. Warners and Republic sent no representatives to the meeting, although both had been invited to do so.

The tenor of the distributor attitude appeared to be that concessions in trade policies were due exhibitors and that some undoubtedly should be made immediately, if only to indicate that self-regulation in exhibition and distribution is possible. Distributors questioned were also of the opinion that much of the exhibitor program requires careful consideration and probably lengthy negotiation. That definite beneficial results will be attained, however, was the belief of many on both sides.

"The conference was a serious attempt to iron out some of the most pressing differences existing between exhibitor and distributor," Kuykendall, as spokesman for the exhibitors, said after the meeting. "Because of the representative attendance of distributors, the frankness with which the problems were discussed and the understanding of the issues, our committee is most optimistic of obtaining results. We expect these results to be of benefit to all exhibitors."

Among the subjects discussed at the conference in addition to cancellations and the establishment of local conciliation boards were designated play dates, the forcing of shorts with features and a simplification of the standard contract. The exhibitor delegation said it was ready to battle for an unrestricted 20 per cent cancellation and distributors appeared just as determined to oppose anything more than an unqualified 10 per cent privilege. Bargaining on this and other points in the M. P. T. O. A. program is expected to be brisk when the exhibitor committee goes into its meetings with individual companies.

It was decided to hold no meetings today because of the funeral of Felix Feist, M-G-M general sales manager. Likewise, no definite arrangements for meetings over the week-end could be made and, in order to give sales managers ample time in which to discuss company policy on the exhibitor program with top executives, it was felt that no individual meetings would get under way before the latter part of next week. When these meetings begin it is expected that the M. P. T. O. A. committee will be augmented by Frank C. Walker, Morgan Walsh of San Francisco and L. C. Griffith of Oklahoma City.

Miller returned to Chicago last night. Lam, Williams, Wehrenberg and Pizor plan to leave today and Kuykendall may leave the city for a few days this week-end.

Lion's Den Stuff

All of the exhibitor representation at the joint trade practice conference had assembled in the lounge of the Cinema Club shortly before 1 o'clock yesterday. In walked Neil F. Agnew, vice-president in charge of Paramount distribution.

The first of his contingent to arrive, he took a look, semi-seriously decided the atmosphere might be too full of exhibitors and that he ought to move on, then stayed.

I. T. O. A. to Press Action

The I. T. O. A. has every intention of proceeding with its planned anti-trust action in Federal court against major distributors, based on the alleged forcing of short subjects with features, it is learned.

The action is expected to be filed in Federal court next week, it was said. The current trade practice conferences between exhibitor organizations and distributors will have no effect of deterring the anticipated action.

Zoning, Giveaways Talked

PHILADELPHIA April 16.—Independent Theatre Owners, meeting here today, discussed zoning plans, premiums and double featuring. Action was held in abeyance pending consideration by the entire membership.

It was decided that if the M. P. T. O. A. invites outside organizations to its New York meet that the local group will send a representative.

LOS ANGELES, April 16.—Harry Maizlish was today made advertising and publicity director of all Warner Los Angeles houses. He succeeds Jack Rosenstein, who resigned.

Committee on Self-Regulation Holds First Session

MPTOA 10-Point Program

The M.P.T.O.A. committee on trade practices, composed of six men and headed by Ed Kuykendall, went into its conference with distributor representatives at the Cinema Club yesterday on this platform:

1. A reasonable and unconditional minimum rejection privilege in all exhibition contracts for 10 or more feature pictures bought at the same time.

(a) Removal of the conditions and restrictions in the so-called "N.R.A. 10% clause" now in use, which takes away the exhibitor's right to reject pictures; if he does not buy and license at the same time every single picture released by the distributor and/or offered to the exhibitor; if he fails to request in writing the cancellation of the picture within 14 days of the actual release in the exchange territory, which is frequently impossible for the exhibitor to determine; if the film rentals average over $250 per picture; if he is unable to book the pictures exactly as they become available; or if he is in default in any respect at the time on any of the terms, conditions and obligations of his contract.

(b) An increase in the number of pictures that may be rejected (it is clearly understood that no exhibitor is required to reject any pictures) from the present conditional 10% to an unconditional 20% of the total number of feature pictures licensed.

2. The establishment of readily available local joint boards of grievance committees of bona fide local theatre owners and local branch managers of the distributors for the organized investigation, conciliation or arbitration of trade disputes, to which any exhibitor can present a complaint or grievance for such local board to hear, investigate and endeavor to work out an adjustment or voluntary agreement between the parties involved. It is intended that these local boards should be composed of business men experienced in and familiar with our business, that their proceedings should be informal and their recommendations for the adjustment of disputes and differences subject to acceptance by the parties.

We believe these readily available facilities for impartially ascertaining the facts in commercial disputes, bringing the parties to the dispute together and mediating their differences will relieve our business of much costly and unsatisfactory litigation, but will deny no one their "day in court" if they insist on a law suit.

3. Unreasonable clearance, either in time or area, not based on actual competition, secured by private contracts or agreements without the knowledge or consent of subsequent run exhibitors.

(a) The growing necessity for an openly negotiated and published uniform maximum clearance and zoning plan in each metropolitan center, to limit clearance within a defined maximum for each theatre or run, to provide a definite and uniform availability for subsequent runs of like classifications, and to encourage reasonable admission scales by offering earlier availability to theatres charging higher admissions, and to prevent unreasonable clearance not based on actual or probable competition between theatres.

4. Overbuying of pictures to deprive a competing exhibitor of needed attractions for his theatre.

(a) Encouraged by unrestricted double featuring.

(b) Prompt release of pictures rejected under selective contracts.

(c) Involves questions of theatre policy, genuine competitive buying and bidding for pictures, reasonable booking requirements of specific theatres and frequently expert and unbiased judgment of the suitability of attractions, which can only be determined fairly by an impartial local committee qualified by personal experience and knowledge to judge each separate situation on its merits.

5. Unfair cut-rate competition between theatres, frequently forcing the sale of motion picture entertainment below cost, demoralizing and cheapening the business and ultimately and inevitably ruining the quality of pictures for all theatres. Rebates in the form of:

(a) Premiums, give away and gift nights.

(b) Lotteries, pseudo-contests and prizes.

(c) Two-for-one, coupons, merchants tickets and indiscriminate use of "advertising" passes.

And also cut-rate competition in the form of:

(a) Two or three feature pictures for one admission, the so-called "double and triple featuring."

(b) Unreasonably low admission scales underselling other theatres playing the same pictures but required to pay much higher film rentals for them.

6. Control of the non-theatrical exhibitions of professional entertainment pictures, to prevent unfair competition with an established theatre.

7. A standard form of exhibition contract, reduced to essential clauses, understandable in language to intelligent exhibitors who are not lawyers, with no trick clauses giving unfair advantages to the distributor added thereto without the actual knowledge and voluntary consent of the exhibitor, and with a uniform provision for the enforceable arbitration of all contract disputes.

8. The separate score charge still made by some distributors, which has never been justified by them. This is particularly unfair on percentage contracts.

9. Arbitrary designation by a distributor of the days of the week a percentage picture must be exhibited regardless of suitability.

(a) Relief of this requirement on unsuitable pictures, with impartial determination of suitability.

(b) Restriction on proportion of Saturday and Sunday dates required.

10. Forcing excess and unwanted short subjects with feature picture sales.

I.A.T.S.E. president, who was obliged to leave for Chicago last night for conferences there on a new operators' union agreement with Chicago theatres.

Due to the inability of W. L. Hutchinson to attend the meeting, the carpenters' union was not represented. It was stated, however, that agreements for comparable crafts would apply to that union, thus eliminating the necessity for separate negotiations. Some divisions of the unions represented are not asking any wage increases but all are seeking a 30-hour week in place of the present 36-hour week.

Attending the session at the office of Pat Casey, studio labor representative, were Browne and Steve Newman of the I.A.T.S.E.; Casey, Daniel Tobin, teamsters' union; Daniel Tracy, electricians' union; Joseph Weber, musicians' union. Sidney R. Kent, Twentieth Century-Fox; Nicholas M. Schenck, M-G-M; M. H. Aylesworth, RKO; E. W. Hammons, Educational; Harry Buckley, United Artists; Nate Spingold, Columbia, and Austin Keough, Paramount, represented the industry.

the Senate by Assistant Attorney General John Dickinson, it was made known today by the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Appearing before the committee at a recent hearing Dickinson pointed out that it is now necessary for the department to wait until it receives a complaint before it can investigate possible violations, and complained that frequently the department may study a matter for several months without securing evidence that would stand up in court.

An additional $15,000 is expected to be provided in the departmental appropriation bill to develop a sort of general staff to guide and direct investigations for the purpose of possible litigation.

the lottery laws, it was learned here yesterday.

The Winthrop had operated a game called Farmer Miller. Special Sessions was upheld in a decision in which the Appellate Division held that prizes awarded as the result of spinning a wheel in a theatre are a violation of the lottery laws of the state.

Several independents earlier had been successful in having similar actions dismissed by city magistrates.

Wants Salary, Damages

Los Angeles, April 16.—Merle Oberon's action for $150,000 against Selznick International alleging a breach of contract is in two parts. The actress is claiming $86,000 in salary loss and $50,000 in general damages. She admits $10,600 already has been paid by the producer.

Details Asked In Government Civil Action

porate and 30 individual defendants make general denials of all of the Government's allegations except for certain factual declarations. Denied in toto are allegations that film franchises with the Missouri, New Grand Central and Ambassador, in St. Louis, were canceled except for breaches of contract by Skouras Super Theatres Corp., with which they were made; that intimidation or coercion was employed in an effort to have the leases transferred to Warners; that lessees or prospective lessees were disparaged; that a conspiracy to refuse the houses a film supply existed, or that threats were made of refusals to sell to the lessees' houses elsewhere.

Paramount's answer states that the company "has determined for itself," without consulting anyone, that it would not license the exhibition of its pictures to corporations affiliated with the lessees of the three theatres "because said lessees have destroyed the good will previously existing between them and the defendant by maliciously and without just cause and for the purpose of injuring the defendant by charging it and its then officer with the commission of a crime, and causing them to be indicted on such false charge."

The statement is made in answer to the Government allegation that the defendants refuse to sell to F. & M., and refers to the indictment in the criminal proceedings at St. Louis of Paramount and George J. Schaefer.

The question of res adjudicata is set up in the answers as a separate defense under the contention that the allegations in the Government's complaint have already been litigated and determined in favor of the defendants through the dismissal of the criminal action. The answers ask dismissal of the suit here on that ground.

At the present time, special details of police are necessary to handle crowds which overflow to the streets, a situation which in at least one case entirely closed the thoroughfare to traffic.

VOL. 39. NO. 92 NEW YORK, SATURDAY, APRIL 18, 1936 TEN CENTS

Pathe's New Firm Called Grand Nat'l.

Alperson Starts in 10 Days; Plan 20 Films

Pathe's sponsored producing and distributing organization has been christened Grand National Films, Inc., which contemplates a 30-picture program next season. This s the company which will be headed by E. L. Alperson, who has resigned as chief film buyer for National Theatres, Twentieth Century-Fox's theatre company, to assume his new post in about 10 days.

E. L. Alperson

Carl Leserman, assistant to Gradwell L. Sears, western sales manager of Warners, will be in charge of sales, but the date on which he assumes his new position had not been set as of yesterday. In the meantime, the understanding is Alperson's present duties at National Theatres will be divided among other executives there while Warners state no successor to Leserman has been discussed as yet.

Formal announcement of the completion of the deal, which, in its essentials, has already been published in MOTION PICTURE DAILY, followed a series of meetings of the board of Pathe, climaxing with an evening session Thursday. The statement declared "a large portion of Pathe's interest in

N. Y. Court Decision Seen Legalizing Chance Games

The operation of chance games in theatres in New York state is legal, and not in violation of the state lottery laws, if the purchase of admission to the theatre is not a prerequisite to participation in the game, according to an interpretation here of the decision of the Court of Appeals of the state at Albany yesterday.

This was indicated despite the fact that the highest court in the state upheld previous decisions of Special Sessions and the Appellate Division, finding the Winthrop in Brooklyn guilty of operating a lottery. Special Sessions decided against the theatre in the operation of Farmer Miller, a chance game, on the basis of the fact that payment of admission was necessary before participation. This has since been changed, it was indicated, and free participation is the basis on which virtually all the chance games now in use in the state are operated.

The lottery law of the state specifically states that where a "valuable consideration," under which head theatre admission falls, is charged for participation, the chance is a lottery. The Court of Appeals' reaffirmation of the Appellate Division decision, therefore, was taken on technical grounds, but cleared the important point of court

HOLLYWOOD, April 17.—The Screen Writers' Guild membership has voted unanimously for a united front in the closed shop drive, with the conservative members who have formerly opposed amalgamation with the Authors' League swinging to the plan for the sake of the unified strength.

A meeting held at the Beverly-Wilshire Hotel was attended by Marc Connolly, Authors' League president, who presided. About 80 writers were present.

Certain revisions and clarifications for the constitution were recommended, with Attorneys Laurence Beilsenson and Neil McCarthy assigned to draft the resolutions. A final vote on the question of approval is scheduled for May 2.

Short Forcing Curb Favored By the MPTOA

Distributors Are Urged To Consider Problem

Restrictions on the number of short subjects which may be sold to an exhibitor by any one company are being favored by the M.P.T.O.A. trade practice committee as a solution for the problem of forcing shorts with features, it was learned yesterday.

Distributors have been urged to consider restrictive methods on shorts selling in formulating their individual policies on the M.P.T.O.A.'s 10-point program of trade practice regulation. While abandoning none of the 10 points proposed for treatment, it was apparent yesterday that the M.P.T.O.A. committee is concentrating principally on problems which offer the greatest hope of quick solution. Among these are increased cancellations and the setting up of local, voluntary conciliation boards, both of which appear to be virtually assured to exhibitors, at least from a majority of national distributors. The forcing of shorts with features also appears to come within this classification.

The M.P.T.O.A. committee plans to gather here again in about two weeks to begin its meetings with indi-

The move was made, Stewart said, to expedite collection of the judgment, as a receiver has broader powers of inquiry than the judgment holders. The judgment would be a lien against any assets of Fox which come into the receiver's possession. Among Fox assets which will be sought, it was

Three B'way Houses Are Sold at Auction

The Astor-Bijou-Morosco theatre block at Broadway and 45th Street was sold at auction yesterday to the City Investing Co., real estate firm, for $1,800,000. The sale is subject to a first mortgage of $1,000,000 held by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. City Investing holds a second mortgage of $1,300,000 on the property. The latter was the only bidder.

A representative of the bidder said that no definite plans have been made for improving the property yet, although it was admitted that consideration had been given to construction of a taxpayer on part or all of the property at some future date. If this plan is carried out, it is reported that the new building plans would provide for one theatre and a large department store on the property. S. S. Kresge is named as the prospective tenant of the store space. The building plans, it was said, are dependent upon the type of leases which the new owner is able to make on the theatres now standing. If advantageous leases can be made, no construction work may be started for some time.

The Astor and Bijou have been leased by S. S. Krellberg and the Morosco by the Shuberts.

Reversal of Cagney Verdict Is Sought

LOS ANGELES, April 17.—Preston and Files, Warner attorneys, yesterday filed a motion in Superior Court to have the James Cagney contract verdict set aside.

The attorneys claim Judge Bogue's findings should entitle Warners to the verdict. They insist that Cagney was in default when he refused his last picture assignment, and as the billing difficulties had arisen prior to the offer of assignment Cagney was not entitled to court relief from the contract. The motion will be argued before Judge Bogue April 22. If it is denied, Warners will file an appeal to a higher court, their attorneys say.

Celebrities Attend Opening of "Things"

"Things to Come" opened at the Rivoli last night with a gathering of prominent industry figures, social and political lights in the invited audience at the Rivoli. Philadelphia newspaper critics and a number of aviators who make up the Quiet Birdmen were also present.

The usual bright lights and sidewalk crush that mark Broadway openings featured the occasion. The picture had been given a preview previously before a gathering of Washington officials and diplomats.

Zukor Silent About Emanuel Cohen Deal

Adolph Zukor, Paramount chairman, who returned yesterday from production conferences at the company's studios, declined to comment on reports that Emanuel Cohen would head a unit to contribute six to 10 pictures on Paramount's new season schedule, filling in the production blank created when negotiations with Winfield R. Sheehan were abandoned several weeks ago.

Zukor, likewise, declined comment on reports that Paramount had discussed a new producing deal with Walter Wanger. The latter has stated that he will produce for United Artists, as announced.

John E. Otterson, Paramount president, is expected to leave Hollywood early next week in time to attend the company's monthly board meeting next Thursday. The company's 1935 financial report is scheduled to be presented to the board on that day.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Pickford-Lasky Prod., Inc., has filed an application with the Securities and Exchange Commission for permission to issue 26,600 shares of no par value preferred stock and 12,750 shares of no par value common.

The preferred stock is to be offered at $100 per share and the common at $1 to purchasers of the preferred. The proceeds will be applied to liquidation of loans and for working capital.

Among the company's assets are Mary Pickford's contract to make 12 pictures for United Artists in 10 years. Jesse L. Lasky has an option to purchase a large block of stock.

Studio Labor Talks To Continue Today

George E. Browne, I. A. T. S. E. president, who had planned to be in Chicago today, cancelled his trip and is remaining here for the resumption of negotiations. Indications are that the sessions will consume several days.

idual companies. Warners and Republic, the only national distributors which sent no representatives to the joint meeting Thursday, probably will be contacted by the committee at that time. The decision to hold no meetings next week was made in order to give distributors ample time in which to consider the M.P.T.O.A. program and decide just what concessions each is prepared to give.

Indications are that final action will be prompt once the individual meetings get under way. The imminence of the new selling season and the necessity of preparing new sales contracts which would incorporate any changes agreed upon is seen as hastening final decisions. Many exhibitors will defer buying new season product until the entire conferences and negotiations have been concluded, one exhibitor leader pointed out.

Ed Kuykendall, M.P.T.O.A. president, conferred yesterday with Harry Brandt, I.T.O.A. president, whose organization has asked to be represented in the negotiations. Kuykendall said that both were in agreement on the objectives of the conferences and added that representation of other exhibitor organizations might be made at a later stage of the exhibitor-distributor meetings.

Hundreds at Feist Services

Industry Leaders At Feist Funeral

Samuel H. Goldenson officiated and Dr. Jonah Wise, long one of Feist's personal friends, delivered a second eulogy.

One of the most representative cross-sections of the industry in New York and adjacent cities comprised the mourners. The common denominator was sorrow at Feist's passing and, sweepingly enough, it embraced all creeds, all companies, men and women in high places and low.

One of the most gracious of tributes was the presence of Barney Balaban, who made a special trip from Chicago on behalf of his brother, John, and himself and returned to his home city yesterday afternoon.

Their eulogies done, Drs. Goldenson and Wise, in slow procession, walked down the long aisle leading from pulpit to street with the flower-bedecked casket resting high on the shoulders of its pallbearers following, as the organist in his hidden loft, softly played the beautiful strains of the Largo by Handel.

Thus the services, brief and dignified, came to their close.

Kuykendall points out that the hospital facilities are open to all employes in the business. After describing how national circuits have begun plans for participating in the drive, Kuykendall says that local committees of managers are now being formed in key cities.

Chance Games Get Sanction Of N. Y. Court

definition of a lottery as applied to chance games in theatres.

This was the first case on theatre chance games to reach the state's highest court. The paragraph in the Court of Appeals decision, pointed out as explaining the reason the court technically reaffirmed the lower court verdict, but defined the legality of the games, read:

"Defendants offered evidence tending to show that possibility of participation in the chance by those who bought no ticket of admission to the theater and in no way paid any valuable consideration for the opportunity to share in the chance, but the trial court rejected the credibility of such testimony. In view of this rejection our decision in People vs. Mail & Express Co. 231 N. Y. 586, has no application."

The decision cited referred to a prize contest for $15,000 conducted by the New York Evening Post on the basis of numbers published in the paper. It was decided, however, that since the rules of the contest specifically declared that it was not necessary to purchase a paper in order to participate in the contest, the chance was not a violation of the lottery laws. The same grounds, it was pointed out, apply in the case of theatre chance games.

Four Operators Arrested

CINCINNATI, April 17.—Thomas A. Reilly, owner of the Rialto, downtown subsequent, Nicholas Russo and Bert Leder, ushers, and Jack Pendleton, promoter, were arrested for operating Sweepstakes, on warrants signed by police, who attended a performance and seized the prize money as evidence.

Albert Weinstein, attorney, appearing for defendants, and himself associated with management of the Strand, downtown independent, contended that Sweepstakes, pronounced legal in other Ohio situations, is not a game of chance. Municipal Judge A. L. Luebbers has continued the case, the first of its kind to be brought before him.

NEWTON, N. C., April 17.—A permanent injunction has been issued by U. S. District Judge E. Y. Webb against the Imperial Theatre, operated by G. G. Mitchell, which prevents him from using Jack Pot, Gold Mine, or any similar drawing, on the ground that it is an infringement on the Bank Night patent.

The case was brought some time ago by Affiliated Enterprises, Inc., owners of the Bank Night patent.

N.Y. Theatres Pick Up; Two Go Into Boom

Two of Manhattan's first runs, the Music Hall and the Paramount, went into the throes of a boom that called for extra shows and police aid over last week-end, and others felt the ending of Lent in varying degrees.

Rain practically all last week made the pre-Easter days worse than usual and it had some effect on Easter takings, but by Sunday night "Desire" at the Paramount was drawing in a big way and the Roxy with "Gentle Julia" was taking on a prosperous air. The Music Hall was also doing a big business.

Full effects of the pickup at the Music Hall made themselves felt Monday morning when school children accompanied by parents descended on the place by thousands. The opening was advanced to 9:30 o'clock. The first week's take was slightly over $100,000.

The Roxy claims $25,000 on the first four days of "Gentle Julia" and expects $38,000 for the full week.

At the Paramount there was a noticeable gain among women patrons. The doors are being opened at 8:30 A.M., with the first de luxe show at 10:36. The film shows seven times before closing at 2 A.M. Ethel Merman and Jack Little head the stage show.

The Strand, with "The Singing Kid" going into its second week; the Capitol, with "Small Town Girl," and the Rivoli, with "These Three" in its fourth week reported good gains. The Capitol will hold "Small Town Girl" a second week.

The Loew circuit opened "Small Town Girl" out of town and reported fine business. The New York circuit is doing well this week, but is suffering in comparison with the gait at which out of town houses are running.

Last week the Capitol grossed $27,500 with "The Unguarded Hour." The Roxy ended at $23,000 with "Laughing Irish Eyes," the Palace at $7,000 with "Charlie Chan at the Circus" and "Colleen," the Rialto at $5,800 with "Silly Billies," and the Paramount an indifferent $17,000 with "Give Us This Night."

Booking Deals Told In Hart-U. A. Suit

Additional evidence purporting to show that United Artists incorporated "Tumbleweed" in block booking contracts was produced yesterday in the trial of the action brought by William S. Hart against U. A. charging conspiracy in N. Y. Supreme Court before Justice Philip McCook.

Alfred Hines, formerly sales official for U. A. was on the stand for the entire day. Under questioning by Hart's attorney he admitted that the Saenger Circuit in New Orleans was compelled to take "Tumbleweeds" in a block booking arrangement with "Wild Justice."

Hart's counsel pointed out that "Wild Justice" cost $15,000 to produce and "Tumbleweeds" $302,000.

Hart's case will be summed up in Tuesday's court session. Recess until Monday.

ITOA's Tax Appeal Moves Not Opposed

the Appellate Division of its application for an injunction against the city and distributors. The appeal petition was opposed by the local United Artists exchange, through its attorney, T. Newman Lawler of O'Brien, Raftery & Driscoll, who will also oppose it in the Court of Appeals on the grounds that the I.T.O.A. is pursuing an improper appeal procedure in opposing the tax.

The United Artists exchange has pending an action before the Appellate Division through which it hopes to prove that film rentals are not subject to a city sales tax. The I.T.O.A. appeal may prejudice the United Artists case, Lawler believes. A decision on the I.T.O.A.'s petition to appeal is expected within a few days, according to Melvin Albert, of Weisman, Quinn, Allen & Spett, I.T.O.A. attorneys.

Passage Predicted For New Jersey Tax

on all admissions between 11 and 25 cents and one cent on each additional 25-cent bracket or fraction. Coupled with the amusement levy are taxes on cigarettes and cosmetics.

If the Democrats supply the votes to pass the bill in the Senate, they will be following the same course they did in the House. For weeks the House Democrats voted solidly against the measure and it suffered repeated defeats until Tuesday three Democrats changed and it passed.

Since the bill was defeated in the Senate the State Relief Administration has turned relief back to municipalities. So much pressure has been brought to bear on Democratic leaders by municipal officials that they have withdrawn their opposition to the tax.

Elliott Buys for N. W.

Minneapolis, April 17.—Elliott Film Co. has purchased the Burroughs-Tarzan franchise for Minnesota, Northern Wisconsin and the Dakotas.

"Magnificent"

London, April 17.—Broadway will want to see and may fall heavily for "The Robber Symphony," Concordia Film trade shown at Queen's Hall. This is what is described as the first "composed" film with story, score and production by Frederick Fehrer. A revolutionary unit of film, opera and fairy story undoubtedly has been achieved at the one time.

"The Robber Symphony" is a grotesque comedy and a magnificent picture. It has a macabre, Caligari-like flavor in settings and character that may even exceed its famous predecessor in the scope of fantastic imagination and pictorial beauty of its Alpine snow scene. This one cannot be classified, but must be seen.

Flash Previews

"Florida Special"—Light entertainment on the well-known theme of thieves working aboard a passenger train. Good comedy by Jack Oakie and Sam Hearn, plus some tunes by Jackie Heller.

"Mine with the Iron Door"—An interesting outdoor action drama based on a Harold Bell Wright story, featuring Richard Arlen, Stanley Fields and Cecilia Parker.

"For the Service"—Another Buck Jones story, and a top-notch western. It is a tale of the pioneer days when the "scouts" sought to maintain peace between the early settlers and the Indians.

These pictures will be reviewed in full in a coming issue of Motion Picture Daily.

Pathe's New Firm Called Grand Nat'l.

Grand National will be distributed to the stockholders of Pathe as a dividend and it is expected that the stock will be listed in the N. Y. Curb Exchange."

The new company will produce as well as distribute, according to the announcement. Its distributing activities for the remainder of this season will include product handled by First Division Exchanges which Pathe controls. First Division has branches principally in the east, its operating points including Albany, Atlanta, Boston, Buffalo, Charlotte, New Orleans, New York, Philadelphia and Washington. Its product is franchised to independent exchanges in Cincinnati, Louisville, Detroit, Pittsburgh, Chicago, Indianapolis, Los Angeles, Cleveland, San Antonio, Seattle, Denver, Minneapolis and Omaha.

In the remainder of the nation, Grand National presumably will open its own offices. First Division's lineup includes Invincible and Chesterfield, but that contract expires with the conclusion of this season.

Grand National also will operate the State, Denver, as an inheritance from Pathe which has been running the theatre. Alperson explained yesterday that this did not necessarily imply the new company had any intentions of entering exhibition as well as production and distribution.

The board will consist of Alperson, Frank F. Kolbe, president of Pathe; Edwin Silverman, president of Essaness Theatres of Chicago; Robert W. Atkins, partner in Abbott, Proctor & Paine, financial house; Charles L. Stillman, treasurer of Time, Inc.; James A. Davidson, now Alperson's assistant in National Theatres; and Leserman. The company will establish headquarters in the R. K. O. Building.

Leserman was taken ill while visiting Alperson's home on Park Ave. Thursday night and taken to his own home in an automobile. There, a doctor was waiting who rushed him to the New Rochelle Hospital. Apparently ill with intestinal grippe, Leserman was X-rayed yesterday and may have to undergo an operation on his gall bladder. Decision in the matter had not been reached at an early hour this morning when the hospital reported his condition as "fair."

Grand National will maintain offices in the RKO Building.

Conclusion of Music Strike Is in Sight

A settlement of the strike of members of Local 802 of the A. F. Paine, of the Music Publishers' Protective Ass'n.

Pending a final settlement, however, the union is continuing with the conclusion of individual agreements with music companies. To date 31 such separate settlements have been effected.

"No One at Present" in the Post Occupied by Feist, Says Schenck

The question: "Has any decision been made on a successor to Felix F. Feist?"

Nicholas M. Schenck's reply: "No one at present."

The sales cabinet at M-G-M is composed of William F. Rodgers, eastern sales manager; Tom J. Connors, handling the south and Canada, and E. M. Saunders, in charge of the west. These men were associates of Feist for years.

However, since Al Lichtman joined the company some months ago without a designated title he had been cooperating with Feist on sales, concentrating his own attention on situations calling for special handling.

The assumption is that Lichtman's duties along sales lines will be increased.

Pascal Sees a Closed Shop For Writers in Two Years

Hollywood, April 19.—Guild, or a closed, shop for writers is predicated in two years by Ernest Pascal, president of the Screen Writers' Guild.

Three attempts by producers under the NRA to effect a 50 per cent salary cut for writers are behind the formation of the Screen Writers' Guild which now proposes to join hands with the Authors' League and associated guilds and the Dramatists' Guild in one nationwide amalgamation of writers.

Pascal gives a highlight history of his organization, which claims about 900 screen writers here, in the current issue of The Screen Writers' Magazine, official organ of the guild of which he, with Robert Montgomery, is an honorary editor and Norman Rivkin the man who actually does the editing job.

"The Guild, as you all know," writes Pascal, "was born of the 50 per cent salary cut. Suddenly and quite unjustifiably, as subsequent events proved, the producers decided to gyp writers out of half their weekly salaries and the writers were faced with the fact that they couldn't do anything about it. They had no weapon with which to defend themselves, especially when the battle shifted from Hollywood to Washington and remained there for two years. In that time, under the

Delay to Fall Of U. S. Suit Seen Likely

Court Denies Gov't Plea To Move Up Appeal

Cape Girardeau, Mo., April 19.—The possibility of a delay at least unil the fall in the trial of the Government's suit in U. S. District Court in New York against Warners, Paramount, RKO and numerous individuals, is seen in the action of Federal Judge Charles B. Davis here yesterday in declining to grant the Government's motion to move up from May 6 to April 26 the date for the filing of the defense appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court.

The appeal is to be taken from the ruling of Federal Judge Joseph W. Molyneaux of Minneapolis in St. Louis Jan. 29, allowing the Dept. of Justice to dismiss without prejudice its equity case against the defendant companies. The ruling followed the earlier aquittal of the defendants by a jury in the criminal action.

The action yesterday of Judge Davis indicates that the Supreme Court will not hear the defense appeal until the high tribunal's fall term. It was

Studio Union Talks To Resume Tomorrow

Negotiations on new wage and hour schedules for studio unions which are parties to the five-year minimum basic agreement with producers will be resumed tomorrow at the office of Pat Casey, studio labor representative, after a brief session on Saturday. Indications are that tentative agreements on wage increases, ranging from 10 to 25 per cent for the various crafts, will be set tomorrow or Wednesday.

Distributors are opposing the unions'

Balcon's contract with GB has a minimum of two more years to run and he has every intention of fulfilling this contract, Bernerd further stated.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

THIS space has had its say, not once but twice, on the problem of visitors at the studios, the hordes in which they descend on Hollywood to clutter up, delay and make production more expensive. The mailbag, arriving conveniently to make columning easier on this day, gives up an exhibitor letter, indignant and on the same subject. Charles H. Barron, manager of the Barron and Kansas theatres at Pratt, Kansas, now goes into his righteous boilings. . . .

Writes he:

"I was very much interested in your article in regard to studios allowing hundreds of visitors to invade the lots and at the same time exhibitors who are legitimate customers not being allowed to see what is going on in their business from the producing end.

"My wife and I have just returned from a six weeks' visit to the coast and, while we have been in many studios at different times, we want to relate one thing that happened to us on our trip.

"We had a letter from the president of one of the producing companies, written to the studio manager, asking that we be shown around. We tried to contact the studio manager first by 'phone, to find the most suitable time to call. But talking to one of those Smart-Front-Office-Girls was as far as we got. Although we told her we had a letter from the president to the studio manager all she could tell us was to call on Saturday afternoon, as that was the only day visitors were allowed. Of course, anyone knows that most companies are not working Saturday afternoons and we told her we wanted to make our visit when there was something to see and some pictures in the making, but we got nowhere.

"We called at the office anyway with our letter, were never allowed to see the studio manager. His secretary talked to us and politely explained that this Star and that Star would not allow spectators, but if we would go on the lot with a guide she would try to see if we could see something. Well, we saw the property room, the miniature room and walked down the lot, but were then advised that it was absolutely impossible for us to get onto any stage.

"Of course, we had wasted our time and had seen nothing that we cared about and left wondering just what one has to have to get onto a stage. If a letter from the company's president would not do it, what would? We feel we, as customers, should be the ones to see the inside workings of the studios, see the merchandise which we handle and keep up with what product we will buy later.

"On this trip, we did get on another lot and saw a number of pictures in the making. But, we got into this studio, not through our business, but by knowing a party who worked in the studios and secured a pass for us.

"We feel it is ridiculous that this condition should exist. Why should any Star get so temperamental that he cannot be seen? If they could only realize that if exhibitors did not buy their pictures, the Stars would have no jobs.

"We are intelligent enough to know that the studios cannot allow promiscuous visitors, neither can they allow people on some sets some of the time, but when you do get into the studios and see people who have no interest other than curiosity, having no trouble to get passes, you wonder why it should be that the ones who pay the money by the thousands each season should not have decent treatment."

We are all for Barron and other exhibitors who undoubtedly have passed through identical experiences. It may not assuage his ruffled feelings, but it may serve to shed some light on a circumstance which quite definitely should not have been permitted to point out that Hollywood operates under its own statute books, conceived and executed for Hollywood's own special delight. There is, too, the fact that the colony, so insular and so provincial, is very faithful to its own constituents which is a backsided way of getting over the observation that it does not ordinarily take kindly to strangers unless those strangers fly high in the socio-economic stratosphere. Then, again, there is the widespread lack of information as to what and who an exhibitor is, as well as why. Some there have heard that product has to play in theatres after Hollywood makes it. That state of affairs is vaguely assumed to be necessary as the system rumbles on today, but, as usual and forever more, most of Hollywood simply refuses to be bothered about such a mundane matter. It has nothing to do with art. In the meantime, and if we were to give Barron advice, for which, incidentally, he has not asked, we would raise a variety of hell with the individuals who extended him the courtesies of whatever lot it may have been in the first place and whose employes were insubordinate enough not to observe those courtesies in the second. . . .

On the probability, a likely one, that the extended battle over the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central theatres in St. Louis will be settled around the table, not in front of a Federal judge, the Washington staff ferrets out this:

> Department of Justice officials deny any knowledge of reported attempts to "settle" the St. Louis situation in such manner as to dispose of both the New York suit and the Supreme Court appeal.
> Russell Hardy, in charge of the case, is absent from Washington, but Department attorneys who have worked on it with him declare their ignorance of any such move.
> At the Department, it was said that it might be possible to adjust matters so as to shorten the litigation by stipulation, but indications are that Government officials are determined to make the case "stick" and would accept only an admission by the defendants that they had engaged in the practices which form the basis of the case.
> The Department is anxious to press the suit with as much speed as possible and to that end would welcome either a refusal by the Supreme Court to review the action of the St. Louis judge dismissing that case or abandonment of the appeal by the producers. However, it was indicated, the Government believes it can win the New York case.

Of course. Naturally, the Justice Department will deny the amicable method is being applied. Yet, significance lurks in the phrase, "it might be possible to adjust matters so as to shorten the litigation by stipulation." The issue, to this layman and to others, it might be said in passing, is clear enough. Fanchon and Marco claim they have been hurt. The Government is suing Warners, Paramount and RKO for relief in this situation. If such relief can be arranged privately and by elimination of long-drawn out court manouevres, the cause of the action removes itself and all hands become friendly once more. As a matter of fact, it can be told now that this very matter was discussed in great secrecy in the latter phases of the civil suit in St. Louis several months back. The plan then provided for Warners to give up the Shubert-Rialto and the Orpheum and for the three defendant distributors to sell their output to the three allegedly aggrieved theatres. The deal was as close asthis. Then it blew up. The latter day attempt, however, is tinged with several different aspects. The possibility, therefore, is much more plus than minus. . . .

Charge Coercion in Spanish Mutua Suit

BARCELONA, April 19.—Charging coercion, Alfredo Allentorn, Francisco Fernandez and Francisco Benajez, owners, respectively, of the Smart, Bosque and Delicias, local theatres, have brought suit in criminal court here against Zoilo Oliver, president of Mutua, and the distributor organization itself. Also named in the action are Enrique Aguilar of Universal, vice-president of Mutua, and Jose Viros, of Warners, secretary.

Oliver already has been summoned to appear in the action and the others are expected to be called shortly. The complaint charges that the defendants forced Benajez to pay 29,000 pesetas allegedly due to M-G-M, when he had a balance standing with Mutua of 7,000 pesetas.

R. I. Operator Bill In

PROVIDENCE, April 19.—A bill introduced by Senator W. G. Troy will, if passed, make it illegal for a projectionist to do any other work while operating a machine. A similar bill was killed last year.

Pascal Sees a Closed Shop For Writers in Two Years

NRA, the producers attempted in three different ways to put through a salary cut—and a permanent salary cut—by attempting to do away with competitive bidding in the motion picture industry.

"These three ways were—salary control—licensing of agents, a device whereby the producer would control both ends of the bargain—and the anti-raiding provision which contained a charming little clause binding a writer to a producer for 60 days after the expiration of his contract.

"At last year's annual meeting, Mr. Ralph Block, our then retiring president, told us all about these somewhat sinister happenings. He told us of the final chapter which climaxed them—of Mr. Sol Rosenblatt's last visit to Hollywood, in November, 1934, when, after assuring us of guild shop, he brought in that iniquitous proposition from the producers which aimed to destroy the Screen Writers' Guild and to herd writers back into another Academy of M. P. Arts and Sciences. Those measures were all defeated, however, by the Screen Writers' Guild together with the Authors' League of America and its associated guilds."

Three Writing Groups Met

Determining on guild, or closed shop, Pascal then tells of a meeting held here last June with officers of the Authors' League and the Screen Writers' Guild. "Jointly these three guilds represent approximately 90 per cent of the creative writers in the United States. Collectively their potential power is incalculable," he adds.

"At this meeting, the little differences that had stood in the way of binding agreement between these different writer organizations melted into nothingness in the face of a common danger. Out of this one meeting came the idea and the determination to endeavor to consolidate all writers in all fields into one strong and unified organization, strong and able to protect writers against the invasion of their rights and to fight for and win what is rightly theirs. . . . The decision to foster such an amalgamation was simple to make. The job of creating the machinery to make the amalgamation ready to function was a tremendous task. It took six whole months. The most difficult problem was the matter of dues.

"The dues plan which was finally devised and which was passed together with the amended constitution of the League we do not claim to be perfect. What we do claim for it is that it is workable and the best plan that we could devise, taking into consideration all the problems involved.

"Moreover, it was not and is not intended to be a permanent dues plan. In six months, or in a year, when we work out a more equable one, it can and will be substituted.

"In this one, the salient points are these:

"1—Membership in the League. which naturally includes all three guilds, is uniform—$10 a year.

"2—Writers are automatically assigned to the particular guild in which field of writing they happen to be working at that time and will be assessed accordingly.

"3—All writers in all fields are exempt from assessment up to $2.500 income.

"4—A dramatist. therefore, pays relatively high assessments—but receives considerable service. An author of books or magazine stories pays relatively low assessments—and receives very little service. The screen writers' assessments fall in between, being one-half of one per cent of earnings, with a maximum of $250. This assessment, however, applies also to the sale of all material to picture companies from all writing in all fields."

Will Try Disguise

Max Jelin, who runs the Opera House in New Brunswick, N. J., has arranged a tieup with the civic body of that town for a general "Paint Up and Clean Up Week" for "Mr. Deeds" so that when he comes to town he won't be able to recognize the place.

Each guild is designed to govern itself, but the collective power of all three guilds will be vested in a council of 12 from each guild, Pascal says.

"Two of the guilds have already moved in," Pascal asserts. "On May 2 the screen writers will vote upon whether or not they want to move in, too. . . . The governing bodies of the three guilds . . . will ask members when the time seems ripe to vest the power in the council to invoke an order, as soon as it sees fit, ordering members to refuse to sell material to the studios—plays, novels, magazine stories or original stories—unless studios agree by contract that all such material shall be adapted or worked upon in any way only by members of the Authors' League of America with reciprocal provisions as to services.

"The only difference between this labor organization and any other labor union is that we are, under present conditions, unable to cut off the supply of manpower and material. The fight in the final analysis comes down to that simple provision.

Will Have Definite Advantages

"It may seem to some of us a hardship to be asked not to sign a contract that pledges our services and works beyond two years. But actually it will prove to be a boon. It will tend to abolish the 'option' contract, where the advantage is always on the side of the producer and never on the side of the writer. The individual, of course, as a rule, is helpless to hold out against these one-sided options, but in this way, through his organization, it will be impossible for him to accept such a deal.

"Picture then the strength and the power that will be ours in the next two years. Material can be worked upon only by members of our organization. Contracts, except for a very few, will have expired by May, 1938. We will be in the invulnerable position of controlling both material and manpower. Writers, the Authors' League of America, will hold the winning hand. And the producer, who has always proved himself to be a very shrewd poker player, will know it. It won't be necessary to call his bluff. Then without a strike, without any of us suffering from being out of jobs, it is only reasonable to conclude that we will gain all that we are after—guildship and a fair minimum basic agreement."

"Witness" and "Dell" Top in Coast's Slump

LOS ANGELES, April 19.—Grosses were generally poor last week with "The Witness Chair" and "Farmer in the Dell," on a dual at the Pantages the only strong draw. The $5,300 take was over the line by $2,300. At the Hillstreet the same bill was weak at $5,100.

"The Gypsy Baron," a Viennese import at the Grand International, was the only other attraction to make the grade. It grossed $1,800.

Kelly Notes Gains In Central America

Theatre business in Central America and Mexico is showing a definite upturn, especially in Mexico since the settlement of the protracted strike against major American distributors, centering in Mexico City, declared Arthur W. Kelly, in charge of foreign sales for United Artists, who has returned from a month's tour of company exchanges.

His trip covered Panama and other Central American countries, Cuba and Jamaica as well as Mexico. In Guatemala City recently there was opened a new 3,000-seat house, the De Luxe, and despite its unusual size for that territory, it is doing well, said Kelly. In Cuba, as in most of the other areas he visited, Kelly said, American films are holding their own, but superior Spanish pictures find a good market, with a loyal following. This is especially true in Havana, he said.

Reopen Hartford Palace

HARTFORD, April 19.—The Loew-Poli Palace here has reopened after having been closed for several weeks because of the flood.

Reports have it that the local Civic Repertory, WPA dramatic stock company, may disband, although officials have denied the reports. Discord is said to have broken out when the players were routed over a vaudeville circuit during the closing of the State due to the flood.

Art Cinema Payment On Taxes Authorized

Washington, April 19.—Chancellor Josiah O. Wolcott issued an order authorizing trustees of Art Cinema Corp. to pay a second installment of a realty tax on a piece of property in Culver City totaling $1,630.60.

The property is owned by Feature Prod., Inc., Ltd., a California corporation, the entire capital stock of which is held by Art Cinema, a dissolved corporation. The property was assessed for taxes totaling $3,261.23 in 1933, of which $1,630.63 was paid in the first installment. The petition was presented by William Jasie, Denis F. O'Brien and William P. Phillips, trustees.

Santa Fe Sets New Trains; Cuts Time

The Santa Fe on May 12 will inaugurate a new weekly train from Chicago to the coast, the Super Chief, which is scheduled to make the run in 39 hours and 45 minutes, said to be 14 hours faster than the present service. The train will leave Chicago each Tuesday evening. Eastbound, the service will begin May 15.

A second new train, the Scout, will start May 10, on a daily schedule of 60 hours and 55 minutes from Chicago to Los Angeles. Running time will be cut on other trains, including the Chief.

New Hepburn Vehicle

Hollywood, April 19.—RKO has purchased rights to a play, "Marie Bashkirtseff," which was produced in Budapest last season. It is by Lajos Balint and Erno Anday. Katherine Hepburn will play the title role and it is scheduled to go into production as soon as Miss Hepburn finishes "Portrait of a Rebel."

The studio has given term contracts to Patsy Lee Parsons, five-year-old actress, and Parkyakarkas. No assignments have been set for either.

Short Used as Trailer

Chicago, April 19.—Several downstate exhibitors are using the Dionne Quintuplet short "Going On Two" as an advance trailer for "The Country Doctor." A clip at the end of the film is added to tell of the coming attraction. The use of product from one company to advertise that of another company makes the stunt more unique.

Takes Italian Series

Boston, April 19.—Phil Smith, circuit operator and independent exchange owner, has taken over the New England distribution of Nuovo Mondo Motion Pictures, Inc. This gives the Academy Pictures exchange 25 English-dubbed Italian features and some 90 Italian shorts.

C. A. Somma Defeated

Richmond, April 19.—Charles A. Somma was defeated by a small majority for renomination as a candidate for the City Council in the Democratic primary. Somma became a member of the council a few years ago. He did not wage a very active campaign for renomination.

Miami House Damaged

Miami, April 19. — Fire caused damage estimated at $1,000 to the screen and sound equipment of the Seventh Ave. Theatre here.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Florida Special"

(Paramount)

Hollywood, April 19.—Apart from the amusing wisecracking of Jack Oakie, this comedy-melodrama offers little to enthuse exhibitors or audiences. There are, however, several novel twists given to the familiar all-action-aboard-a-train plot.

Claude Gillingwater, an eccentric millionaire, disappears aboard a train, thereby foiling the plot of Sidney Blackmer, a thief, and a rival mob headed by Matthew Betz to steal the Gillingwater jewels. Into this vortex is whirled Reporter Oakie.

Kent Taylor, who has been rejected by Frances Drake, Gillingwater's decorative niece, falls in love with train hostess Sally Eilers, a romance which progresses rapidly after detective J. Farrell MacDonald seals the train in an attempt to unravel the Gillingwater mystery. Here again, the rival gangs attempt to grab the loot. These sequences are enlivened by Oakie's comedy, Sam Hearn's specialty gagging and Jackie Heller's singing. In what might be called the climax, Gillingwater is discovered in a disguise, the jewels stolen by Blackmer are recovered only to be again filched by Betz and finally recovered from him by a station-load of police who have gathered to welcome MacDonald.

The story is an original by Clarence Budington Kelland and is loaded with so much stuff that director Ralph Murphy had difficulty getting it all into the picture, with the result that the production rates as an average attraction appealing to devotees of thrills, action and fun.

Production Code Seal No. 2,040. Running time, 68 minutes. "G."

"The Mine with the Iron Door"

(Lesser-Columbia)

Hollywood, April 19.—A Harold Bell Wright story freely adapted by Don Swift and Dan Jarrett, this production moves rather slowly. It is essentially an adventure yarn and there is sufficient conflict to appeal to the lovers of action drama, yet no guns bark, no horses gallop and only in the final sequences is there any real suspense developed.

Richard Arlen and Stanley Fields are seeking hidden treasure on Arizona land which Charles Wilson has duped them into buying. There they find Cecelia Parker and her father, Spencer Charters, encamped on their property, which is also occupied by Henry B. Walthall, demented archaelogist. Walthall knows where the treasure is hidden but the others do not. When Arlen and Miss Parker discover the clues to the location Walthall takes her into the mine, where he is about to kill her. At this point Arlen finds the entrance and thus all are saved.

Some good comedy is contributed by Fields, a former cop who develops foot trouble upon reaching the great open spaces. David Howard directed and got everything possible from the script. The skill of Frank Good's photography is reflected to advantage in the outdoor sequences. The production as a whole is quite suitable as average entertainment.

"Captain Calamity"

(Hirliman-Regal)

Hollywood, April 19.—Second in the George Hirliman color series, this uses the new Hirlacolor process. Though there is entertainment quality calculated to please the thrill action fans in the melodramatic romance, comedy-tinged motivating story, color application looms as the principal commercial asset available to exhibitors in the class of houses wherein it will be shown. Most of the shots, particularly the land and seascapes and some in which personalities are featured are of creditable character. Second to color use as a novelty in a thrill action film is the idea of giving it a musical contrast by having the hero, George Houston, sing several songs.

Houston, adventurous skipper of a south sea schooner, creates the impression he is the possessor of a secret as to where vast Spanish treasure is buried. With the main action occurring aboard the boat and in an island cabaret, a gang of bad men, headed by Louis Natheaux and Roy D'Arcy, plan to kill Houston and get his secret. Comedy relief is provided by Vince Barnett. A romance involving Houston and a stranded white girl, Marion Nixon, is rung in. Plenty of conflict heroics ensue. The conspirators raid Houston's boat, he saves Miss Nixon and both get away from the islands for the peace and quiet of romance.

Players mentioned contribute satisfactory performances. Other inter-

Short Subject

"The Early Bird and the Worm"

(Harman-Ising-M-G-M)

In the colorful and novel Harman-Ising manner, this cartoon is excellent entertainment. The old adage is changed somewhat. The early bird sets out and stalks a worm which leads him a merry chase. Clever invention carries the hunter and prey through many escapes. A snake takes up the trail of the bird and soon is in the chase. Two crows lying around in the minstrel show manner and ad libbing provide a hilarious interlude. Soon they are after the worm too. The snake catches up and seizes the first bird and it looks bad but the worm gets out a flute and plays a Hindu tune which distracts the snake while the bird gets away. The snake now turns on the worm and hypnotizes it. Timely knotting of the snake by the bird saves the worm and they become friends. An exceptional offering. Production Code Seal No. 2,036. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"How to Behave"

(M-G-M)

Robert Benchley undertakes to demonstrate a few situations, the etiquette of which are questioned by two telephone men working among the wires in a manhole. With all the humor that can be attached to the problems of a man arising from the table when a lady approaches, story telling under constant interruption and week-end guest behavior, the familiar and hilarious Benchley antics build up each situation for the most laughs. Following the pattern of that other Benchley opus, this one has him closing the film by drawing the bed clothes over his head. Entertaining and laugh provoking. Production Code Seal No. 1,574. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Fight Is Right"

(Radio)

An occasionally amusing comedy featuring Tom Kennedy, as the large, but timid soul who is persuaded to attempt to fool his wife in order to go to a fight. His office pal and fellow conspirator disguises himself as a doctor and arrives—but in the company of an inquisitive policeman, who proceeds to administer his own home remedy. As that consists of plain and fancy knot-tying, and the smart wife pours plaster of paris into the footbath, the comedy descends to loud and vigorous slapstick. Production Code Seal No. 2,016. Running time, 17 mins. "G."

"Dumbbell Letters No. 3"

(Van Beuren-RKO)

There is the usual amount of amusement in this number of the series of filmed letters from various and sundry people lacking intelligence but meaning well. The result is a series of chuckles and a few hearty laughs. Production Code Seal No. 088. Running time, 5 mins. "G."

year there were 337. In Rochester, where a referendum opposed the change, many business establishments advance opening and closing hours. New Jersey's total is 118 communities, the same as last year. Pennsylvania is unchanged at 93; Maine, with 59. New Hampshire has lost two and will have 21 this year. Vermont will have three instead of two. Delaware will have 11 instead of eight; Illinois, 93, instead of 90, exclusive of Chicago and surrounding communities. Indiana jumps from 14 to 20.

Georgia gains from one to three, not including Atlanta and surrounding towns, which advance their clocks from year to year. Mississippi will have no advanced time this year, although last year it had one town. In Minneapolis and other spots in Minnesota business establishments change their opening and closing hours. Idaho will push the clocks ahead in three spots, the same as last year.

In Canada two more towns have joined the move, making the total 75. Some of them do not make the change until May 2 or 3, and others make the change late in May and in early June and put the clocks back to normal at varying times.

esting bits are credited to Margaret Irving, Barry Norton, Crane Wilbur, Juan Torena, Movita and Lloyd Ingraham. Selling the combined values of color and melodramatic thrill action seem to be the most acceptable way to excite popular attention.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,121. Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

"The Harvester"

(Republic)

Hollywood, April 19.—This Gene Stratton Porter best seller makes good family entertainment as presented here. Victor Zobel's production and Joseph Santley's direction result in a well-knit pastoral, refreshing for its homey qualities.

The story concerns the efforts of Joyce Compton, backed by her shrewish mother, Alice Brady, to win Russell Hardie, a most eligible bachelor. Opposed to the match is Emma Dunn, Hardie's neighbor who seeks Hardie for her granddaughter, Ann Rutherford. Trapped into a betrothal, Hardie escapes only after Miss Dunn has died and Cora Sue Collins, Miss Rutherford's younger sister, has been placed in an orphanage. Though the plot is slight, the cast makes all the characters interesting and the background incidents which include a husking bee and the introduction of the early automobile are made amusing.

The screenplay is by Gertrude Orr and Homer Croy from the adaptation of Robert Lee Johnson and Elizabeth Meehan. Frank Craven, Roy Atwell and Eddie Nugent give the best performances in the supporting cast.

The production will be acceptable in most situations, rating higher in the smaller communities.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,144. Running time, 69 minutes. "G."

"Kelly the Second"

(Roach-M-G-M)

Hollywood, April 19.—Loaded with gags old and new, this comedy, when reduced to program length will fit on dual bills with a more serious feature subject.

Patsy Kelly as the trainer of Guinn Williams, a truck driver turned fighter, bears the chief brunt of the slapstick, ably assisted by Charlie Chase, as a fight manager. Edward Brophy and his mob are racketeers who cut themselves in for a share of the fight earnings. Pert Kelton, as Brophy's girl, complicates matters by getting Williams drunk before the championship bout. The best gags are offered during the sequences which show Williams in training on a farm with Miss Kelly supervising the road work mounted on an ancient steed which still responds to the sound of hounds pursuing a fox. Other comedy highlights are contributed by Chase.

The script is the joint work of the regular Roach staff and the direction is by Gus Meins. The sound is slightly high-pitched for a feature length film and seems to be the same as that used in regular Roach shorts.

The picture should please juveniles and seems suitable for showing at performances for children.

"Human Cargo"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

Hollywood, April 19.—The alien shakedown racket provides a colorful background for this action melodrama which slows down only for comedy, tellingly spaced.

Claire Trevor plays the society girl who wants to break into the newspaper game with the romantic idea of seeing her name on bylines. Brian Donlevy, ace reporter, gives her a real taste of how tough chasing exclusives may be when he uses her as a stooge to get a line on a gang which is smuggling aliens and then shaking them down. After a couple of murders, Miss Trevor catches on and as a reporter for a rival paper boards the smuggling ship disguised as a French girl. Donlevy also assumes an accent and claims to be her husband. Both fall into the hands of the gangsters, both escape by a hair's breadth, both score a beat and both get married. The comedy highlight is Helen Troy, well known on the air, as a comic, gossipy 'phone operator.

Miss Trevor and Donlevy give good performances and excellent sup-plainly pointed out by Government attorneys recently that failure of the Supreme Court to hear the appeal until fall is likely to delay the trial of the equity action in New York until after the decision of the high court. Reports in New York within the past few days of the early settlement of the equity action out of court are seen as leading to further delay in the New York action.

Russell Hardy, chief of the Government legal staff in the case, argued the Government's motion before Judge Davis. In his presentation, Hardy argued that the appeal to the Supreme Court is an effort on the part of the defense to delay the New York action, indicating that the hearing of the appeal in the Supreme Court will delay the date on which the Federal action would get under way.

athematical Basis Was Invented for Purpose

By J. M. JERAULD

For some time Paramount and Max eischer have been getting letters om exhibitors and patrons inquiring w he had produced the illusion of pth, or third dimension, in some of cartoon subjects. Neither has been rprised. They have been waiting r some kind of a reaction to see hether a new invention was suffient to impress the public.

In some subjects only certain scenes ve had this three dimension process, others whole subjects have had it. 's all done by mathematical calcution, and the process is now being tented.

What it will lead to even Fleischer n't guess. So far he has used it only subjects moving from left to right, vice versa, but he now is building machine that will give the same sults on up and down, or diagonal ckgrounds, and in the course of

Fox, B. & D. Conclude Deal For Australia

Will Share Distribution Under New Company

The formal announcement was made at a press luncheon here today by Ernest Turnbull, managing director of B. & D. in Australia. A new company, Dominions Film Distributors, has been formed for the arrangement.

The deal, which has as its basis the perfection of a first class distribution system in Australia, also provides for British production there by leading British units in association with B.

Grand Nat'l Distribution Awaits Films

The rapidity with which Grand National Films, Inc., Pathe-sponsored producing and distributing organization, rounds out its proposed national exchange system will be dependent upon the speed with which product is lined up, according to E. L. Alperson, president of the company.

He is now considering alliances with a number of coast producers, but has made no decisions as yet. Policy as it concerns exchanges will be elastic and will be developed gradually and on a variety of bases. Alperson, for instance, may deem it advisable at the outset to serve the St. Louis territory from Chicago with a sales force maintained at the former point. Jacksonville, Portland, Me., and Memphis may be operated along similar lines, but the intention finally is to organize on the accepted national basis which

Distributors Launch Move For Earliest Sales Season

With a number of franchises already set with national circuits, distributors at large are mapping plans to start what is viewed as one of the earliest, if not the earliest, selling seasons in the history of the industry.

It is understood most distributors have been selling 1936-37 lineups, although the activity, aside from Paramount, has been kept largely under cover.

Distributors and many exhibitors as well, are proceeding on the assumption that past performances are a sufficient guide to the future and that, since each succeeding year's program is largely a matter of promises to deliver anyway, in addition to known starring equations, there is no need to await the arrival of hot weather and to drag negotiations through the warm spell.

Uniform Deal Not Expected By Conferees

Individual Pacts Likely With Major Companies

Indications that no uniform program of trade practice modifications will be developed from current exhibitor-distributor conferences were apparent yesterday as distribution companies progressed further toward the adoption of final individual policies on the concessions sought by M.P.T.O.A.

A number of the subjects in the exhibitors' 10-point program, such as the elimination of designated play dates and the forcing of shorts with features, apply to some companies and not to others, thus making a uniform distributor stand impossible. Distributors who do not sell on percentage arrangement obviously are not concerned with designated playdates, and those who have no short subjects, or only a limited list of them, are not the targets of the exhibitors' demand for sales restrictions, it was pointed out by an M.P.T.O.A. representative.

It is apparent from a cross section of distributor opinion that all companies will not have the same attitude on cancellation concessions, although a majority of distributors definitely favor more liberal cancellation terms

U. S. Pictures Orient's Best, Says Cochrane

Although Tom D. Cochrane, Paramount general manager for the Orient, still believes that the United States turns out the world's best supply of films he has been away from home so long that his enthusiasm for things American pulls up short at just about that point.

Now at the Paramount home office for one of his periodic visits, an interviewer yesterday found Cochrane interestedly weighing the new product in the light of the amusement tastes current in Tokio, Hong Kong, Manila and way-stations at the moment. His appraisal was on the optimistic side, what with Harold Lloyd and Marlene Dietrich ranking high in the esteem of his Far Eastern customers and "The Milky Way" and "Desire" all ready for them.

Sophistication Unpopular

The Oriental preference, Cochrane said, runs to comedy, action and mystery. Sophistication must hunt for its market in the Japanese provinces, once the picture of that theme has left Tokio, he said. As in the America that lies beyond Broadway, so in rural Japan is the commercial fate of such a picture always a question. Japanese producers are turning out 300 to 400 pictures a year, Cochrane reported, and all of them have their market. You might think that that number of native made pictures would constitute a competitive problem of major proportions to the distributor of a foreign made article, but Cochrane doesn't.

Japanese officialdom, he reported, is giving consideration to the enactment of quota laws, but proposals are being considered "very fairly" and in consultation with the representatives of American companies. There is nothing to complain about on that score, he said. Censorship in Japan, once a problem to American film companies, is administered with a liberal viewpoint and no longer costs men like Cochrane their sleep o' nights. In fact, to Cochrane's mind, there are no "major problems" extant in Japan for the American distributor. The people are fine, business is swell, the scenery is grand. He speaks of the land nostalgically, as a man far from home.

Wedded to Nippon

You half expect him to speak of Americans as "foreigners," or to hint of the Great White Peril. But the reason is that Cochrane has been an expatriate in the Orient since 1914, when he went there to organize Far Eastern branches for Universal and remained to become general manager for Paramount in 1922.

A brother of R. H. Cochrane and P. D. Cochrane of Universal, the family resemblance is apparent despite a browned and weathered face, deeply lined, that even takes on the suggestion of the Oriental when he speaks of the mountains and lakes of Japan. In New York for about 10 days more, he goes to Hollywood to look over new product before sailing for "home" on May 20. But already he fingers the steamer schedules impatiently.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Ex-Mrs. Bradford"

(Radio)

HOLLYWOOD, April 20.—Here is a comedy that is gayly refreshing. It is the tale of a man who tries not to fall in love again with his ex-wife but can't help doing so. Told against a background of sinister, melodramatic mystery, it is at the same time full of merry fun and offers rich entertainment values that sparkle with unusual exploitation possibilities. It provides the combined appeal of an intriguing story, fast action, zippy dialogue, novel and effective type of suspense, smart direction, good production and convincing performances by an excellent cast.

As the ex-wife, Jean Arthur, who has an amateur detective complex, moves in on William Powell when he becomes involved in a racetrack killing. She enjoys the embarrassment which both situations cause her perplexed husband. Unusual twists are given the multiple-culprit formula as Powell finds himself on the spot as the main suspect. To save his own skin and nab the killer, he, with the bothersome assistance of Miss Arthur, sets about unraveling the mystery. As they piece together the clues another killing occurs and a third is attempted, whereupon Powell adopts a new style of detective technique to trap the killer and prove his motive. The comedy contrast that accentuates all this action reaches its apex in the second wedding finale.

Powell and Miss Arthur contribute performances of skill and dexterity and their pace is matched by James and Lucille Gleason, Eric Blore, Robert Armstrong, Grant Mitchell, Ralph Morgan, Frankie Darro and Erin O'Brien-Moore to round out a show that will cause plenty of talk.

Anthony Veiller, who did the screen play, adapted the tale from a story by James Edward Grant. The out-of-the-ordinary direction of Stephen Roberts results in an entertainment flair amusing and unusual.

Production Code Seal No. 2,051. Running time, 80 minutes. "G."

"Border Flight"

(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, April 20.—A run of the mill attraction in every phase, this feature provides merely formula thrill-action entertainment. Concerned with the activities of the aerial branch of the Coast Guard service, early sequences are concerned with the operations of the force. By way of contrast, romantic conflict involving John Howard and Grant Withers for the affections of Frances Farmer is rung in.

Dramatic tempo picks up when, after incurring the wrath of chief Samuel Hinds for breakneck flying and feeling that he has lost the struggle for Miss Farmer, Withers resigns from service and joins a gang of smugglers. When the guard, headed by Howard goes into action, Withers contrives to get the girl mixed up in his criminal activities. Featured by a series of thrilling air conflicts which give the action sock and punch, Withers, to escape capture and remove the stigma of wrongdoing from Miss Farmer, suicides via the crash route. In a gun-roaring climax the smuggling gang is wiped out.

Although John Howard and Frances Farmer are adequate in their roles, standouts in the picture are Hinds, as the commander, and Roscoe Karns in a comedy mechanic part. Angle of the picture that seems to have most exploitation importance is the well-handled ground and aerial conflict sequences.

When it comes to giving the patrons what they want in the line of western adventure, Buck Jones can always be relied upon to do the stuff. This production has all the elements—a good plot, plenty of spectacular action and excitement—to make it a top-notch western.

The story concerns the troubles of the "scouts" as they try to make the recently settled west safe for the oncoming pioneers. They are hampered by the actions of renegade whites who are feeding liquor to the Indians and taking them along to do the dirty work in the ensuing

CHICAGO ● United Artists Theatre

High praise to Bill Hollander and press representative Ed Levin, for kicking up plenty of exploitation dust in the windy city. Critics raved, grosses soared and Variety says: "Lifting it in the high brackets at $19,000. Powerful." Held over indefinitely.

CLEVELAND ● Loew's State Theatre

Congratulations to Harry Long and Milt Harris, for their amazing campaign which included thirty-five full pages of space in one Cleveland newspaper, containing entire story of picture with theatre credit every day. Business at State was so sensational that picture was brought back to Stillman Theatre for additional first run playing time.

LOS ANGELES ● Loew's State & Grauman's Chinese Theatres

To Charles Skouras, Sid Grauman and Thornton Sargent, a full measure of applause. Variety says, "FAUNTLEROY smash $19,500. Fauntleroy is leader of the pack for Easter week. Packed house on opening day. House and producer went to town in exploitation, with picture looking to be a natural. Smash trade from opening. Heaviest campaign town has had in months."

P.S. We don't want to offend anyone, but limitation of space prevents us from mentioning scores of other deserving showmen whose vivid selling campaigns attracted the public in droves. If we didn't mention your name we're sorry, but we appreciate your efforts nevertheless.

. . . . and speaking of sound advice!

To those theatre operators and managers who are playing David O. Selznick's production of LITTLE LORD FAUNTLEROY in the near future — the nationwide success of the picture has paved the way for your own engagement. If you duplicate any one of the preceding campaigns and launch your picture on the wave of success and word-of-mouth that is already flooding the country, you will be well rewarded for your efforts. Your gross can be just as big as your own campaign efforts—there is no top—any lavish praise that you may bestow on the picture in your newspaper advertising will be more than lived up to by the performance of the picture itself. Critics have raved, the public has applauded, the receipts have soared, but still this is all the more reason for you not to leave any stone unturned so that you can join the parade of showmen who have helped make David O. Selznick's first release through United Artists the memorable box office success that it is.

depredations. Jones, as one of the scouts under the command of Edward Keane, is battling the situation and having an exciting time of it. He is joined by Keane's son, Clifford Jones, who, under fire, revolts when blood is spilled. This, in Jones' eyes, is a yellow streak and he attempts to cover it from Keane's knowledge. In an emergency Keane's son is sent with the troop to ambush the renegades, and even at such a crucial time is sickened. Jones takes command of the situation when the other Jones is shot down and the scouts clean out the renegade camp for an exciting finish. Clifford Jones is given honorable burial, his fatal aversion unknown to his father.

Beth Marion ably plays the romantic lead opposite Clifford Jones. Others in the cast include such notables as Frank McGlynn and Fred Kohler, scout and bad man, respectively. The photography by Allen Thompson and Herbert Kirkpatrick is spectacular and has moments that become impressive. Original story and screenplay are by Isador Bernstein. Jones produced and directed.

"Desert Justice"

(Atlantic)

Jack Perrin, a mounted policeman, when informed that the department is eliminating the horse division, quits his job. He has a sentimental attachment for the bangtails, particularly his own mount, and reaches the sale of the animals too late to get his own but does capture a bank robber who shoots down Perrin's friend, while the henchmen escape. Perrin goes into retreat at his desert home, taking his horse along. Maryan Dowling, the commissioner's daughter, had purchased the animal to present to him for rescuing her from her runaway mount.

In the desert Perrin finds his home occupied by his wayward brother, David Sharpe, together with the rest of the bank robbers. Sharpe is shot and later dies in a quarrel with the bad men. Perrin goes for a doctor but is turned back by one "Rod." The latter makes his getaway pursued by Perrin, presumably out for revenge of his brother's death. There follows much chasing. After dynamiting a dam to foil his pursuers, "Rod" meets his end when he is forced over a cliff by "Strongheart," a police dog.

Perrin plays his role well and the other half of the romantic interest, Miss Dowling, gives proper feminine opposition. Warren Hymer's humorous contributions help considerably. The direction by Lester Williams keeps things moving. Allen Hall wrote the story.

Previewed without production code seal. Running time, 58 minutes. "G."

"Lawless Rider"

(Columbia)

This is an all-around pleasing western that is quite complete entertainment with touches of humor, music, adventure and romance.

Ken Maynard saves Geneva Mitchell from a driverless runaway stagecoach which had been held up and its crew killed. He drives it into town and soon picks up a trail of the criminals. He is about to round them up when he is shot and framed into being responsible for looting a bank and killing the watchman. Locked up, he arranges with Frank Yaconelli to come and serenade the sheriff while he plays accompaniment with a hacksaw on the prison bars. Yaconelli is responsible for some excellent comedy and melodious singing as well as his comic, romantic antics with an Indian girl. Maynard breaks jail, catches up with Harry Wodd, the heavy, and after some exciting gunplay when the sheriff and posse arrive brings the piece to an end.

The direction, fast-moving and effective, is by Spencer Gordon Bennet. The original story and screen play is by Nate Gathbert. Herbert Kirkpatrick handled the cameras, producing some spectacular riding scenes.

Production Code Seal No. 1,770. Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

"Murder by an Aristocrat"

(First National)

Here is a melodramatic murder mystery that is not always true to the formula it is supposed to follow. When the explanation of the murder is finally reached, the unraveling is handled too conveniently and, therefore, too implausibly.

than those now prevailing. Some of the concessions seen as possible to result include a straight 10 per cent privilege without qualifications, a 15 per cent cancellation privilege, or a straight 10 per cent with an additional 10 per cent on payment of half the rental of the pictures canceled.

The divergence of distributor attitude toward these and other important subjects of the M.P.T.O.A. program is seen as eliminating another joint meeting between exhibitors and distributors, with the M.P.T.O.A. committee meeting next with individual companies in rapid succession after the policy of each has been decided upon. Ed Kuykendall, M.P.T.O.A. president, will arrange these individual meetings during the next week or 10 days and the first of them will probably be held within two weeks.

Cincinnati Honors Taken by "January"

CINCINNATI, April 20.—Last week's box-office statements made more cheerful reading, with "Captain January" topping the list from the standpoint of averages. The Shirley Temple opus pulled $14,500 at the RKO Palace, which is $4,500 to the good. It continues at the RKO Lyric.

"The Singing Kid" warbled to the tune of $6,600 at Keith's, where normal is $6,500. This rated a holdover. Para. Switches Players

HOLLYWOOD, April 20.—Gary Cooper and Fred MacMurray have been switched in leading roles of two Paramount films. Cooper will play the lead in "The General Died at Dawn" and MacMurray will replace him in the leading role of "The Texas Ranger." The change was due to feeling that better casting was achieved in the new roles.

To Have 5 on Location

HOLLYWOOD, April 20.—A record number of pictures will be on location from Paramount within two weeks. "The Texas Rangers" will be shooting in Gallup, N. M., "The Arizona Raiders" company will be in Kernville, "Rhythm on the Range" goes into the High Sierras shortly, "The Girl of the Ozarks" will be at big Bear and Chester Franklin is looking for locations for his animal picture, "Wilderness."

2 Directors Assigned

HOLLYWOOD, April 20.—Sidney Lanfield will direct "Sing, Baby, Sing" for Twentieth Century-Fox. It is a musical.

William Seiter, on the same lot, will direct Shirley Temple in "Dimples."

Foran's Next Picked

time it may be possible to use human figures as well as cartoon drawings in this way.

Another machine he has developed for his personal use projects black and white films in color. He made this so that he wouldn't have to wait for developed prints to get back from the Hollywood Technicolor laboratories before studying the effects of shadings on his models. He is also silent about the future possibilities of this apparatus.

Fleischer set out to achieve stereoscopy without extra lenses on projection equipment and without the use of glasses by the spectator and at a minimum of cost.

Settings in a cartoon run to about five per cent of the production cost. The third dimension under this system adds about two per cent to this five.

Mechanism Involved

At first glance the machinery looks like something that Rube Goldberg might have evolved for a cartoon. It has trusses, movable tables, cranks, steel framework, gears and gadgets enough to make a mechanical engineer dizzy. The settings placed in it are shaped like a quarter of an apple pie, with the outer rim six feet from the center, and every detail of the perspective shaped accordingly. The cartoon subjects are drawn on pieces of transparent celluloid and placed in a frame in front of the camera lens.

As usual, there are from 12,000 to 14,000 individual pictures to be photographed, and the background as well as the cartoon figures move.

Artists build the backgrounds with microscopic precision.

"Why wouldn't it be possible to have human figures emoting in front of a white background and later photograph them on these miniatures?" Fleischer was asked yesterday.

"It might be. Who can tell?" he responded. "We're solving the problems one by one. The first machine cost $14,000 and weighed three tons. The second cost $7,000 and the third $3,500. We're getting along."

The projection of black and white film in color was an afterthought. After he had his machine working Fleischer found he had to wait from two weeks to 17 days to get color prints back from the coast. If retakes were necessary, a month to six weeks went by before he had his prints ready for release. Then he used three colored lenses to project still pictures in color from black and white film. From this he went to motion pictures. So far the apparatus flickers. He can't make it project more than 180 or 190 frames per second without making the gears get hot, but he hopes to get it up to 240. The color pictures show on a glass frame about a foot square, but the idea works and the screen is expected to grow.

Some of the cartoon subjects are surprising on the screen. When birds fly out of trees the trees fade into the background. The moon and the sun seem far away. Walls of houses are separated from the foreground.

What pleases Fleischer more than anything else is the fact that audiences have noticed the difference without being told about it in advance.

One on Each Side

Toronto, April 20.—Charles Staples has the distinction of being a one-man theatre operator of international status with a total of two houses—one on each side of the boundary line between Canada and the United States. Staples owns the Queen at St. Stephens, New Brunswick, and the State, Calais, Me. He spends practically half of his time in each of the two countries to look after his interests and recently arranged an array of bookings for his theatre in the Dominion.

"Arrow" Book Novel

Warners have turned out a 24-page pressbook on "The Golden Arrow" with a black and gold cover which shows the arrow superimposed on a large portrait of Bette Davis. The fact that she was an Academy award winner is played up strongly. The typography and exploitation stunts are somewhat out of the ordinary.

Shreveport Men Strike

SHREVEPORT, April 20.—Operators in four Saenger houses have walked out over a controversy on the number of men in a booth. Non-union men are being used.

threatens to expose the family skeletons in order to gain his ends. He is mysteriously wounded. Later, in the care of nurse Marguerite Churchill, he is killed. The story moves onward, showing the family's attempt to have the killing called suicide in order to protect the name, and later, the death of the philandering, drug-addict son, Gordon Elliott.

Finally Miss Churchill, who apparently has a psychic sense, reconstructs the killing, establishes the dead Elliott as the first killer and the dowager family head, Virginia Brissac, as Elliott's murderer. Miss Brissac commits suicide as another gesture to protect family pride.

Directed by Frank McDonald, this one is formulated entertainment. Production Code Seal No. 2,020. Runnning time, 62 minutes. "G."

Governor Hoffman Criticizes Tax Bil

TRENTON, April 20.—Interests an individuals opposed to the Amusemen Tax Bill which imposes a levy of approximately four per cent on theatr admissions were encouraged tonigh by the declaration of Governor Harold G. Hoffman that the measure wa inadequate to finance emergency relief, that it is "class taxation" and tha the revenue derived would be smal as compared with the cost of administration.

No amount of theorizing, said th Governor, can change the habits of th people and convert something that of common and general use into "luxury."

Governor Hoffman gave partial endorsement to a combination sales an income levy proposed by Senato Charles E. Loizeaux, which would impose a levy of two per cent on gros receipts of theatres. This bill is slate to be voted on late tonight or earl tomorrow.

20th-Fox Meeting Is Called "Quietest" Since Days of Fox

"The quietest stockholders' meeting we've had since the days of William Fox," was the way one Twentieth Century-Fox executive described yesterday's annual meeting.

Only one discordant note was sounded when a stockholder arose to ask Sidney R. Kent, president, whether his contract was the object of any litigation, explaining that an unnamed attorney had telephoned the stockholder a few days before to say that he contemplated some such action on behalf of a small group of stockholders.

"I know of no such litigation," was Kent's reply. "Any time I become a burden to the company," he added, "it will have no trouble getting rid of me."

Cohen Returns To Para. Set In 3-Year Pact

Hollywood, April 21.—A three-year contract under which Emanuel Cohen returns to Paramount as an independent producer was completed here today by the Lloyd Wright law office with the expectation that it would be formally signed before John E. Otterson's scheduled departure for New York Friday night.

The contract calls for production of four "A" pictures and four "B" pictures by Cohen's Major Prod. for Paramount release. It is expected that Cohen will produce one Bing Crosby picture for Columbia before starting on his Paramount contract. The deal keeps Mae West, Gary Cooper and Crosby in the Paramount fold, as

This bill will be taken up for debate on Thursday in an effort to pass it by the end of the month, and at the same time the Senate Finance Committee, in a move to expedite adjournment of Congress, will begin its hearings on the measure.

Regulation of Production Urged in Rome by the Pope

Vatican City, April 21.—Regulation of film production was urged today by Pope Pius in a talk to a large group of film and newspaper writers. It was one of the longest speeches the Pope had made in several years.

"Regulation is one of the great needs, one of the great necessities for keeping moving picture production in lines where it ought to remain—under pain of enormous guilt," the Pope said.

Bad films, he said, "were a real insult to all that is beautiful and delicate and honorable in souls, particularly young souls." He urged independent film criticism upon his hearers.

"Films would not be what they are today," he continued, "if moving picture press criticism had, from the beginning, fulfilled its duties according to virtue, truth and justice."

20th-Fox Net On Quarter Is $1,239,760

More Than Double Same Period Last Year

Twentieth Century-Fox earned a net profit of $1,239,760 for the 13 weeks ending March 28, last, Sidney R. Kent, president, stated to the annual meeting of stockholders yesterday.

John D. Clark, general sales manager, was elected to the board at yesterday's meeting, replacing Harley L. Clarke. All other directors were reelected for one year, and all officers were reelected at a meeting of the new board immediately following the stockholders' meeting.

The company's first quarter earnings are double the 1935 first quarter net of $616,806 reported last year by Fox Film Corp. The merger with Twentieth Century was not effected until the following September. In making the report Kent pointed out that the first quarter results were achieved despite a severe winter season and widespread flood conditions that closed theatres and cut down attendance in many sections of the country. The first quarter report, in addition, includes no return on the company's 42 per cent in-

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

THE wire out of Hollywood late Monday fairly glowed with words of praise about a picture titled "The Ex-Mrs. Bradford." If you are up on your reading, by this time you, of course, will have learned that this is the forthcoming Radio attraction, with Bill Powell and Jean Arthur, which looks like something. The big buyers of films, which is to say the circuits, have their own way of getting the low-down on new product in a hurry these days. In several quarters, scouts assigned to preview duty, have shot their advices into New York and they are all very pleasant and commendable about this particular tidbit of entertainment. . . .

We are interested in such goings on, verified and augmented by THE DAILY'S wired preview from the land that makes 'em for another reason. His name is Sam Briskin, whose first all-complete job we understand "The Ex-Mrs. Bradford" to be since he took over the production reins on Gower Street about three months and two weeks ago. We are interested because it tends to substantiate an impression gathered in Hollywood and reported here at the time that Briskin to whom fourteen and sixteen-hour days are like nothing at all was destined to do things for Radio which that studio, under regimes unfamiliar at large with what it takes to make attractions beyond a couple of Astaire and Rogers each season, has been needing. . . .

The diplomatic mail pouch from the west also tips us off that Briskin, in getting his administration working, has stepped on toes which happen to be in his way without worrying about bunions to come; that one of his continued bits of procedure has been to throw out stories which, in the light of his successful experience, do not rate. Among the specific matters which either gave birth or developed across Briskin's desk in the short time he has been the works have been (1) the about-to-be-signed deal with Dave Loew for the Joe E. Brown comedies, (2) the deal whereby Reliance and Eddie Small entered the RKO fold, (3) the palavers with Ben Schulberg, (4) the insistence that the endangered Hepburn popularity be strengthened by getting Fredric March for her lead in "Mary of Scotland." Briskin is demonstrating he knows the ingredients in showmanship, sometimes overlooked or plainly missed in other Radio days. . . .

Apparently popping out of nowhere and with as much warning came the three-way denial of Mickey Balcon's resignation as production chief for Gaumont British. In combination, there rose to scotch the report Jeff Bernerd, Sid Kent and the central figure in the report himself. Our understanding is Twentieth Century-Fox would like to see Balcon in its ranks. A matter of two years to go on his current G.B. pact appears to be the interference. . . .

The potential sphere of influence which Eddie Alperson will exercise in affairs to come with Grand National Films is evidenced by a breakdown of that company's directorate of seven. For the Pathe and "March of Time" end: Frank L. Kolbe, Robert W. Atkins and Charles L. Stillman. For Alperson: Eddie, Edwin Silverman of the Essaness circuit of Chicago and an Alperson intimate of many years; Carl Leserman, the new general sales manager, and Jimmy Davidson, Alperson's present assistant at National Theatres. The count: Pathe, et al: three; Alperson, four and control. . . .

Studio Labor Talks Get No Results Yet

The musicians' union is making no demands for wage or hour changes at these sessions, it was stated yesterday by Pat Casey, studio labor representative.

Donald Campbell, John R. Dillon, Felix A. Jenkins, Sidney R. Kent, Arthur W. Loasby, W. C. Michel, William P. Philips, Hermann G. Place, Seton Porter, Joseph M. Schenck, Sydney Towell and Clark.

Officers are Kent, president; Schenck, chairman of the board; Michel, executive vice-president; Darryl F. Zanuck, vice-president; Towell, treasurer, and Jenkins, secretary.

In response to a stockholder's question Kent stated that the board had recently fixed a price of $18.39 per share at which he may acquire a total of 60,000 shares of common in blocks of 10,000 shares over a period of six years. The stock purchase option was granted Kent in connection with the new seven-year contract given him last September, but cannot be exercised prior to next September. When granted, the option specified that the price per share to be set should be "not less than $10."

The first quarter earnings are equal to 91 cents a share on 1,359,041 shares of cumulative convertible preferred. After allowing for the preferred dividend of 37½ cents a share for the quarter, paid March 31, there remained a profit equivalent to 59 cents a share on the 1,226,530 shares of common. The company's statement showed gross income from sales and rentals of film and literature amounting to $11,826,900 for the 13 weeks.

New Tax May Exceed 40% of Company Net

plies the four per cent individual normal income tax to corporation dividends, which now are subject only to surtaxes. The rate of the capital stock tax, however, will be reduced from $1.40 to 70 cents.

Unlike the present tax, which applies to the income of corporations regardless of the disposition made of it, the new levy will bear most lightly upon corporations distributing practically all of their income in the form of dividends and will be most onerous upon companies which seek to build up large surpluses.

Angus Decision Upheld

The Appellate Division of the N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday affirmed a judgment of $400,000 and interest awarded last fall to Leslie N. Heatherton in an action for recovery brought against J. N. Heatherton, head of Angus Publishing Co., former publisher of Motion Picture News. Samuel Spring, film attorney, represented the plaintiff in the action which involved the disposition of proceeds from the sale of a publication by the Angus company.

Up New Rochelle Way, Leon Is "Uproarious," They Say

Up beyond the Bronx on the other side of Pelham Manor where the citizens of New Rochelle are admiring their anemones and waiting for the first tulip to bloom Leon J. Bamberger is a comic.

Read this from the Monday edition of the Standard-Star which has just reached this office by pony express:

"Hilarious male comics, attractive songstresses, and an amateur chorus which stopped the show several times because of the excellence of its dancing were highlights of 'More Neighbors,' music revue presented by the Sisterhood of Temple Israel at the Community House Saturday night. More than 600 attended.

"The chorus, trained by Dorothy Sachs, danced routine numbers, a military drill which was interrupted by spontaneous applause, and two modernistic numbers, including an interpretation of Ravel's 'Bolero.' From the gay Broadway routines, through the difficult modern rhythms, the girls displayed a genuine talent for ensemble dancing seldom seen in amateur productions.

"Most uproarious of the comedians was LEON J. BAMBERGER, who opened the show."

Later in the same article this occurs:

"Another outstanding number was a 'Gay Nineties' skit, in which Dolly Wyner and Ruth Greenberg, attractive in gowns of the period, displayed lovely voices and a gift for pantomime. Also in this scene, the finale of the first act, were Mr. Portman, Al Frank and MR. BAMBERGER."

About two-thirds of the way down the column this appears:

"Mr. Fortman and Mr. Zorowitz were in 'New Rochelle Free Clinic' as were Geraldine Bamberger, Mr. Worms and Richard L. Cohen; and also in 'The Nut House,' as were Evelyn Sakolsky and MR. BAMBERGER."

That makes two skits for LEON as well as the job of master of ceremonies. And around Times Square traffic would stop if he should crack a smile!

Definitely set, however, is M-G-M's plan for construction of a commercial laboratory in London. It will handle release prints of the company's British-made pictures and outside work as well.

Doyle Is Seeking British Financing

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, April 21.—It is understood here that behind the efforts of Stuart Doyle of Greater Union Theatres of Australia to counteract the arrangement just made for Australian distribution between Fox Films of Australia and New Zealand and Hoyts' Theatres, Ltd., on one side, and British Dominions on the other, is an attempt to raise money in England to pay off Greater Union bank loans.

Doyle, who is managing director of Greater Union, large Australian circuit, and holds a similar position with Cine Sound Prod., Sydney producing firm in which Greater Union is interested, is expected here Thursday. His opposition to the plan sponsored in particular by Ernest Turnbull, managing director in Australia of B. & D., is said to be based on obtaining the British money in order to prevent Hoyts' and Fox, which has an interest in Hoyts', from gaining control of Greater Union when General Theatres, the joint operating company of Hoyts' and Union is dissolved on the expiration of the five-year working agreement in December, 1937.

Doyle now has as his chief British producing assets General Film Distributors, Ltd., the C. M. Woolf company; British International and Toeplitz. It is reported also that he is seeking a deal with United Artists and London Films. Doyle is expected to visit the United States in June.

Butterfield Dies; Veteran In Exhibition

Opera House. He obtained a job there as a program boy and worked his way up successively as usher, doorkeeper and treasurer of the theatre.

At 21 he was treasurer of another theatre in Columbus. At the time of the World's Fair he went to Chicago to study music, and later became road manager for a small-time vaudeville circuit. From there he went to work for the Charles E. Blaney shows and then was named manager for Rose Stahl.

In 1904 he entered the theatre business in Fond du Lac, Wis., and there developed the idea of a circuit of vaudeville houses. In 1906 he opened his first theatre, the Hamlin, in Battle Creek, Mich. He remained there for 20 years, moving to Detroit in 1926. At that time he merged nine companies, controlling 45 theatres, into the present W. S. Butterfield Theatres, Inc. Since then he had developed the circuit and another company, Butterfield Michigan Theatres Co. He was president of both firms. The former operates 70 theatres and the latter 20.

Butterfield was married three times. He is survived by his widow, Irene Daly Butterfield, and five children: Mrs. Caroline Allen of Grand Rapids. Mrs. Laura Page of Charlotte, Mrs. Hall Beery of Los Angeles, Julia Scott Butterfield of Pinehurst, N. C., and Ann Butterfield. Col. Butterfield lived in a country home on Gull Lake, near Battle Creek, and owned a winter home at Miami Beach.

Detroit Pays Tribute

Detroit, April 21.—News of the death of Col. W. S. Butterfield came as a shock to exchange and exhibitor leaders here. Few of them were aware that Butterfield had been seriously ill.

George Trendle, president of United Detroit Theatres, said, "Col. Butterfield built his own monument. There are few to match it, in his achievement as one of the country's foremost exhibitors and in the respect and affection in which he was held by all those who knew him as a friend or as a contemporary."

Frank J. Downey, M-G-M branch manager, said, "I sincerely regret to learn of the death of Col. Butterfield. He was one of the pioneers of the industry in Michigan. He had exceptional organization and executive ability. My deepest sympathy to his family."

M. M. Gottlieb, Universal manager: "Col. Butterfield's sudden passing came as a great shock to me as well as to the entire industry. He has meant much to the promotion of the theatre in Michigan."

H. E. Ives, president of Monarch: "Col. Butterfield's record of achievement should be an inspiration to all. His passing is deeply regretted."

Funeral in Battle Creek

Battle Creek, Mich., April 21.—Funeral services for Col. W. S. Butterfield will be held here Thursday afternoon. Butterfield houses here and elsewhere throughout the state will remain closed that afternoon as a mark of respect to their founder.

Keough Going to Services

Austin C. Keough, Paramount executive, will represent his company at the Butterfield services in Battle Creek tomorrow afternoon. He leaves for the Michigan city today.

Detroit, April 21.—Col. Walter S. Butterfield, pioneer exhibitor, had been in poor health for some years. During the last decade he had maintained only a casual participation in the affairs of the circuit bearing his name. Ed C. Beatty, for 25 years vice-president and general manager, had been actively in charge of the business, which reaches into and controls exhibition in every important Michigan city with the exception of Detroit, where the Butterfield interests had no holdings.

RKO owns a 10 per cent and Paramount a 25 per cent share in the Butterfield circuit, which always has retained control and management.

Predicts All Films In Color Eventually

Color films will eventually supplant black and white entirely, in the opinion of Lloyd Corrigan, Pioneer director, who has just finished "Dancing Pirate," entirely in Technicolor, which will be released by RKO next month. Corrigan leaves today on the Berengaria for a vacation of two months in Europe.

To say that Corrigan is sold on color would be to put it mildly. If he has his way he will never again direct a film in black and white. Looking at black and white rushes while awaiting adjustment on color shots of "Dancing Pirate," Corrigan experienced a definite let-down, he said. Color, he believes, is definitely out of the experimental stage as far as its acceptance as a film technique is concerned, although developments are going forward in perfecting it every day.

The director, who did "La Cucaracha," one of the first to use the three-color Technicolor process, is convinced that a modern story may be done just as readily and be appreciated just as much in color as the costume material used for the most part thus far. Color, he said, accentuates the moods of a story much more effectively than is possible in black and white.

One of the recent outstanding developments in the handling of color in the studio, Corrigan said, was the production of two new types of lights, which take care of the necessity for particularly strong light in color work, but eliminate the use of the carbon arc light, which was inconvenient in that it had to be replaced approximately every 20 minutes. Corrigan has a long term contract to direct for Pioneer. His next assignment has not yet been determined.

A. E. Kaye Quits Skouras

A. E. Kaye has resigned as Jersey City district manager for Skouras Theatres Corp. and has left for Los Angeles to start exhibition on his own.

Hal C. Kern Re-Signed

Hollywood, April 21.—Hal C. Kern, film editor on all of David O. Selznick's films since "Dinner at Eight," has been signed to a new long term contract.

Schenck Testifies Again in Hart Suit

Joseph M. Schenck again took the stand yesterday in connection with the suit for $500,000 brought by William S. Hart against United Artists, and he testified chiefly concerning the earnings of the picture, "Tumbleweeds," which in turn were compared with earnings on other U. A. releases.

Schenck testified that Hart took more time than he should have to make the picture, that it took nine weeks, whereas it should have been done in four weeks. He also said that although he set $800,000 as the expected gross for "Tumbleweeds" he knew that it could get only $300,000 to $400,000. Schenck also dwelt on the picture "Wild Justice," on which a quota was set by him at $300,000. It was brought out that Schenck actually put his own money into "Wild Justice" and made a profit on it. At another point he compared "The Eagle," which starred Rudolph Valentino, with "Tumbleweeds," and it was brought out that "The Eagle" grossed $854,000 and that "Tumbleweeds" finally grossed $346,000. Schenck said that in discussing the situation with exhibitors they told him that they wanted "Wild Justice" and that they were not interested in "Tumbleweeds." Hart's attorney insisted that Schenck retract this statement and confronted him with a deposition which had been made previously.

Schenck also testified that in July, 1935, he tried to discourage Hart from producing another picture.

The next witness of the day was Charles Moyer who was formerly in charge of advertising and publicity for U. A. He testified as to methods for publicizing "Tumbleweeds." On cross-examination, he admitted that he had received complaints from Hart's representative in California.

Yesterday's session came to a close with the reading of a deposition taken from Clarence E. Beck, formerly president of the Castle Amusement Co., operating the Castle in Chicago.

Emil Jensen, former general sales manager for Inspiration Pictures, Inc., when Charles H. Duell was its president, has been named New York representative of Pickford-Lasky.

Shifts in Personnel Made at Universal

Hollywood, April 21.—In a rearrangement of the Universal executive setup today, Charles R. Rogers elevated Jerry Sackheim to the post of executive assistant to work directly under Rogers as producer contact concentrating principally on story properties. Sackheim received a new long term contract.

The Sackheim post does not conflict with that of Rufus LeMaire who is Rogers' assistant assigned to talent.

Betty Roberts, formerly of RKO, has been engaged as western story editor, and Harry C. Evans, editor of the company's house organ, has taken on the additional duties of talent scout.

Goldsmith Goes to Reliance Pictures

Hollywood, April 21.—Ken Goldsmith concludes his affiliation with Republic as supervisor tomorrow, transferring to Reliance Pictures at RKO to supervise production on "The Last of the Mohicans."

Sue RKO on "Dream"

A suit charging copyright infringement was filed in Federal Court yesterday on behalf of Samuel Shipman and Clara Lipman, playwrights, against RKO Radio Pictures, RKO Distributing Corp. and RKO Studios, Inc. The plaintiffs charge that the defendants stole their play and produced "I Dream too Much" starring Lily Pons. They also set forth that in 1924 they wrote and copyrighted a play entitled "Depends on the Woman" which they submitted to RKO and they further assert that "I Dream Too Much" is actually "Depends on the Woman" with minor variations. The plaintiffs ask for an injunction, an accounting and that all profits plus damages be turned over to them. They also ask for the surrender of the film and scenario of the Pons picture.

"What does a producer do?" was next.

"Nothing doing. You are not going to hold me on any vagrancy charges," answered Foy.

Pathe Assessment Possible, Is Report

An assessment of approximately 50 cents a share on the more than 500,000 shares of Pathe Film Co. common stock outstanding to finance the new Grand National Films, Inc., is reported to have been discussed yesterday at a meeting of the board of Pathe.

The stock of Pathe's newly organized producing and distributing company would be distributed to Pathe stockholders who paid the assessment, it is understood. Additional finances up to $100,000 are reported to be available now and negotiations are also under way for more. It is said that neither Pathe nor Time will participate directly in the financing of the new company.

M-G-M to Release British List Here

M-G-M's British-made features will be released on the domestic program, according to plans being evolved for their production. Company executives are declared committed to the conviction that whatever studio activity is launched in London should be undertaken with the American market in mind. This, therefore, will apply to the four vehicles lined up, including "Silas Marner," "The Wind and the Rain," "The Yank at Oxford" and "Rage in Heaven." Casts and directorial personnel are expected to be set up by conference between Ben Goetz and Louis B. Mayer when the latter reaches New York shortly.

Pope Is Pleased by Improved Standards

By VITTORIO MALPASSUTI

Rome, April 22.—In yesterday's address to the convention of film and press writers Pope Pius, in a lengthy address, expressed himself as pleased with what public-spirited citizens and Catholic bishops in the United States have done to elevate the standards of motion pictures.

Complete text of the address, available here today, reveals the Pope's extensive knowledge of problems affecting the film industry.

His Holiness deplored "dilettantism" in the films and newspaper criticism of motion pictures, referring to the adverse effects which have been due to "arty" critiques.

Belief Gains Wanger-Para. Deal Is Near

Expected to Agree With Otterson on Details

That Walter Wanger will remain as an independent producer for Paramount is the general belief of the company's home office officials despite the assertions of Wanger's attorney, Lloyd Wright, that a United Artists' contract for the producer is about ready for signing.

The understanding at Paramount is that Adolph Zukor conferred with Wanger on the basis of a new contract during the former's recent Hollywood visit and that final details are being negotiated by Wanger and John E. Otterson, with Wright contacting both Paramount and United Artists officials here as developments occur on the coast. Some Paramount officials stated yesterday that the Wanger contract would be either closed or agreed upon before Otter-

Woolf Takes on "U" Selling in England

London, April 22.—C. M. Woolf of General Film Distributors, Ltd., has assumed control of Universal's distribution in Great Britain under the terms of the deal in which his company participated in the financing of the purchase of the Laemmle interests through J. Cheever Cowdin and Charles R. Rogers.

The Universal staff in London so far has not been disturbed. Frank Ditcham, "U's" sales chief here, continues in that post as a member of the committee on management.

Dog Bites Boy in Theatre; High Court Blames the Pup

Columbia, S. C., April 22.—When a dog bites a boy in a theatre who's to blame—the dog, the boy or the theatre management? Answer: If the bite takes place in South Carolina, it's the dog's fault, but "there can be no doubt about the duty of the defendant to exercise reasonable care to keep dogs out of its theatre, not alone because some dogs are vicious, but also on account of their known mischievousness," according to Associate Justice E. L. Fishburne in Supreme Court.

This decision came about because 13-year-old Joseph Edward Ferry of Columbia lost a chunk of cuticle from one of his legs while watching a film —or the dog. Whether the dog didn't like the picture or whether it was Ferry that stirred his antipathy was not made clear, but all the witnesses agreed that Ferry was bitten.

His father sued the Carolina Theatre management. A lower court ruled the father was entitled to damages, apparently on the theory that when a dog gets a pain in the neck waiting for a film show to end and a boy gets a pain in the leg, the boy's dad is entitled to collect.

In reversing this verdict Supreme Court Justice Fishburne said: "Although there are thousands of moving picture theatres in this country, attended by millions of people, and although there are in the United States probably a million dogs of every kind, description and station in life, an extended search of the authorities has not brought to light a single case similar to this one."

Never Any Different

Sam Dembow, Jr., now living in Larchmont, gets a sustained kick out of life in the suburbs.

"You know," he said yesterday, "I'm converting my tennis court into a garden. I never knew it was so expensive. The top soil alone will cost me $500. Can you imagine that?"

Up answered Ned Depinet: "You've been selling dirt for all these years. Now you're getting an idea of what it costs."

No New Sales Setup In Reich—Reisman

RKO has no intention at the present or in the near future of establishing its own branches in Germany, but will continue to release its product through various distributing organizations in that country, Phil Reisman, vice-president of RKO Export Corp., declared yesterday. He has just returned from a visit of two months abroad, during which time he went to Great Britain, France, Holland and Belgium.

Reisman said no consideration had been given as yet to a successor to E. D. Leishman, whose resignation as head of RKO distribution in England will become effective May 10. The generally high level of business in theatres reached throughout Europe during the current season is expected by Reisman to be maintained next season.

Reel Houses Abroad Gain, Says Connolly

Theatres showing newsreels exclusively are enjoying an unprecedented popularity abroad, especially in England, according to Jack Connolly, general manager of Pathe News, who has just returned from a four-week visit to Europe. In London alone there are 14 newsreel theatres, and all are doing excellent business, Connolly said. Newsreels are shown on trains in England with considerable success, he said. Reel theatres are doing well also in Paris, where there are eight; in Brussels and in Berlin.

Theatre business in general, Connolly declared, is excellent in England, but very weak in Paris, chiefly because of the unsettled political conditions in France. Connolly visited London, Paris and Berlin, and arranged for more effective coverage of Austria and the Balkan States, the material from which area will continue to clear through the Paris office of Pathe News. The arrangement heretofore in effect in that territory had not been satisfactory, he said.

S. E. C. Probes Deals In Sonotone Shares

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Stock trading in the securities of the Sonotone Corp., is under investigation by the Securities and Exchange Commission, it was learned here today. Questionnaires have been sent to brokers asking for reports on trading in the securities by their clients.

At the offices of the commission it was explained that a standing rule prohibits the discussion of such investigations unless and until they reach a stage where hearings are ordered, to avoid the possibility of endangering the position of the company concerned, which may not be involved in the inquiry. Numerous such studies are being made all the time, it was pointed out, and usually concern manipulation of stocks by outside interests not connected with the companies.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Personnel of the subcommittee to have charge of the drafting of the new copyright legislation was announced today by Representative Sirovich of New York, chairman of the House Patents Committee.

The subcommittee will meet tomorrow in executive session to attempt to work out a schedule for its work.

THE PICTURE OF THE WEEK

Favorably received in its initial pre-release engagement at the New York Strand, Warner Bros.'

"I MARRIED A DOCTOR", with PAT O'BRIEN and JOSEPHINE HUTCHINSON ranks high in the week's screen product by virtue of the 'superb' performances of its star-team, the daringly dramatic story by Sinclair Lewis, the 'exceptional' supporting portrayals of Ross Alexander, Guy Kibbee, Louise Fazenda, the 'masterly' direction of Archie Mayo, and what Variety Daily aptly calls 'the sweet box-office prospects' of the entire production. Released April 25th.

Belief Gains Wanger-Para. Deal Is Near

son returns to New York. At present, he is scheduled to leave the coast tomorrow night.

Final papers in the deal by which Emanuel Cohen, former Paramount production head, returns to the company as an independent producer making eight pictures annually for three years had not been signed yesterday, the company stated, although actual closing of the deal is expected momentarily. Indications are that Cohen will produce at General Service Studios, it was said.

Depending upon the completion of the pending Wanger and Cohen deals, approximately half of Paramount's 60 to 65 pictures for next season would come from independent producers with the remainder made by the regular studio staff under William LeBaron. There would be eight from Cohen, about 10 from Wanger, six from Harry Sherman, four from Frank Lloyd and four to six from Ernst Lubitsch. The balance would be contributed by Arthur Hornblow, Benjamin Glazer, Henry Henigson, A. M. Botsford, Lew Gensler, Al Lewis, E. Lloyd Sheldon, Harold Hurley, Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur.

Para Board to Get Report

Paramount's financial report for 1935 is scheduled to be presented to the regular meeting of the company's board today. Indications are that important changes in the personnel of the executive and finance committees may occur at the meeting. The post of the late Gerald Brooks on the executive committee may be filled today from the present directorate, although it is not expected that any successor to Brooks on the board will be named.

The death of Brooks left Robert K. Cassatt as the only Paramount director serving a one-year term on the board. With Cassatt's term expiring in June, it is not expected that the one-year group of directors will be continued as the aims of the Paramount reorganizers contemplated a small, compact board with those elected to one-year terms regarded as furnishing representation only for groups whose Paramount holdings would be liquidated within that time.

Producing Managers To Meet Again Today

A general membership meeting of the League of N. Y. Theatres, producing managers' organization, is scheduled for today to discuss further the use of the managers' new contract with playwrights. The managers recently pledged themselves to the exclusive use of the contract until such time as the Dramatists' Guild modifies the new agreement which it placed in effect on March 1. The contract committee of the league met yesterday.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Forgotten Faces"

(Paramount)

Hollywood, April 22.—Offering only occasional relief from sombre drama audience appeal, this picture will be limited in its appeal to those seeking grim entertainment when word of the nature of its story passes.

Herbert Marshall, cast as a gambler, slays Alan Edwards, the lover of his wife, Gertrude Michael. Before giving himself up to James Burke, a police sergeant and close friend, Marshall arranges to have his infant daughter adopted. Years later Marshall obtains his parole and, when he learns that Miss Michael is about to blackmail his daughter's foster parents, a battle of wits between husband and wife follows, ending when Miss Michael kills Marshall and then commits suicide.

The direction of E. A. DuPont concentrates on the dramatic elements. Marguerite Roberts, Robert Yost and Brian Marlow have made good adaptations of the Richard Washburn Child story, contributing some excellent dialogue. The performance of Miss Michael is her best to date and supporting performances by Jane Rhodes as the daughter and Robert Cummings as her fiance stand out in the cast which includes Pierre Watkin, Arthur Hohl and Robert Glecker. The A. M. Botsford production is mostly restrained. The fatherly love appears as the best exploitation angle.

Production Code Seal No. 2,167. Running time, 72 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"Roaming Lady"

(Columbia)

An ineffectual story which seeks to combine romance and fast-moving action, scattered over a considerable portion of the globe, this picture emerges as routine, suitable chiefly for a double bill program. It has action and romance, but the basic theme is rather far-fetched, and in general the story is not worthy of the leaders in the cast, Ralph Bellamy, Fay Wray and Ed Gargan.

The screen play by Fred Niblo, Jr., and Earle Snell, tells of the wild daughter of wealth, Miss Wray, in love with Bellamy, flying instructor. When Bellamy annoys Miss Wray's father, he has him fired and then signed as part of a flying unit to protect Chinese oil interests. En route with Gargan, Bellamy finds Miss Wray as a stowaway. The ship is captured by agents of the Chinese opposition general, and the three are held as hostages in a Chinese encampment of dubious location.

Bellamy's attempts to effect an escape are twice spoiled by Miss Wray, who does not realize that his actions toward her are to confuse their captors. Eventually, however, and with considerable excitement, the escape is made, Gargan and Miss Wray in a car and Bellamy bombing and gunning the pursuit in a plane. Albert S. Rogell directed.

Production Code Seal No. 1,965. Running time, 69 minutes. "G."

"Captain January," tomorrow's opener at the Capitol, was previewed by Hollywood wire Jan. 31.

"The Amateur Gentlemen," previewing at the Roxy tonight, was also covered from the coast Feb. 4.

Tapernoux Returns With French Films

Encouraged by the success of "La Maternelle" throughout the country and in Canada, John S. Tapernoux, distributor of French films, who recently returned from France with a new line of pictures, will pursue his efforts to make the general film-going public French-picture conscious.

Tapernoux will distribute his films to "little" theatres and arrange advance dates and tieups with colleges where French is taught and arrange for special showings in college theatres and regular houses.

The pictures for which Tapernoux has signed American distribution contracts include three Marcel Pagnol productions, "Angele," "Toni" and "Merlusse." The last named is having a successful run in London. Albert Prejean, who appeared in "Under the Roofs of Paris," will be seen again in "L'Or Dans La Rue." Danielle Darrieux, who is listed as the most popular star in France, will be presented in "Mademoiselle Mozart," a musical. Also to be released here are "Jeunesse," "La Marmaille" and "Maternite."

The photographic record of the two Citroen-Haardt motor expeditions across Asia and Africa will be the most ambitious of the lot. Known as "La Croisiere Jaune" and "La Croisiere Noire," these are said to be the only films of their kind ever made.

Tapernoux, before leaving Paris, was commissioned by French scientific and sporting societies to present to Maynard Owen Williams, of the National Geographic Society and historian of the motor expeditions, honors they had conferred on him abroad.

Final Details Set In "January" Suit

Final details of the out-of-court settlement of the suit of L. C. Page & Co., Boston publishers, against Twentieth Century-Fox over screen rights to "Captain January" were carried out in Federal court yesterday. Stipulations covering the settlement were filed by attorneys.

During the day an order was handed down by the Circuit Court of Appeals reversing the order of the District Court which had denied a preliminary injunction to the plaintiffs and directing that the plaintiffs be granted an injunction against exhibition of the picture.

Du-Art Complaint Dismissed

U. S. District Judge Robert P. Patterson yesterday dismissed the complaint in a suit brought by Du-Art Film Laboratories, Inc., and Arthur Gottlieb against Consolidated Film Industries, Inc. The court ruled that the plaintiffs' complaint did not reveal a cause of action.

The plaintiffs charged the defendant with wrongful interference with contracts made with the U-Film Laboratories whereby the latter leased premises and equipment from the Du-Art Film Laboratories and agreed to employ Gottlieb as manager. In the contracts U-Film Laboratories also agreed that all film developing work in New York required to be done by Universal Pictures Corp. should be done on the leased premises. It was charged that Consolidated Film Industries, Inc., conspired with and coerced Universal to evade and repudiate the agreements. Judge Patterson gave the plaintiffs 20 days in which to serve an amended complaint.

Lazarus, Streimer Testify

Testimony to the effect that the sales office of United Artists used no more effort to promote "Tumbleweeds" than any other picture during the year of its exhibition was offered in N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday in connection with the $500,000 conspiracy suit brought by William S. Hart against U. A. Paul Lazarus and Moe Streimer were the principal witnesses before Justice Philip J. McCook and a jury. Both testified that they expended more efforts to exploit "Tumbleweeds" than any other picture.

On cross-examination Streimer said that "Tumbleweeds" grossed $29,283 at the Strand here during the week of Dec. 20, 1925. Hart's attorney made considerable capital of this admission. Witnesses for the defendant denied that "Tumbleweeds" was part of a block booking arrangement at any time. It was intimated that the trial will last for the remainder of the week.

Answers Filed in K. C. Suit

Kansas City, April 22.—Distributor defendants in the Federal court conspiracy action brought by Emanuel Rolsky and other local independent theatre operators against Fox Midwest and distributors have filed an answer denying all the important allegations in the plaintiffs' petition, asking for a final decree against the plaintiffs in addition to the assessment of court costs. The case probably will be heard about the end of April.

The independents had sought an injunction against Fox Midwest and all major distributors, charging that the clearance and zoning schedule in the Kansas City territory constitutes a conspiracy against the independents. Judge Merrill E. Otis in Federal court on March 29 denied the plaintiffs' application for a temporary injunction. A few days ago Fox Midwest filed a motion separate from the distributors asking dismissal of the suit on the grounds of a misjoinder of plaintiffs and insufficient cause of action.

Warners Ask New Hearing

Los Angeles, April 22.—Preston and Files, Warner attorneys, today argued before Judge Charles I. Bogue for a new hearing in the James Cagney contract case. A decision is expected in a couple of days.

RCA Files Cross Bill

Wilmington, April 22.—A cross bill was filed by Radio Corporation of America in Chancery Court here today in the action instituted against it last May by the Philadelphia Storage Battery Co. Hearing is set for September 14.

RCA in its bill maintains that all royalties paid by the Philadelphia company were properly paid and justly due and that the latter concern has failed to pay all of the royalties due. It alleges that the battery concern sold large quantities of apparatus, licensed under terms of the license agreement, to Philco Radio and Television Corp., its subsidiaries and Transitone Automobile Radio Corp.

RCA further alleges that the Philadelphia company has violated the article of agreement that forbids the licensee to assign, transfer or divide license without consent of RCA and that it has failed to compute royalties in accordance with the agreement.

RCA asks that Philadelphia Storage Battery Co. be adjudged as having failed to pay royalties in accordance with the agreement, that it is in default and that it be required to account for the full amount up to the date on which the agreement might be terminated.

Films 40 Years Old

Forty years ago today at Koster & Bials Music Hall in Herald Square life-size motion pictures were shown to the public for the first time. They were Edison pictures originally intended for peep shows, projected by the Armat Vitascope. During the succeeding 10 years vaudeville houses paid little attention to them. Then pictures began to grow.

Details of the highlights of film development are given in the current issue of Motion Picture Herald out today by Terry Ramsaye, editor, who wrote "A Million and One Nights," first history of the industry. In addition to an editorial by Ramsaye The Herald has a four-page layout of pictures commemorating the anniversary.

N. W. Allied for Cancellation

Omaha, April 22.—Allied of the Northwest is in favor of a 25 to 33 per cent cancellation privilege on all contracts. A stand in favor of these limits was taken at a meeting of the board of directors.

The decision was part of a seven-point trade practice program and a five-point legislative program.

The board also went on record as opposed to the publication of box-office figures in trade papers because "they are inflated and not a true picture of the business."

Leo Wolcott of Ildora, Ia., president, said the Legion of Decency seemed to be slipping and that Allied hopes to do all in its power to keep the screen fit for family patronage.

Brill Joining Rosener

Dave Brill, general sales manager of Principal Films here, has resigned, effective Saturday, to become associated with the Herbert Rosener Enterprises, which operate theatres on the coast and distribute foreign product. Awarded Ruling on Claim

An arbitrator's decision holding a $240,000 obligation of the Van Beuren Co. to Pathe to be due and payable was handed down yesterday by Theodore Kiendl of the law office of Davis, Polk, Wardwell, Gardiner & Reed, who acted as arbitrator.

The Van Beuren obligation represented advances made by Pathe which the latter company claimed became due and payable on March 1. Van Beuren's contention was that the obligation renewed itself for another year when no demand for payment was made by Pathe on the due date. The arbitrator's decision in Pathe's favor was discussed yesterday by the board of that company with a view to taking further action. It is expected that Van Beuren will seek an extension of the old agreement or make arrangements for deferred payments of another sort.

Jersey Relief Bond Issue Being Urged

Trenton, April 22.—A determined movement to use the proposed amusement tax to amortize a large bond issue for relief was noted today among Democratic legislators. Their plan is for a $60,000,000 issue of 10-year serial bonds.

If the plan is successful, the tax, if passed, would have to remain in force for 10 years, the entire life of the bond issue. As the tax bill now stands, it becomes effective on May 16, if passed, and would be inoperative after June 30, 1937.

Democratic leaders said that the $7,500,000 estimated yield of the amusement levies would be sufficient for interest and amortization of the 10-year bond issue. They will present their program next week in the Assembly if support can be obtained from the various Democratic county leaders.

Mysterious Mr. Fortington; The Enigma of Paramount

By SHERWIN A. KANE

As little known to the industry today as he was a year ago when his interest in the about-to-be Paramount Pictures, Inc., first became manifest, is a man who sits close to the helm of that company, whose cultivated influence, rather than his title, now marks him as apparently second in individual authority within Paramount.

The man is Harold A. Fortington, wealthy Briton, member of the board and chairman of the executive committee of Paramount. Few men in film history have so successfully cloaked themselves in mystery, if not in secrecy, while nurturing a personal influence to the stature of his in a leading motion picture enterprise. However, as Greta Garbo was made to know, and as Sir Basil Zaharoff now must realize, mystery becomes one of the most certain steps to notoriety, and secrecy is a challenge to the limelight. Whether by design or not, the shadowy Fortington sticks in the industry's mind like a question unanswered; a man whose influence is

John W. Hicks, Jr., in charge of Paramount's foreign department, was elected a vice-president of Paramount Pictures, Inc., the parent company, at the monthly meeting of the board yesterday.

Para. Profit $3,153,167; Build Reserve

Paramount Pictures, Inc., showed a net profit of $3,153,167 for the year 1935. The figure is after deduction of all charges but before a special inventory reserve of $2,500,000 for productions not released, leaving a balance of $653,167 transferred to surplus.

In the report, the first annual statement to be made by Paramount since Dec. 26, 1931, John E. Otterson, president, states in referring to the special inventory reserve that "the high cost pictures made during the period of the studio reorganization which had not been released at Dec. 28, 1935, would normally involve a charge against 1936 operations. Inasmuch as the excess costs of these pictures were an incident of the studio reorganization, the directors have set aside out of 1935 profits the sum of $2,500,000

Film Backing Barred for Plays Under Guild Pacts

Major motion picture companies have upwards of $2,000,000 already appropriated for stage play financing, none of which will be available to producers employing the new contract placed in effect on March 1 by the Dramatists' Guild, producer members of the League of N. Y. Theatres were told yesterday.

Richard Aldrich, in charge of Columbia's legitimate play activities, told the producers' meeting that he had been authorized by Harry Cohn, Columbia president, to say that that company had $250,000 to invest in play production next season and that none of it would be available to plays produced under the guild's contract. Brock Pemberton, producer, said that he had received similar declarations from Warners and M-G-M and that other producers who had contacted other major film companies had received similar statements.

The Minimum Basic Agreement, adopted several weeks ago by the League of N. Y. Theatres for the conduct of negotiations with playwrights, was formally put into effect at the

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

A HANDFUL of days back we indulged in considerable verbal back-slapping and handshaking over the appointment of Bob Cochrane to the presidency of Universal. Today we return, in identical mood, to cover the same kind of ground. Only on this occasion, it has to do with Jimmy Grainger and the successful culmination of the deliberations which will keep him in "U" as its general sales manager for the next few years; three, the report has it. This new development and that knockout Loew financial statement for the first twenty-eight weeks of its fiscal year were two highlights of the day. . . .

Who and what Grainger is should require no editorial exposition after all these years. The slant which we touch upon today is the peace and quiet which the renewal of his arrangement will bring to the Universal selling crew up and down the land and the value which will so redound to the company. All of those men, of course, had no way of knowing it, but it appears a safe conclusion to draw that many were aware of the fact that his old pact was about to run out. Couple the hazards to them of any change in sales administration with the advent of an entirely new administration in the affairs of the company for the obvious and inescapable conclusion that these were not comfortable times for the men on the firing line. . . .

The perennial wheeze about new brooms and their much-vaunted clean sweepings has been bothering the Universal men. They had no way of knowing what their future was to be under the new ownership. For that matter, and for all they knew, there was likewise no method of ascertaining if a new general sales manager was not to take his bow. Uncertainties such as these raise several kinds of unrest in any organization which points up why, with Grainger continuing as he should have in the light of his splendid record at Universal, the comfort which comes with assured jobs is now no longer a worrisome issue. Universal's sales force thereby is released for selling, its function, and another road opened to better returns. . . .

The Loew statement, a honey, reported a net of $5,033,038 for the twenty-eight weeks to March 12, comparing with $4,345,337 in the similar period of the previous fiscal year. The net, of course, embraces M-G-M and other wholly-owned subsidiaries. Indicating a verification of the suspicion, around for some time now, that welcome prosperity is creeping up on the business are the figures as they stand. Another approach and an interesting one nestles in the realization that the $5,033,038 earned so far is about $2,500,000 under the company's profits for the complete 1934-35 year with twenty-four weeks left to reach and outdistance the $7,579,543 reported at the close of business on August 31, 1935. That was Leo's roar, therefore, that you heard around Times Square yesterday. . . .

As long as it is the industry's millions we toss off so lightly here, consider what has happened at Twentieth Century-Fox. In thirteen weeks, or to March 28, that company, blossoming under the production impetus imparted to it with the merger of Twentieth Century and the acquisition of Darryl Zanuck as the studio works, earned a net of $1,826,900. Same period last year before the consolidation: a comparative pittance of $606,806. There, the distributor's intensive distribution which runs over 10,000 contracts on the Shirley Temples, for instance, is proceeding at the headlong rate of $909,761 a week on the basis of $11,826,900 rolled up in the period covered. Sid Kent is a notoriously bad sailor, but the European trip he launched upon yesterday with Joe Schenck ought to have its consolations. . . .

Mysterious Mr. Fortington; The Enigma of Paramount

apparent, yet whispered, and concerning whom next to nothing is known.

The chairman of the Paramount executive committee, to whom Paramount a little more than a year ago was no more than one of many corporate names on the Stock Exchange which held his interest as an advisor to British insurance companies on American investments, receives a salary reported to be $52,000 annually. A specialist in finance, Wall Street and "The City", yet unschooled in the operations of this industry, Fortington presides over what may be called the "steering" committee for the Paramount directorate. As Fortington's executive committee goes, so, save in exceptionally rare instances, has gone the Paramount board. On occasions, the course seemingly has been contrary to the one pursued by the management.

Fortington came to America in 1920 as financial secretary of the Royal and the London and Liverpool insurance companies. His responsibility it was to advise those companies on their American investments. In 1933, when Paramount went into bankruptcy, the companies he represented held approximately $1,500,000 in face value of Paramount Publix securities. This amount was subsequently increased so that a year later when the reorganization had taken definite shape, Fortington was reported to be the spokesman for upwards of $3,000,000 face amount of debentures.

Influence Vital

With the Atlas Corp.-Lehman Bros. coalition steadily increasing their Paramount holdings and making open warfare on the Kuhn, Loeb & Co. camp, Fortington's position on the eve of the reorganization was a strategic one. His influence, thrown to either side, could well mean success or failure to the factions jockeying for dominance. It is not to be assumed that Fortington overlooked this at the time he joined hands with the Atlas-Lehman group which emerged on top. In any event, when the company was reorganized in June of last year, Fortington was chairman of the executive committee.

The British companies' Paramount holdings were his stepping stone to the highly influential post, yet four months later, Fortington resigned his associations with those companies—some say, however, it was done in accordance with an intention announced by Fortington in advance of the Paramount reorganization. However that may be, since last fall he has been the direct representative of no large amount of Paramount securities, and during the same time his influence within the company continued to increase. He established himself in executive offices on the 11th floor of the Paramount Bldg., adjoining those of Adolph Zukor.

Underhill Studio for "Time"

Fortington is inconspicuous in appearance, pleasant, disarming. He is the type that in conversing engages the interest indefinitely and, if sought for information, one realizes presently that more is given than received. This may explain, at least in part, the legend of secrecy and the fact of mystery which surround him. He is insulated from the curious by secretaries who may be stoic in their reticence or, like all others who have contact with him, really know little of importance about him or his affairs.

In the 10 months that he has been at Paramount and entertained officials of the company at his expansive country estate in Dutchess County of a weekend, that reticence in speaking of him has been communicated to them as well. Industry men, ordinarily not given to accepting strangers at face value, express great respect for his abilities yet, upon questioning, display only the haziest notions as the basis of their attitude.

Domiciles Many

He is reputed to have an island home off the coast of England, an apartment in Manhattan and his farm estate, Lime Ridge, at Poughquag, about 75 miles from New York City. The country estate boasts a fully equipped airport, three planes, landing field, hangars and personal pilot and mechanic. In good flying weather Fortington commutes to and from Newark airport, occasionally acting as his own pilot.

His hobbies or amusements mirror his characteristics. There are the elusive salmon in his private river in Labrador, to which he journeys by plane two or three times a year for the sport. There are the cautious pheasants in his game preserve at Lime Ridge, and the tongueless apples that ripen in his orchard there, the largest in an apple-raising section of the state.

as a special reserve against the picture inventory, absorbing all of such estimated excess costs in 1935 operations, rather than spreading it over the active life of the negatives."

Theatre operating and general expenses amounted to $37,891,990; film distribution, including producers' and others' share of rentals, was $16,737,200, and amortization of films amounted to $28,487,784, leaving an operating profit of $10,157,880. Interest requirements amounted to approximately $1,575,700 for non-recurring bank debts and subsidiary companies, and $1,576,600 on Paramount debentures. Depreciation amounted to $3,048,550, and taxes, $481,321.

Robert K. Cassatt, New York and Philadelphia investment banker, who had been elected to the board for a one-year term expiring in June, had his resignation accepted by the board yesterday.

Testimony Ended In the Hart Suit

Both sides rested yesterday in the $500,000 conspiracy suit brought by William S. Hart against the United Artists Corp. The case which is being tried before Justice Philip J. McCook in N. Y. Supreme Court will go to the jury today. During yesterday's session Arthur W. Kelly, vice-president of United Artists, testified at length on conferences with Hart's attorneys concerning the production and exploitation of "Tumbleweeds." He also testified that the overcharge on negatives was called to his attention and that Hart was reimbursed with apologies. The remainder of the day was spent in the explanation of statistics by accountants.

Motion Granted Liberty

Justice Alfred Frankenthaler in N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday granted a motion made on behalf of Liberty Pictures Corp. to make John J. Dacey a co-defendant in connection with a suit for $120,000 which has been filed against Liberty Pictures by Eleanor Gates, a writer. Counsel for Liberty Pictures asked that John J. Dacey be made a co-defendant on the ground that Liberty Pictures bought the exclusive rights to a story entitled "The Search for Spring," on Oct. 31, 1933, and that Dacey represented that he was in a position to sell the rights to Liberty Pictures.

The complainant, in seeking to restrain the defendant from using her name in advertising or distributing a picture "Once to Every Bachelor," charges that she was the author of the story and that Dacey did not possess those rights. The petition of Liberty Pictures explained that in the event that Miss Gates secures a judgment against Liberty for the alleged wrongful use of her name, Liberty will have a cause of action against Dacey.

Assets Sale Held Fraudulent

The sale of certain assets of the Acme Film Co. on Dec. 3, 1932, to Edna Weinberg was held to be fraudulent in Federal Court yesterday by Judge Robert P. Patterson. The decision was handed down in a suit brought by Arthur Gottlieb as trustee in bankruptcy of Hans Frohman against Edna Weinberg and the Arcadia Film Corp. The judge's decision set forth that on May 15, 1932, Hans Frohman was adjudged bankrupt and that on Dec. 3, 1932, he had sold $2,000 worth of equipment to Edna Weinberg for $500 and that subsequently the Arcadia Film Corp. was organized at 729 7th Ave. of which Frohman became president and Edna Weinberg, secretary and treasurer. The court ruled that the trustee in bankruptcy is entitled to an accounting and to judgments against the defendants for the reasonable value of the assets.

Blue Laws to Be Tested

RICHMOND, April 23.—Efforts to get a high court ruling on the constitutionality of Virginia's blue laws have been started again.

Charles A. Somma, one of the owners of the Byrd, has taken an appeal from a $5 fine for showing "The Witness Chair" on Sunday. Prominent citizens were brought in to testify that films on Sunday are a "moral necessity."

The next move in the case will be before Judge John L. Ingram in Hustings Court on May 8. In the meantime the Byrd is to be kept closed Sundays by agreement.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"One Rainy Afternoon"

(Pickford-Lasky-United Artists)

HOLLYWOOD, April 23.—This, the first production of Pickford-Lasky, augurs well for the new producing team; it means that future Pickford-Lasky efforts must be given eager and serious consideration. The new picture, which fulfills every expectation and promise of the producers, is based on a French romantic farce-comedy and is played in typically Continental fashion. It bubbles over with mirth and merriment. It seems to have everything the audience or exhibitor will want—bright, subtle dialogue, novel and amusingly contrived situations, and fast, well-paced action.

When Francis Lederer, in the darkness of a film theatre, kisses Ida Lupino by mistake, he becomes a Parisian sensation. Eily Malyon, Purity League president, demands his arrest and, centering newspaper attention on the escapade, labels him as a monster. The newspaper publicity causes much sound and fury on the part of Miss Lupino's father, Joseph Cawthorn; Eric Rhodes, her suitor, and Ronald Young, a producer.

Comedy sequences follow one upon the other to culminate in a court trial scene where the work of Lederer, Hugh Herbert, Young, and, in particular, Donald Meek as the judge, is a veritable riot of fun. As Lederer is sentenced, Miss Lupino, attracted by the romantic victim of bluenoses, pays his fine.

With mobs storming the theatre to see Lederer, producer Young and Herbert turn the jail and Paris upside down and inside out in an effort to sign the hero for stage appearances. In the finale Lederer sings a song and captures the heart of Miss Lupino, to the happiness of everybody with the exception of Rhodes.

The show has speed and coherence. The high quality of action, dialogue and acting frequently brought spontaneous applause from the preview audience here. The intelligent adaptation of the play by Stephen Morehouse Avery together with the keen and right-to-the-point direction of Ronald V. Lee give the attraction an intimate, understandable character that presages popularity with both masses and classes.

Bank Night Fate Up Soon

Kamen Obtains an Order

In a suit for $79,000 brought by Betty Longacre against Herman Kamen and Kay Kamen, Inc., Justice Julius Miller issued an order in N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday to compel Betty Longacre to reply to the defendants. The defendants set forth that they paid her $21,000, and in addition also paid her $1,295 on Sept. 14, 1934, after which the defendants obtained a release from her. She alleges in the complaint that $79,000 is still due her.

Deny Freedman Motion

A motion to dismiss an accounting claim by Herman B. Freedman in a suit against him by Pathe Film Corp. was denied yesterday by Justice John Carew in N. Y. Supreme Court. Pathe is suing Freedman for $5,000 on two notes each in favor of Pathe Exhange, Inc. Freedman alleges in his account claim for $5,000 that Pathe Exchange, Inc., wrongfully refused to extend assistance to First Division Exchanges, Inc., to enable it to publicize and exploit six films produced by Freedman.

Protests WPA Films

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Protests were made in the House today by Republican Floor Leader Bertrand H. Snell against making WPA films. He charged that the pictures would be a diversion of WPA funds and would be used for campaign purposes.

Short Subject

"Dick Whittington's Cat"

(Celebrity)

Colorful action and a cleverly presented plot make this an entertaining cartoon that will particularly please children and, no doubt, entertain their elders. Dick's cat wanders into the bakery where his master works and gets in the way of the baker, who orders Dick to drown him. Dick, however, cannot, and, while near the waterfront, places the bag on a ship which goes to the Orient. The port of arrival is plagued with rodents, and after a fashion the cat does away with them. Returning a hero and with a chest of gold the cat goes to Dick but the mice in the bakery still have the big sissy's number and he runs away when they threaten. Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

Fred Stone Is Hit Of Ampa's Program

Fred Stone, Ed Lowry, Valerie Keaton and Belle Bart provided Ampa members yesterday with a diversified bill of entertainment at the Astor.

Stone became witty and told a few funny stories in addition to singing "Feet in the Middle and It Don't Look Like Love," a parody on "Fit as a Fiddle." One of the things Stone is puzzled about is the fact that he has never worked in a film for the company to which he has been under contract. When he first went to Hollywood he had been signed by Paramount and loaned to RKO and now that he has been signed by RKO Stone has been farmed out to Paramount for his next picture.

Lowry acted as master of ceremonies and was a hit. Miss Keaton did a tap dance which garnered a big hand and Miss Bart, an astrologist, peered into the future of the film industry and two Ampa members.

Miss Bart predicted that third dimension will be the next important development of the industry, that in six years the legitimate theatre will be a thing of the past, that in the fall of this year and spring of next color will be in great demand, that shortly a great financial revolution will take place in the industry which will result in combination of companies for economic reasons, that a scientific aura in film production will be the tenor of the trend next fall and in the spring of 1938, and that in 1939-40 pictures will be produced dealing with armaments and war propaganda.

Election of officers will be held next Thursday. There is no opposition ticket, another move in this direction having failed yesterday.

No Film Backing For Guild Plays

meeting. It was indicated that the League had held the contract in abeyance since its adoption, in the hope of negotiating a settlement of the controversy over the terms of the agreement with the Dramatists' Guild of the Authors' League, which has formulated its own form of contract.

A total of 75 producing managers have signed an agreement to use exclusively the Theatre League's contract form, which replaces the old agreement which expired Feb. 29, this year. A statement from the manager group indicated that the issuance of the new contract does not "preclude the possibility of negotiating the differences with the authors."

The chief point of contention between the managers and the Guild revolved about the percentage of the sale price of the motion picture rights which should go to the author. The authors, in their own contract, specified that they receive 60 per cent of the sale, and the managers 40 per cent.

Manager's Pact Differentiates

The managers' contract is a combination of the last basic agreement with the Dramtists' Guild, the new agreement of the Guild and "new features suggested by recent changes in the producing field." The managers' contract divides plays into two classifications for the purposes of the sale of film rights in view of the recent development of the backing by film interests of play production. Plays are grouped as independently financed and those financed in whole or in part by film companies.

On independently produced plays the rules governing the sale of film rights are the same as in the former contract, that is, a 50-50 split between manager and author of the price of film rights. In the case of plays financed by film companies, three options are given. The first option, in three parts, calls for an outright agreement of sale before production at a set price, the same with the addition of further payment based on the length of the play's run, or a price based only on the length of run. The second option gives the author the right to stipulate the sum he is to receive for the rights, and by the third option the price in effect would be an arbitrated figure fixed by the author, manager and arbiter.

Dramatists' Guild Excluded

The contract as drawn makes no mention of the Dramatists' Guild, since the Guild has refused to recognize any contract but its own. A new contract will be drawn in the event of successful negotiations between the two groups, the League pointed out.

The 75 producers who have pledged themselves to use the new League contract are:

Charles H. Abramson, Richard Aldrich, Lyle D. Andrews, Theron Bamburger, Maurice Barber, Martin Beck, Harold K. Berg, Paul L. Berney, Bela Blau, Gustav Blum, Ben A. Boyar, Wm. A. Looking 'Em Over

"The Last Journey"

(Atlantic Pictures)

A Twickenham production, made in England, this picture has plenty of thrill action and suspense. Set almost in its entirety on a speeding train, a fast pace is maintained throughout, as the engineer, slightly deranged, permits his train to run wild in retaliation for what he believes is an affair carried on by his wife with the fireman of his train, and his best friend.

On the train, as it rushes on what is to be the engineer's last trip before enforced retirement, are a variety of people, several crooks, a detective seeking them and faking intoxication, a pamphlet-distributing feminine prohibitionist, a girl who is the dupe of a confidence man she has just married, a Frenchman, a small boy on the train alone, a mother with six children, and a miscellaneous collection of others. Also, Godfrey Tearle, a psychoanalyst and surgeon, bound for Manchester to perform an important operation.

The engineer charges the fireman with affection for his wife, and at the point of a gun compels him to continue to shovel coal for the boiler as he races the train at top speed, ignores all signals and stations, planning to wreck the train. Eventually the fireman escapes, crawls back for help. As the passengers are panic-stricken, Tearle makes his way forward and by mental suggestion, forces the engineer finally to bring the train to a halt. The affairs of the group aboard are brought to a logical conclusion, and the fiance of the duped girl, who has raced the train by car, catches up in time to have her escort arrested.

The picture should be found lively entertainment for those especially who like their suspense and action on the screen. Bernard Vorhaus directed.

Production Code Seal, No. 0971. Running time, 58 minutes. "G."

Thomas at Work on Distribution Deals

Thomas in the new venture, he denied this yesterday, stating he has a contract which does not expire until 1938. He also added he has had no talks with anyone regarding a settlement.

Pathe, which controls First Division, had until September to pick up Thomas' stock and buy his contract which otherwise would automatically have been renewed for a term of years.

James Davidson, former statistician for National Theatres and now a director of Grand National Films, already has moved into the company's headquarters in the RKO Building.

Wallis Bids Farewell

Hollywood, April 23.—Hal Wallis, en route to Europe accompanied by his wife, stated that he is taking with him prints of "Anthony Adverse" and "Pasteur". He said that his next year's plans call for the making of 60 pictures. He declared, incidentally, that the singing voice of Dick Powell, endangered by an operation, is again in the best of shape.

tors there on product arrangements for the circuit. He was the guest of honor at a trade dinner last night at Claridges, which was arranged by Eric Strelitz, London representative of British Empire Films, which is the Doyle Australian distributing unit for British product.

The Hoyts'-Union joint operation is carried on through General Theatres, and is said to have been compelled by banking interests common to both companies. Ernest Turnbull, managing director in Australia of British & Dominions, has just completed an arrangement for distribution in Australia with Fox Films of Australia and New Zealand and Hoyts'. Both Doyle and Turnbull, it is said, are seeking production affiliations which will permit of early dissolution of the working arrangement or for protection when it occurs. The inclusion of Hoyts' in the earlier Turnbull deal is understood to be dependent on the dissolution of General Theatres.

Hollywood Tribute Given to Laemmle

time secretary of the "Little Giant;" Herbert Rawlinson and George Eastman, of the Hollywood and Los Angeles Chambers of Commerce; Frank Lloyd, Will H. Hays and Rupert Hughes echoed the heartfelt and respectful tribute of Laemmle's friends in brief speeches which covered his Horatio Alger ascension to fame and fortune.

Hayes presented a scroll of honor to Laemmle as a permanent record of the industry's tribute to one of its pioneers. Telegrams from friends throughout the world were read. Speakers sketched Laemmle's courageous battle on numerous occasions to keep Universal from bankruptcy.

Laemmle then, in a strong, husky voice denying his many years, expressed his appreciation.

Fittingly, the affair faded out with the screening of Laemmle's picture highlights from the two-reeler, "Hiawatha," to "All Quiet on the Western Front" and "King of Jazz."

Hollywood long will remember Laemmle's retirement from Universal.

Judge Robert P. Patterson in Federal Court yesterday denied a motion made on behalf of five stock brokerage houses to vacate subpoenas issued at the request of the Capital Co. to examine their records in connection with a judgment obtained by the Capital Co. against William Fox for $297,412.

Judge Patterson's order directs the brokerage houses to produce their records for examination by Capital's counsel. The Capital Co. charges that Fox has concealed assets in the brokerage firms.

ITOA Appeal On Sales Tax Meets Rebuff

Move Leaves Distributor Appeal Only Case Up

The I.T.O.A.'s efforts to obtain an injunction restraining the city from levying a sales tax on film rentals and distributors from collecting it collapsed yesterday when the Appellate Division denied a motion to permit the I.T.O.A. to take its action to the Court of Appeals at Albany.

Yesterday's decision definitely closes the door on efforts to forestall by the injunctive method the collection of the tax from exhibitors. New York exchanges, in consequence, will continue to add two per cent to film rentals to provide for the tax until the pending court efforts of the distributors to prove that films are not subject to a municipal tax are concluded. If the distributors are successful in their efforts, the levy now being collected and held in escrow will be returned to exhibitors.

The I.T.O.A. action was brought through Harlou, Inc., and Quinral, Inc., operators of Brooklyn theatres. It charged that the city's assessment

Fight M-G-M Writ To Appeal 'Lynton'

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Attorneys for Edward Sheldon and Margaret Ayer Barnes, playwrights, today filed a petition with the U. S. Supreme Court in opposition to the request by M-G-M for a review by the high court of the recent Circuit Court of Appeals decision against M-G-M in the plagiarism action involving the film "Letty Lynton."

Today was the final day for the filing of the brief by the plaintiffs. The Supreme Court is not expected to make known whether or not it will hear the case until May 11. Since the court recesses for the summer early in June, it is unlikely that the appeal will be heard until the fall term of the court at the earliest, in the event it is decided to review the case.

The playwrights brought the action against M-G-M, charging plagiarism of their copyrighted play,

Hearing in St. Louis Case Put Over Until Next Friday

A hearing on motions filed by Warners, Paramount, RKO and the Government in connection with the Government's petition for an injunction to prevent the majors from continuing to refuse first run product to F. & M.'s Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central theatres in St. Louis was postponed yesterday until next Friday by mutual consent of all parties.

Louis Connick of Thacher, Bartlett & Simpson represented the defendants while Russell Hardy appeared for the Government when the case was called before Federal Judge John C. Knox.

Eugene Ford of Cravath, de Gersdorff, Swaine & Wood and Hardy will confer today on papers to be included in the Supreme Court appeal from a decision by Federal Judge Joseph West Molyneaux dismissing the equity trial in St. Louis without prejudice. The defendants hold that Judge Molyneaux had no right to dismiss the action after it had progressed to the completion of the Government's case.

Hardy will return to Washington today and return May 1 for the delayed hearings. The defendants' motion is for a bill of particulars and the Government's request is for preference on the calendar.

Studio Craft Get 10%-15% Wage Raises

End IATSE-IBEW Row Over Jurisdiction

All studio crafts under the jurisdiction of the I. A. T. S. E. and the I. B. E. W. will receive a 10 per cent increase in wages for the ensuing year, while members of the teamsters' and chauffeurs' union are given a 15 per cent increase as a result of agreements reached yesterday in closing negotiations between the producers' labor committee and international presidents of the unions embraced by the five-year basic agreement with studios.

In accepting the wage increases the studio unions relinquished their demands for a 30-hour week, which results in continuing studio crafts on the present 36-hour basis. Wage and hour schedules for the musicians' union and the carpenters' and joiners' union continue unchanged.

The jurisdictional dispute between the I. B. E. W. and the I. A. T. S. E. over sound men was adjusted during the negotiations on a basis which gives the I. A. jurisdiction over the operation of sound equipment, and the I. B. E. W. jurisdiction over construction, maintenance and repair work.

Para. Wins Chicago Suit Over Contract

CHICAGO, April 24.—The Illinois Supreme Court today denied the petition of George and Jean Gehring operating the Roseland, to prevent Paramount from collecting $3,073 in damages for breach of contract by cancellation.

The Supreme Court upheld a decision of the Appellate Division. The ruling is seen here as of great importance, since it is the first decision in Illinois on film contracts. It is expected the verdict will result in a more stringent attitude on the part of distributors with regard to contract violations in the state.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Under Two Flags"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, April 24.—Combining all the available showmanship angles into one dramatic unit, Ouida's famous tale of love, sacrifice and bravery in the Foreign Legion comes to the screen with an effective pictorial translation assuring heavy grosses.

Swiftly moving pageantry, stark, powerful drama and the tender love interest of the tale are brought out in strong relief for exploitation punch with a powerful box-office cast headed by Claudette Colbert, Ronald Colman, Victor McLaglen and Rosalind Russell.

The film surmounts all the African Foreign Legion chronicles to date. The predominating theme is the love of Miss Colbert as Cigarette and Miss Russell as Lady Venetia for Colman, who fled a jail sentence in England as a result of shielding his wayward brother. McLaglen is forceful as the commander of the Legion post at Algeria who becomes insanely jealous of Miss Colbert's affection for Colman. The picture carries a dramatic impact when Arabs declare war and McLaglen sends sergeant Colman into almost certain death among the Arab tribes to assuage their jealous emotion.

Miss Colbert eventually sacrifices her life to save Colman and his surrounded battalion. Colman and Miss Russell, as predestined, are brought together at the finale. The battle scenes are done with effective savagery and pictorial beauty. Frank Lloyd has drained each situation, building for dramatic potency.

All the cast performances, including as the supporting players Gregory Ratoff, Nigel Bruce, C. Henry Gordon, Herbert Mundin, John Carradine and Lumsden Hare, are carried off in expert fashion.

W. P. Lipscomb and Walter Ferris have sustained the Ouida punch in an otherwise intelligent screen play. Ernest Palmer and Sidney Wagner photographed with imaginative artistry and dramatic evaluation. Darryl F. Zanuck and associate producer, Raymond Griffith, have embellished the film with significant showmanship values certain to please all types of audiences.

Fight M-G-M Writ To Appeal 'Lynton'

"Dishonored Lady." In 1934 the Federal district court in New York returned a verdict against the plaintiffs, but on Jan. 17, this year, the Circuit Court of Appeals reversed the lower court. M-G-M petitioned the U. S. Supreme Court for a review about three weeks ago. In the interim, a brief was filed with the Supreme Court on behalf of 17 producers, supporting M-G-M's request for a review. It was pointed out at that time that the issue of public domain, about which the case revolves, is of major importance to all companies, and that if the Circuit Court of Appeals decision is permitted to stand, it will "work a great hardship" on all producers.

M-G-M had contended the material from which the picture was made was a sensational trial in Scotland and was in the public domain. As a result of the reversal, the plaintiff won a damage verdict of $21,000, plus attorneys' fees, based on the showing of the film in 84 houses, assessed at the minimum penalty of $250 per violation under the copyright laws.

of film rentals for the sales tax was illegal, and sought an injunction to restrain the assessment and collection. The injunction was denied successively by the N. Y. Supreme Court and the Appellate Division. The latter's refusal yesterday to permit the action to be carried into the state's highest court now makes it necessary for the I.T.O.A. to return to its original action in which it must proceed to prove that film rentals are not subject to the tax. This is the course being followed by the local distributors in the action by the United Artists exchange, which is regarded as a test case. Melvin Albert of Weisman, Quinn, Allen & Spett, I.T.O.A. attorneys, said he was uncertain what his next move would be.

T. Newman Lawler of O'Brien, Driscoll & Raftery, attorneys for the United Artists exchange, said that the record of the company's appeal from the city's ruling that film rentals are subject to the tax, together with briefs on the law involved, have been completed and will be filed with the Appellate Division early next week. A hearing will be set thereafter.

Warners, RKO Talk More Two-a-Day "Dream" Here

Following unusual business accorded the roadshow policy with "A Midsummer Night's Dream," chiefly at its 81st St. and Alden, Jamaica houses, RKO is working on plans to date in the Warner road show in theatres beyond the original 13 "A" neighborhood houses in the metropolitan area on the same policy.

The step is precedental and marks the first time the circuit has ever considered converting subsequent run stands into two-a-day outlets, no matter how briefly.

The scheme is a two-way precedent. When the first batch, all neighborhood key theatres and first run in their zones, was set up, that move, too, had never been tried previously. The Warner organization has been cooperating very closely with RKO in exploiting the attraction and aiding the sale of tickets to schools and clubs.

Warner World Staff To Gather on Coast

Warner, First National and Cosmopolitan Prod. executives from all parts of the world are to gather in Hollywood June 1 for a five-day conference. Executives of Warners' affiliated music publishing houses and other concerns will also be present. The sessions will be held at the Ambassador and will be followed by studio visits.

Business sessions will be presided over by Gradwell Sears, western and southern sales manager, and A. W. Smith, Jr., eastern and Canadian sales manager.

Edward L. Alperson, president of Grand National, successor to First Division, officially assumes the post on Friday.

The awards are in the form of bronze clenched fists with the middle finger pointing upward toward new achievements.

Concessions Begin in New Season Pacts

Decisions on individual sales policies which major distributors will put in work for the new season as a result of the trade practice conference held with the M. P. T. O. A. committee last week are being made rapidly in anticipation of final meetings with the exhibitor committee beginning May 4.

Definite concessions are known to have been decided upon already by four of the seven national distributors which participated in the exhibitor-distributor conference. Each company's stand will be made known to the exhibitor committee as it meets with each successively. While the results will in fact be the new season sales policy of each company and, as such, not subject to further negotia-

Speed Production On Current Films

Hollywood, April 26.—While new season production lineups were in the final stages of preparation, camera work continued at full blast here last week in an effort to complete the current season programs. Pictures in the final stages of editing numbered 53.

Although active work on features dropped from the previous week's 45 to the current 43, indications pointed to an early production boom with 20 features scheduled to go into work within the next two weeks. Short

Settlement Of St. Louis Case Believed Near

Compromise Reported to Be Before Cummings

Settlement of the injunctive proceedings brought by the Government against Warners, RKO and Paramount for allegedly refusing to serve F. & M.'s Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central in St. Louis is imminent, it appeared over the week-end. Attorney General Homer S. Cummings is understood from reliable sources to be considering with no little interest terms of a proposed agreement reported near between the complaining and responding parties.

Inasmuch as the civil suit was instituted by the Government, any settlement reached by the litigants must be sanctioned by Washington before the action may be withdrawn from the Federal Court calendar. While no Government representative interested in the St. Louis case will reveal any information in connection with current developments, it is known that Washington is fully aware of discussions already held in the Mound City and in New York in an effort to end the litigation.

Conn. Group Attacks MPTOA 'Domination'

New Haven, April 26. — The I.M.P.T.O. of Connecticut at a recent meeting here passed a resolution pointing out that the organization is not connected with the M.P.T.O.A. in any manner. The resolution declared that the M.P.T.O.A. is dominated by producer-distributors and by theatres owned by or affiliated with them.

It was stated further that Ed Kuykendall, president of the M.P.T.O.A., therefore cannot represent the Connecticut unit's interests in the current trade practice conferences.

No Successor to Be Named for Alperson

No successor will be appointed to replace Edward L. Alperson when he retires May 1 as executive buying head for National Theatres to assume his new duties as president of Grand National Films, Inc., and Grand National Distributing Corp., it is understood.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

By far, one of the most interesting twists of the year in distribution has had its story only partially told. Little secret cloaked the original reaction of various and sundry of the Warner selling staff in New York when they finally understood the studio was determined to make "A Midsummer Night's Dream." The realization was around and it was general that the Hollywood end might be expected to turn out a picture of genuine merit. Which was what happened. There were the usual misgivings about Shakespeare, costumes, fantasy and a great deal of apprehension about the reception of the completed job on the part of exhibitor and public. . . .

So they talked and talked and out of the palavers came several conclusions. Not in order necessarily, they were:

That "The Dream" was off the beaten track in the theatre and public mind insofar as its departure from routine, accepted entertainment might be concerned. It was agreed finally, and happily so, that a vogue had to be created for it. Charlie Einfeld became the vogue creator. His has been a difficult, but a thoroughly effective, job. When competitive advertising men in other companies say so, all we have to do is to become the reporter, sans any extended comment of our own. . . .

Another conclusion hit on roadshows by way of encompassing the picture with an aura of importance. In many key spots, Warners undertook the special handling themselves. Nothing extraordinary or precedental in that. The astuteness of the barrage, however, began to assert itself very definitely in the scheme set up for dates beyond the major spots. What the plan actually turned out to be was nothing more or less than a reversion to the one-night stands of the legitimate field. . . .

Warners made their dates, hopped up the advance campaign, sold tickets in bulk and in the usual manner to clubs, societies, schools, et al and bounced in and out of a surprising array of lesser cities and towns on the most elastic sort of schedule. In some instances, "The Dream" played three performances, not days. In others, six. The engagements, always at advanced prices, were keyed to the possibilities and the national gross, thus far, has warmed up to this specialized treatment. . . .

An interesting slant, and no accident, moreover, is the manner in which the distributor has remained aloof from his regular accounts, thereby preserving for whatever final gross may develop the revenue from straight picture house deals. It was experience reported from the Middle West which persuaded Nate Blumberg and some others at RKO to spot the picture in thirteen "A" houses of that circuit's Greater New York lineup on a roadshow basis at advanced prices. Nothing like it had been attempted before by RKO operators. The other night—this comes not from RKO and not from Warners—the mobs that milled around the 81st Street theatre gave that sector of residential Broadway an Armistice Night complexion. Apparently, there was something to all of this. . . .

On the strength of the results in a couple of local houses, RKO is dickering with Warners for an extension of the roadshow idea in others of its subsequent run string in the greater city, a something even further removed from the orthodox than the first roadshow plan in the neighborhood first runs. This and other evidences of the workability of the merchandising formula, therefore, have the Warner organization ruffled with a pleasant excitement. They are computing grosses rapidly now and toss up as a forecast a $3,000,000 international take on the Shakespearian fantasy. . . .

Now that's developing a bull's market in optimism, but, be it as it may, our purpose today is a twofold one: First, to draw attention to the soundness of the approach conceived for "The Dream," which is another way of mentioning Grad Sears and Andy Smith. The other was to reflect, but quickly, on the untapped possibilities awaiting exploration and exploitation in channels heretofore talked about largely but acted upon less. It has always been a firm conviction of ours anyway that this business leans too heavily on audiences already its without serious endeavoring to cultivate and attract additions.

The vagaries in the quality of production from one season to another, of course, have sharpened into a real enough problem the maintenance of the status quo and shoved into the rear concern over new ticket buyers. Yet, potentially and as the recent survey on attendance by Fortune tended to demonstrate, there is a vast and virginal task ahead about which something ought to be done by somebody. Not as an in-and-out effort, but as a regular piece of assigned business. The Hays organization moves in that direction in what we regard as a self-starter. The momentum, for the selfish sake of their own grosses, ought to be drummed up by distributors. . . .

Seventy Pa. Cities Use Daylight Time

Harrisburg, April 26.—The Pennsylvania Chamber of Commerce yesterday made public a list of 70 towns and cities in the state which will use daylight saving time during the next five months. from today to Sept. 27. In Erie the schedule will be in effect from May 18 to Sept. 7. The list includes 55 per cent of the urban population of the state, and is described as a "preliminary tabulation," since some communities, including this city, have not reached a decision as yet. Chance Game Action Is Dropped in K. C.

Kansas City, April 26. — Judge Otis in Federal district court here yesterday dismissed without prejudice the action for a temporary injunction brought by Affiliated Enterprises, Bank Night distributor, against E. S. Young and other independents using a variety pool on Sweepstakes during the past winter.

The purpose of the suit was said to have been accomplished when the independents stopped using the promotion some time ago. However, the dismissal of the suit without prejudice leaves the way open for Affiliated to take court action again if the independents resume the chance game.

New Houses to Make Total for Brandt 53

With the acquisition of the Garden, Paterson, on May 1 and the opening of the new Plaza, Stamford, Conn., the Brandt circuit will have a total of 53 houses, Harry Brandt states. Brandt recently bought a 50 per cent interest in the Hub and University. Al and Charles Gottesman own the other half.

The new Stamford house will seat 1,400. Thomas Lamb is the architect. "One Rainy Afternoon" will be the opening attraction. The Garden, when taken over after Warners step out, will be remodeled at a cost of $50,000. Lamb also is working on these plans.

"Speed"

(M-G-M)

Hollywood, April 26.—An engaging individual performance by James Stewart against the fascinating background of a motor factory gives this production standout value as a program picture. Stewart is a racing driver who tests cars by contrived crashes at the factory. Wendy Barrie, daughter of the company president, breaking into the business in the publicity department under an assumed name, learns that Stewart is trying to perfect a carburetor invention. She arranges to have Weldon Heyburn, engineer, help with the experiments.

Stewart misinterprets her interest, believing that she is aiding Heyburn to chisel in on his invention. The quarrel which results continues through crashes at the Indianapolis racetrack and speed tests at Modoc Dry Lake.

Una Merkel plays a straight part as office manager, but her characteristic comedy is regrettably missing. Ted Healy is excellent in a comedy part as a mechanic while Patricia Wilder, known on the air as Honeychile, introduces some topnotch humor as a boy-crazy vamp from the deep South. Ralph Morgan gives a smooth performance as the mill executive.

The interesting factory scenes and exciting racetrack sequences are well spotted in the screen play by Michael Fassier from the story by Milton Krims and Larr Bachman. Edwin L. Marin directed and Lucien Hubbard produced.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,210. Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

"Born to Fight"

(Conn Pictures Corp.)

Hollywood, April 26.—Audiences which can believe that a professional prizefighter who knocks down a racketeer in a night club would leave town with all the speed and secrecy of a criminal who has committed a major crime will enjoy this picture thoroughly. Aside from this story weakness the picture is a swiftly-moving yarn of professional fighting from a backstage angle.

The story starts when Kane Richmond, lightweight contender, floors Jack LaRue, a gambler, in a cafe brawl. On advice from Monty Collins, his manager, Kane leaves for the west via the hobo route. On the road he meets Frankie Darro. Believing that a public appearance would result in a penitentiary sentence for himself, Kane decides to manage a ring career for Darro. With the assistance of Frances Grant, who has inherited a gym where fighters train, Darro is developed into a topnotch flyweight, and as he wins the championship Kane's troubles with the law are dispersed and he is left to culminate his romance with Miss Grant.

Stephen Norris, credited with making the screen adaptation from a novel by Peter B. Kyne, has turned in a workmanlike script which Charles Hutchison directed with sound judgment of values. Maurice Conn and Martin G. Cohn may be credited with a good production and good casting sense. In addition to the players mentioned, good performances are given by Snowflake, negro fight handler, and Sheila Mannors as LaRue's companion. The picture should do well in the market for which it is aimed.

"Sons O' Guns"

(Warners)

Hollywood, April 26.—This adaptation of the once popular stage play gives Joe E. Brown plenty of opportunities to display his characteristic fun-making talents. A war story treated from the farcical side, it makes Brown practically the sole object of interest. Little attempt at modernization has been made, and the picture is pitched in comic key with but meagre dramatic contrast. As Brown sings, dances and clowns in mimic style, he is given adequate support by Joan Blondell, with whom the romance is shared, and Beverly Roberts, Eric Blore, Winifred Shaw, Joseph King and G. P. Huntley, Jr.

Ridiculed and terrorized into becoming a self-shanghaied recruit in the A.E.F., Brown is a completely left-footed soldier. Playing havoc with discipline while falling in love with Mademoiselle Blondell, Brown specializes with an Apache dance in a cabaret and song numbers in a Y.M.C.A. hut. Jailed on a spy charge, he effects a ludicrous scene with Huntley leading him to an escape. Capturing a regiment of Germans who don't want to fight any more than he does, he is about to be shot as

The film is played and directed to accent its fun-provoking potentialities. It is different from the usual Brown vehicle. It has novelty that ought to be popular, unless war pictures are taboo even from the comic side. The personal popularity of the star should assure satisfactory grosses where they like him. Publicity emphasizing the show's amusing character should keynote exploitation.

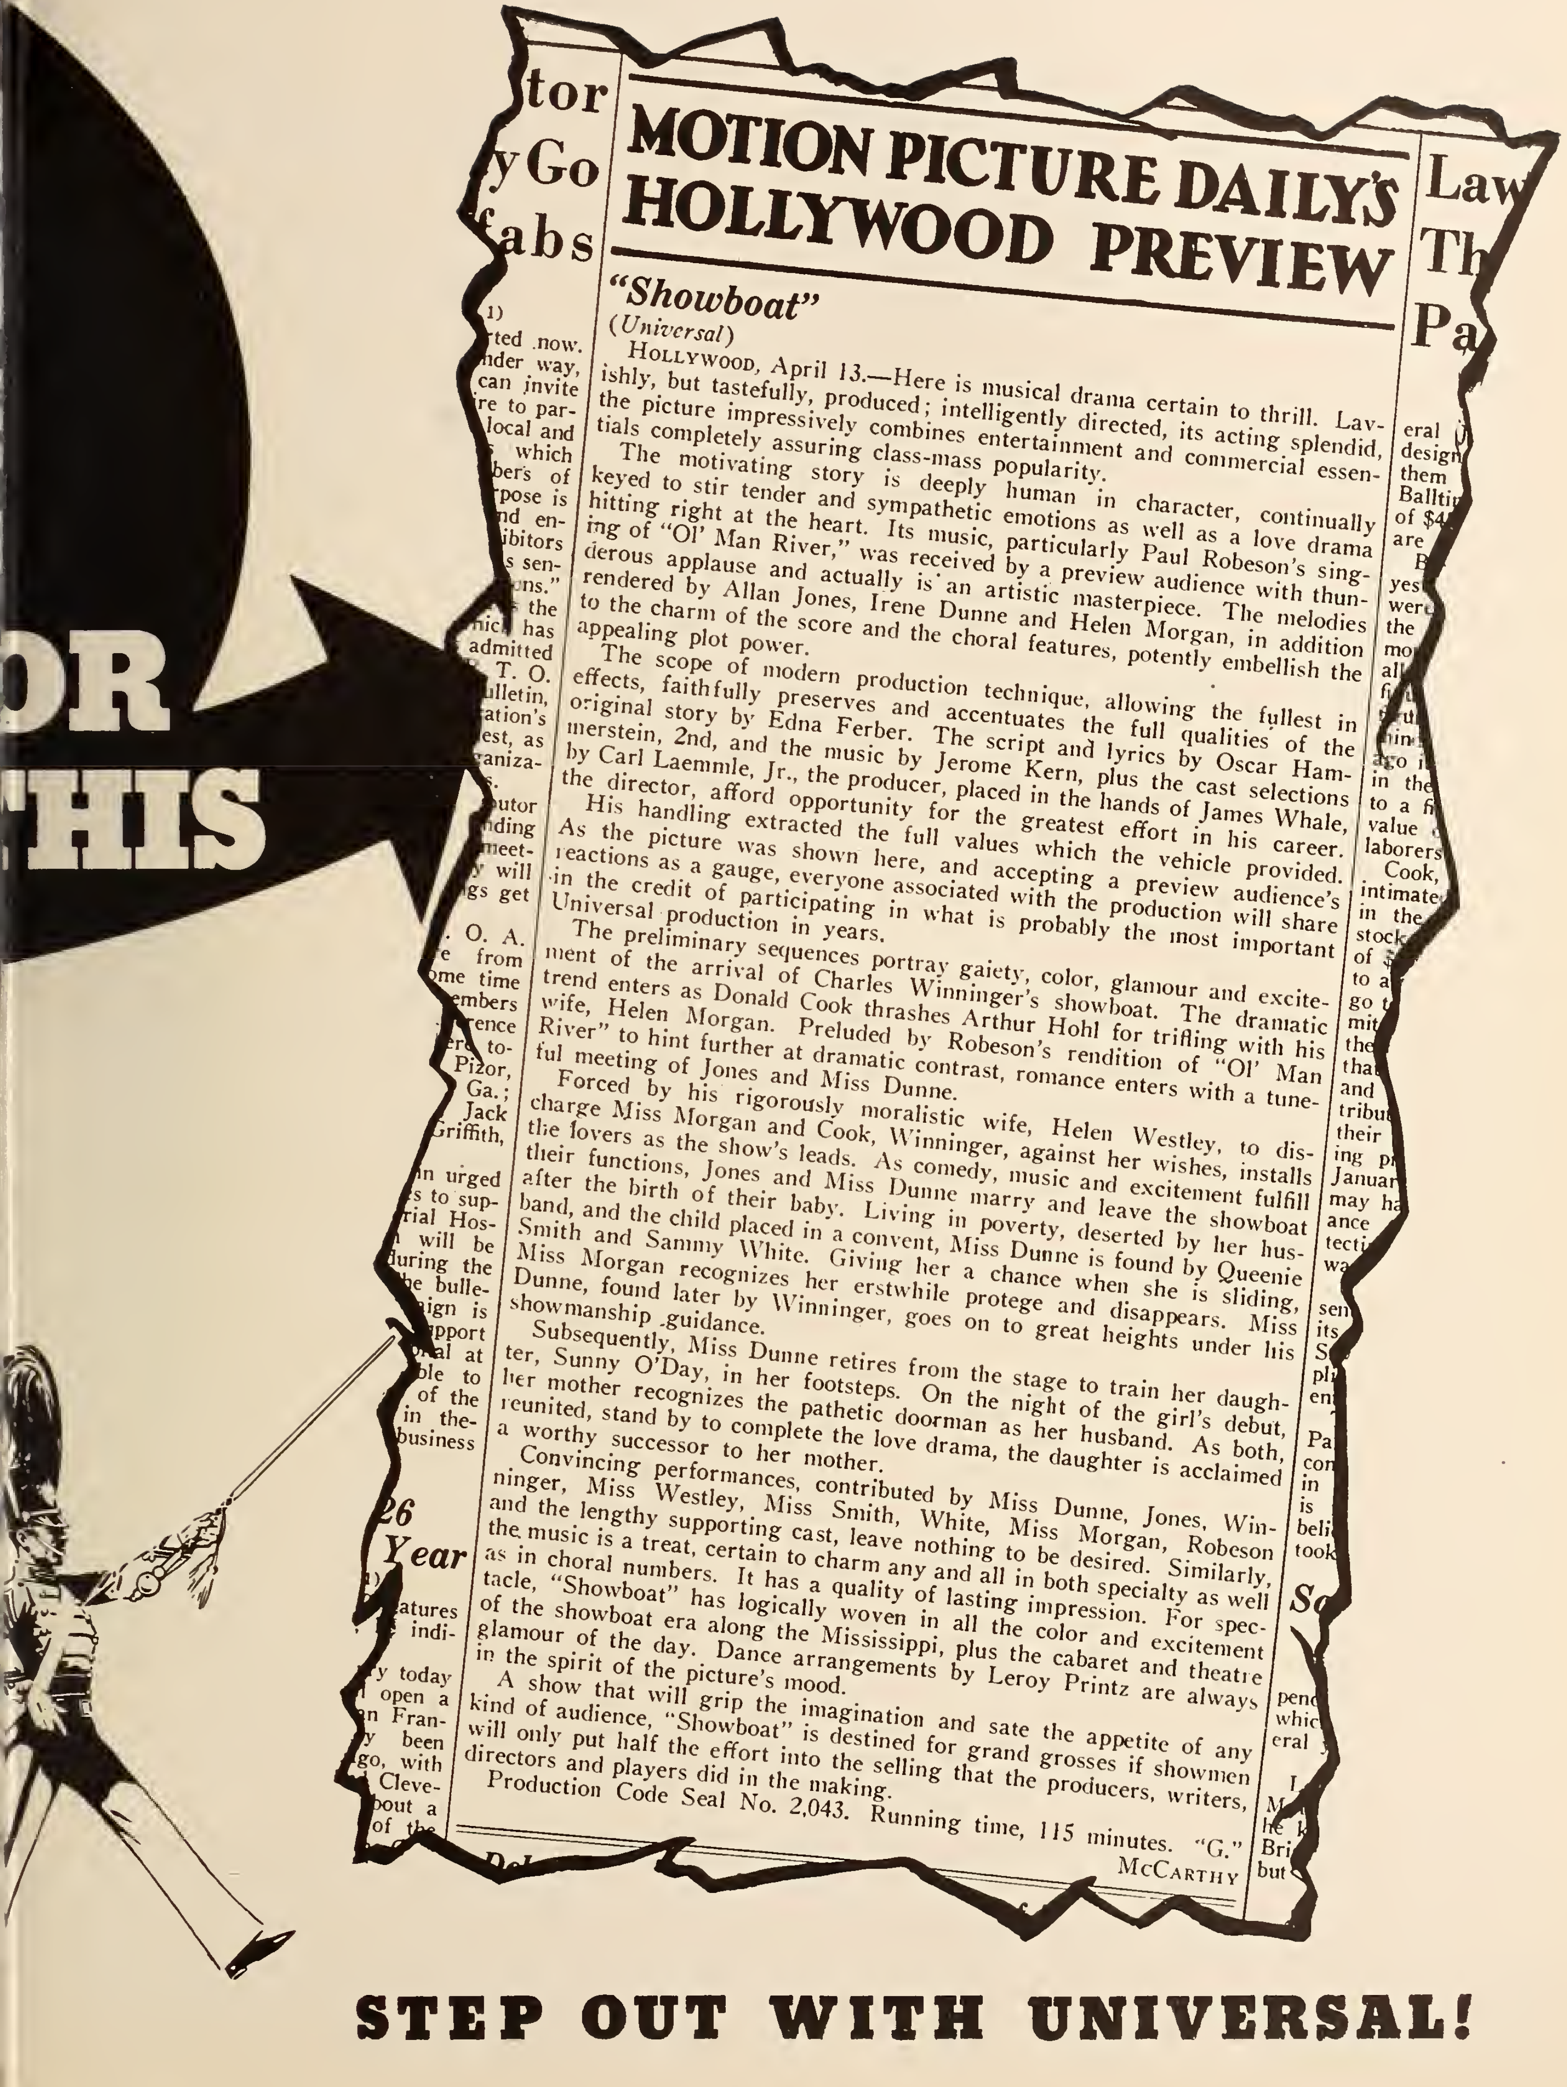
THE PICTURE THAT'S WORTH MILLIONS TO THE LUCKY EXHIBITORS OF THE WORLD!



MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Showboat"

The motivating story is deeply human in character, continually keyed to stir tender and sympathetic emotions as well as a love drama hitting right at the heart. Its music, particularly Paul Robeson's singing of "Ol' Man River," was received by a preview audience with thunderous applause and actually is an artistic masterpiece. The melodies rendered by Allan Jones, Irene Dunne and Helen Morgan, in addition to the charm of the score and the choral features, potently embellish the appealing plot power.

The scope of modern production technique, allowing the fullest in effects, faithfully preserves and accentuates the full qualities of the original story by Edna Ferber. The script and lyrics by Oscar Hammerstein, 2nd, and the music by Jerome Kern, plus the cast selections by Carl Laemmle, Jr., the producer, placed in the hands of James Whale, the director, afford opportunity for the greatest effort in his career. His handling extracted the full values which the vehicle provided. As the picture was shown here, and accepting a preview audience's reactions as a gauge, everyone associated with the production will share in the credit of participating in what is probably the most important Universal production in years.

The preliminary sequences portray gaiety, color, glamour and excitement of the arrival of Charles Winninger's showboat. The dramatic trend enters as Donald Cook thrashes Arthur Hohl for trifling with his wife, Helen Morgan. Preluded by Robeson's rendition of "Ol' Man River" to hint further at dramatic contrast, romance enters with a tuneful meeting of Jones and Miss Dunne.

Forced by his rigorously moralistic wife, Helen Westley, to discharge Miss Morgan and Cook, Winninger, against her wishes, installs the lovers as the show's leads. As comedy, music and excitement fulfill their functions, Jones and Miss Dunne marry and leave the showboat after the birth of their baby. Living in poverty, deserted by her husband, and the child placed in a convent, Miss Dunne is found by Queenie Smith and Sammy White. Giving her a chance when she is sliding, Miss Morgan recognizes her erstwhile protege and disappears. Miss Dunne, found later by Winninger, goes on to great heights under his showmanship guidance.

Subsequently, Miss Dunne retires from the stage to train her daughter, Sunny O'Day, in her footsteps. On the night of the girl's debut, her mother recognizes the pathetic doorman as her husband. As both, reunited, stand by to complete the love drama, the daughter is acclaimed a worthy successor to her mother.

Convincing performances, contributed by Miss Dunne, Jones, Winninger, Miss Westley, Miss Smith, White, Miss Morgan, Robeson and the lengthy supporting cast, leave nothing to be desired. Similarly, the music is a treat, certain to charm any and all in both specialty as well as in choral numbers. It has a quality of lasting impression. For spectacle, "Showboat" has logically woven in all the color and excitement of the showboat era along the Mississippi, plus the cabaret and theatre glamour of the day. Dance arrangements by Leroy Printz are always in the spirit of the picture's mood.

A show that will grip the imagination and sate the appetite of any kind of audience, "Showboat" is destined for grand grosses if showmen will only put half the effort into the selling that the producers, writers, directors and players did in the making.

TOCC-ITOA Merger to Be Set This Week

O. C. C. has become inactive. During the life of the code, O'Reilly was on Code Authority as one of the two independent exhibitor representatives. Nathan Yamins, now head of Allied, was the other.

One of the most important pieces of legislation the T. O. C. C. was successful in getting over was Sunday shows in New York. Tax measures from time to time have been killed in committee because of the cooperative work of the organization's members.

During the past few years, O'Reilly has been carrying most of the financial burden of the association. Up until the time he entered the candy vending business he devoted most of his time to exhibitors' problems, both in the local area and in other parts of the country.

With his candy interests now absorbing all of his time, O'Reilly has had very little to offer in the way of cooperation to theatre owners. He still maintains an interest in a group of small theatres in New York and New Jersey.

Pledging his full support to the combined exhibitor organization, O'Reilly is scheduled to be appointed to the new board of directors. Whether a new name for the merged associations will follow after the T. O. C. C. offices in the Times Bldg. are moved into the Lincoln Hotel, where the I. T. O. A. is located, on May 1 has not yet been decided.

Brandt, until recently, had insisted he would not accept a renomination. However, because he believes that the move recently instituted by Ed Kuykendall, president of the M. P. T. O. A., for trade practice conferences and the establishment of local boards for the settlement of exhibitor-distributor disputes is a constructive move, Brandt stated he reconsidered and agreed to continue as president.

Declaring he could be quoted, Brandt said that "if Abram F. Myers would join in the Kuykendall move, Allied would be 100 per cent better off."

Try Sports on Stages

Chicago, April 26.—B. & K. have been testing out the feasibility of putting sport events on their stages. The latest experiment is the appearance of Coleman Clark, national pingpong expert, giving a special performance this week during the regular show at the Chicago.

Conn Signs Tomlin

Hollywood, April 26. — Maurice Conn has signed Pinky Tomlin to make four pictures with musical backgrounds. Coy Poe, song writer, will be associated with Conn. The first is scheduled to start Aug. 15, and will have a rural background. Tomlin will write original song numbers for all four.

Providence Gets Shows

Providence, April 26.—The RKO Albee, after running double features for two months, has turned to stage units again to supplement the film fare. Earl Carroll's "Vanities" and "Murder on a Bridle Path" are the attractions this week with N.T.G. and his "Broadway Heatwave" revue to follow.

tion, the exhibitor committee may attempt persuasion in order to carry some subjects in its 10-point program which might not be conceded at first.

Virtually assured to exhibitors, it appears, is a selective contract offering a straight 10 per cent cancellation privilege and approval of and cooperation for the establishment of local boards to hear and conciliate local trade disputes. Clearance and zoning, overbuying and similar complaints could be submitted to these boards, which it is planned to set up in every exchange center. The personnel of the boards has not yet been worked out and probably will not be until it has been determined how many national distributors will cooperate with their functions. The desire, however. is to keep membership on the boards at a minimum to facilitate quick action. Representation, as between exhibitor and distributor, is unimportant, it is pointed out, as their principal function will be to attempt conciliation of disputes.

The suggested processes of these boards probably will be to get the disputants in any grievance case together and suggest solutions for their controversy. If these moves are unsuccessful, attempts can be made to get them to submit their differences to arbitration under the American arbitration system. This failing, it is admitted that the boards have exhausted their obvious procedures. Where a branch official may be at fault, however, it is pointed out that the local boards probably will be influential enough to carry a case to home offices for remedy. Supporters of the boards, however, feel that they will be of great value in avoiding unnecessary litigation and promoting understanding between industry elements habitually at variance.

It is admitted that the boards could do nothing about double featuring or any form of bargain admissions. Regulation of these would depend entirely upon local exhibitor sentiment.

Korda to Use Laughton

London, April 26.—Charles Laughton, in his first film for Alexander Korda since "The Private Life of Henry VIII," will play the restaurateur in "The Lion of Mayfair."

"Mona Lisa" for Pioneer

Kansas City, April 26.—Beverly Miller, manager of National Screen Service, has resigned to devote his entire time to portable air conditioning. Charles Gregory, St. Louis manager for the service, will handle the Kansas City area for the present. A Minneapolis representative will pinch hit at St. Louis for Gregory.

"Small Town" $14,700 Lead In St. Louis

St. Louis, April 26.—"Small Town Girl," at Loew's, was the outstanding attraction in a week of strong opposition that included the roadshowing of "The Great Ziegfeld" at the American. It grossed $14,700, which was above par by $5,700. The American attraction took in $14,500, about $4,500 above average for similar attractions at that house under the same price range. It was held over.

"Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" playing at F. & M.'s Fox, made a great bid for top honors and its gross of $14,650 was but slightly under the business done by Loew's. This attraction has been moved into the Ambassador for a subsequent first run showing.

"The Singing Kid," at the Shubert-Rialto, also broke into the profit class with $9,200, above average by $2,700, while "Connecticut Yankee" and "Pride of the Marines," at the Ambassador, did $7,200 for the week, topping the house average by $1,200.

The weather was favorable. Principal opposition was the spring series between the St. Louis Cardinals and the St. Louis Browns, the opening of the regular baseball season and also two exhibition soccer games.

Total first run business, including roadshow, was $71,550. Average is $55,300.

Washington's Sale Tax Ruled Invalid

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Refusing to review a decision of the Washington Supreme Court, the U. S. Supreme Court today in effect held invalid the Washington state law seeking to impose taxes upon the receipts of film distributors.

The major distributors attacked the validity of the act on the ground that it was an effort to tax interstate commerce, and secured a favorable decision in the state court. The state authorities appealed on the ground that the tax was not on income derived from interstate commerce, contending that the distributors were attempting by contract to convert local business into interstate.

Action Is Sought For Booking Bill

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Pressure is being brought to bear upon members of the Senate and House Interstate Commerce Committees to take action on the block booking legislation, on which nothing has been done since hearings closed several weeks ago.

Members of the committee are receiving large numbers of telegrams and letters, all in favor of the legislation, and asking that action be taken.

Since the conclusion of the hearings in February by the Neely subcommittee, the Senate group has paid no at-

Decision Upon Accepting Job to Be Made in Next Few Days

Decision on the appointment of Joseph P. Kennedy to an advisory post in Paramount is expected to be arrived at within the next few days, according to authoritative information revealed yesterday.

Kennedy, former head of Pathe and recently chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, is being sponsored in the Paramount situation by interests headed by John Hertz of Lehman Brothers, bankers.

The proposed berths for Kennedy would not make him an officer of the company and would not involve the replacement by Kennedy of any of the present Paramount executive personnel. His duties would be solely of an advisory nature, primarily directed toward study of financial and production problems and public and internal relations.

Kennedy recently concluded a temporary post with the Radio Corp. of America where he acted as advisor in connection with certain financial reorganization arrangements. At a stockholders' meeting it was disclosed that he was paid $150,000 for this service. Kennedy's name has been frequently mentioned as a possibility for the new Presidential cabinet. He was active in the last national political campaign.

A group of Paramount directors conferred with Kennedy on the proffered Paramount association at a luncheon meeting yesterday and again later in the day. Included in the group were John D. Hertz of Lehman Bros.,

Paramount Buys 'Arnold'

HOLLYWOOD, April 27. — Paramount has purchased a story called "Benedict Arnold" by Albert Shelby Levino, which Wesley Ruggles will produce and direct. The story covers the human, rather than the military side of Arnold's career, and the character, Peggy Shippen, who was Arnold's wife, will be an important part and will be played by Claudette Colbert. Randolph Scott will play the part of George Washington, and the studio plans to borrow a player for the title role.

Team Three Youngsters

HOLLYWOOD, April 27. — Freddie Bartholomew, Jackie Cooper and Mickey Rooney are to be teamed by M-G-M in "The Devil Is a Sissy," new story by Roland Brown and Frank Fenton.

Dramatists Continue Talk On Pact, But Fail to Act

The council of the Dramatists' Guild yesterday discussed the objections of producing managers as enumerated by the League of N. Y. Theatres to the guild's new contract for playwright and manager. No decisive action was taken and the discussions probably will be continued within a few days.

Some Hollywood producers will not withhold legitimate stage financing for plays produced under the new contract recently adopted by the Dramatists' Guild, Sidney Howard, president of the guild, said in a letter received by members of his organization yesterday.

"Talks between leading motion picture producers and the group of managers who have been cooperating with us in our efforts to settle the present situation assure us that our own plans for selling the screen rights to our plays are satisfactory to Hollywood and will stimulate rather than retard motion picture investment in the theatre," Howard's letter stated.

Warners, Columbia, M-G-M and Paramount have definitely stated through officials that they would refuse to finance plays produced under the guild's contract with its 60-40 split of the proceeds from the sale of film rights in favor of the author. Other companies are said to have taken the same stand, although no official, public statement has been made by them.

Howard's letter refers to the stand of film companies opposed to its contract as "not surprising in view of the fact that the motion picture clause offered by the League of N. Y. Theatres' contract is in substance a reproduction of the original scheme proposed 10 years ago by the old Fox company to deprive the author of his picture market. This is the scheme which brought the Dramatists' Guild into existence in 1926 and its reappearance is the best of all possible demonstrations of the guild's purpose and value."

The guild council yesterday voted the $500 Roy Cooper Megrue prize for the best comedy of the year to Bella and Samuel Spewack for their play, "Boy Meets Girl."

F. & M. Will Start First of Four Soon

Production of "The Waltz King," first of four pictures planned this season by F. & M., will begin as soon as Marco Wolff, president, returns to the coast. He plans to leave either Saturday or Sunday.

Negotiations for national release are expected to be completed shortly after a settlement of the Government's civil suit against Warners, RKO and Paramount has been approved by Attorney General Homer S. Cummings.

"The Passing of the Third Floor Back," G. B. attraction starring Conrad Veidt, opens at the 55th St. Playhouse tonight. MOTION PICTURE DAILY reviewed it from London on Sept. 25.

Twentieth Century - Fox will have five films in mid-Manhattan by the end of this week. "Under Two Flags" will be at the Music Hall Friday. "A Message to Garcia" will move from the Center to the Palace. "The Country Beyond" will go into the Center. "Captain January" is at the Capitol, and "A Connecticut Yankee" will be at the Roxy.

Skouras-Fox Trial Is Set for May 18

Trial of the Skouras action to set aside a product deal made by Twentieth Century-Fox with the RKO 81st St., which was scheduled for yesterday, was postponed to May 18 at the request of the Nathan Burkan office, attorneys for Skouras.

The action was filed early last fall alleging that sale of Fox product to the 81st St., day and date with competing Skouras operated houses in the neighborhood, was a violation of the Fox franchise held by Skouras and would result in an injury to the plaintiff. An injunction halting delivery of the pictures to the RKO house has been obtained by Skouras and is in effect.

Efforts to settle the action out of court were under way for a time, but were abandoned when RKO found that the 81st St. had ample product without the Twentieth-Fox pictures. The distributor has been anxious to have the suit decided as, in the meantime, it has been prevented from selling other accounts in the neighborhood, the most important of which include Springer & Cocalis houses.

Conn to Produce 14 For the New Season

Maurice Conn, through Conn Pictures Corp., Ambassador and Melody Pictures, will produce 14 features during the 1936-37 season, he declared here yesterday. Under the Melody name he will make four rural musicals with Pinky Tomlin, Conn Pictures will do six melodramas featuring Frankie Darro and Kane Richmond, and Ambassador will have four James Oliver Curwood stories which will star Kermit Maynard.

The first of the group will go into work on Aug. 15. All 14 will be produced at the Talisman Studio on the coast. They will be released through state rights exchanges, with Chelsea Pictures Corp. handling the output here.

Tammany Young Dead

HOLLYWOOD, April 27.—Tammany Young, who had been hanging around Broadway for years with a hankering for Hollywood before he got his wish several years ago, is dead at 49. He was brought west by W. C. Fields to act as a sort of good luck charm and stooge at large and had a wide reputation as a gate-crasher. His widow, May, survives.

Review Denied for Laboratory Paten

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Review a decision of the Ninth Circuit Cou of Appeals, holding that Columbi Pictures and William Horsley Fil Laboratories had not infringed a pa tent held by Cinema Patents Co., Inc on a method of developing films wa refused today by the U. S. Suprem Court.

The case was appealed by Cinem Patents on the ground that there wa a sharp conflict of decision betwee two of the circuit courts on the sam claim on the same patent, and be cause the decision of the Ninth Cir cuit Court was in conflict with th U. S. Supreme Court decisions as t what is a patentable invention, es pecially in the case of a process o method claim.

In opposition to the review, Colum bia Pictures and the laboratory com pany contended there was not con flict, as claimed, nor did the deci sion appealed conflict with previou holdings of the Supreme Court.

Leichter to Do 14 For 1936-37 Seaso

They wil be made at the International Studio on the coast.

The first of each group will go int work in August, Leichter said, an will be distributed through state right exchanges. He declared he had close for the new season's product in all th chief cities except Philadelphia and Atlanta.

Warners Get Gable For Davies Picture

HOLLYWOOD, April 27.—Warners have borrowed Clark Gable from M-G-M for the lead opposite Marion Davies in "Cain and Mabel," her next Cosmopolitan. The picture already is in work with Lloyd Bacon directing.

It is understood the Gable loanout substitutes for the original deal whereby Norma Shearer was to make a picture for Warners in return for "farming" Leslie Howard to M-G-M for the lead opposite Miss Shearer in "Romeo and Juliet."

Find Trend Upward

Echoing the trend for recovery throughout the country, the industry, as evidenced by the upward trend in film rentals and box office receipts has shown a higher average for the current period as compared with last year, according to a survey issued by Poor's Publishing Co. The survey also states:

"That attendance during the first three months of 1936 should have run ahead of last year, despite adverse weather conditions and floods, is adequate testimony to a rise in consumer incomes which promises much for the motion picture industry as time passes."

New "Ziegfeld" Dates Set

M-G-M has set nine additional road-show engagements for "The Great Ziegfeld," bringing the total of special showings on the film to 35 in as many cities.

SMPE Meet Opens; Shearer Is Absent

CHICAGO, April 27.—The Society of M. P. Engineers met here today in the first session of its four-day convention. The day was featured by the reading of a number of dissertations on the technical phases of the industry submitted by prominent figures in the scientific field.

A note of disappointment was sounded, however, in the announcement that Douglas Shearer, who was to demonstrate his new M-G-M sound recording, has been held in Hollywood on a retake of Romeo and Juliet. He cannot attend the convention. RCA had spent $2,500 on preparation of equipment for the demonstration.

Decided advances in professional and amateur photography, in sound recording technique and equipment and in sound reproducing systems for general theatrical use were pointed out in the progress report of John G. Frayne, chairman of the progress committee. Among the outstanding developments of 1935 Frayne noted the new Kodachrome color film, the extension of three-way Technicolor to features, and improvements in silent cameras.

In lighting, the development of new gaseous conductors, new lens spots using the Fresnel type of lens in studios, and in sound recording, the improvement in the push-pull recording method, and the use of ultra-violet light recording were stressed. Available to theatres are new methods of pulling film, as well as the new type of multi-cellular horn, known as the Fletcher horn, Frayne's report indicated.

Abbott, on the Film Library

Reviewing the purposes and work of the Museum of Modern Art Film Library, John E. Abbott, its director, pointed out that until June, 1935, when the Library was established, no organization existed for preserving films of merit or for arranging for their distribution and study by those interested in the screen as a "living art" and its history and development.

The functions of the library, as explained by Abbott, are to trace and preserve important films, American and foreign; edit and assemble them for educational and non-commercial use; arrange critical appraisals of them; make available information concerning the artistic, dramatic and historical aspects of the films; assemble a library of book and data on the screen. The 1936 series includes: The Development of Narrative (1894-1911), The Rise of the American Film (1912-15), D. W. Griffith ("Intolerance"), The German Influence, The Talkies.

M. F. Jameson and T. E. Shea of the Bell Telephone Laboratories in New York, in their paper on "Photo-electric Cells and their Method of Operation," explained the laws governing the release of electrons from photoelectric surfaces, their collection at anodes, and the creation of ions in the photoelectric cell gases by the "ionization" process. The questions of spectral selectivity of various photoelectric surfaces, the influence of spectral characteristics of illumination and the dynamic characteristics of vacuum and gas-filled cells, were considered.

The various operating features of photoelectric cells was demonstrated in conjunction with the paper.

Reading a paper on "Harmonic & Distortion in Variable Density Records," Burton F. Miller of the Warner studio showed that the distortion in second and third harmonic prints at low frequencies is almost exclusively due to the departures of the overall gamma from unity, while distortions at high frequencies are mainly dependant upon the velocity of the light valve ribbons. In a second portion of the paper Miller presented data obtained from variable density frequency films, and compared it with that obtained from the theoretical analysis.

G. A. Morton of the RCA Mfg. Co., in Camden, in a paper on "The Electron Tube Image, A Means for Making Visible, Infra-Red Images," described the construction and theory of operation of the electron image tube, and illustrated various applications of this type of electronic device.

Discussing in detail the electron optical system used in the image tube, Morton described the methods of correction necessary to reproduce faithfully an image projected on the photosensitive cathode.

"Improved Resolution in Sound Recording and Printing by the Use of Ultra-Violet Light," was described by G. L. Dimmick of RCA, Camden, who pointed out that the resolution of sound film records has been increased by the use of ultra-violet light in recording and printing. Because of the absorption characteristics of the emulsion, exposures made by ultra-violet light are restricted to the surface. This reduces the spreading of the image. The fogging of the track is almost entirely eliminated through the use of the ultra-violet light, Dimmick indicated.

Louis Lumiere of Paris, France, treated "Stereoscopy on the Screen," saying, "Improvements have been developed in the system of stereoscopic motion picture projection with light beams of complementary colors. The red and green filters normally employed for this purpose produce eye-strain, causing fatigue resulting from the difference in persistence of the vision of red and green retinal images." He described a new filter combination by which both eyes receive both red and green light but of different wavelength regions.

One of the interesting exhibits was a demonstration of X-ray talking pictures which clearly showed the complex movements of the internal organs of speech as they formed the sounds which we know as "talk."

Jack Miller in an amusing address "warned" the assembled technicians against going too far with the development of Television.

The fall convention of S.M.P.E. was scheduled to be held in Rochester, N. Y., from October 12 to 15.

Tuesday's program follows:

Looking 'Em Over

"The Drag Net"

is the playboy member of the law firm headed by his father and does little for the name. He is given a job with the district attorney's office and while celebrating his appointment has the murder of Miss Compson dumped in his lap. With the aid of Miss Nixon, a newspaperwoman, he gets himself into the workings of a gambling outfit responsible for the killing. The tale rambles from this point and involves such items as crooked politics, a jail break and another near assassination. Eventually the case is solved by La Rocque.

The production bears the marks of taste and expenditure, evident in the sets and other accoutrements. It is definitely for dual bills.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

"Women in White"

(Guaranteed)

Furtive romance in hospital corridors and a typhoid fever epidemic are the factors of the plot which, treated in an amateurish manner, projected in dialect and poor sound recording, lend neither interesting drama nor effective entertainment.

The film, an Irish importation, deals with the struggles of a young doctor with his emotional life among the nurses in the hospital where he pursues his career and how he finds his true love after being stricken with the disease he had successfully fought in a small town. The acting and production bear the touch of too much "art."

The angle which may draw an audience into the theatre is that many of the players are from the famous Abbey Theatre troupe. Otherwise it sadly lacks what it takes.

Production Code Seal, No. 0864. Running time, 55 minutes. "G."

"Deeds" Hits $24,000; Tops Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, April 27. — "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" joined the winners last week, mopping up a strong $24,000 at the Stanley. It was held a second week.

Still running strong are "These Three" at the Aldine and "The Great Ziegfeld," which is roadshowing at the Chestnut. The former got $13,000 and the latter built to $15,000.

The Earle went back to a six-day schedule and got a better-than-average $13,000 with "Snowed Under" on the screen and Ted Fio Rito on the stage. The house depends more on stage shows than the screen and, since Sunday stage shows are forbidden, the pictures have not been strong enough to get a good Sunday house. LINCOLN, NEB., April 27.—The second week of "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" at the Varsity was so strong the film went into a third stretch with bells on. The take for the first week was $2,300 and the second was slightly higher at $2,400. Average for the house is $1,300, but before "Deeds" the house had been losing steadily.

The other moneymaker was the Orpheum's vaudeville-film policy with Blackstone, the magician, holding up the stage end. This and the finals of amateur contests ran the house around $3,300, $1,200 over normal.

"13 Hours By Air," set in cold at the Lincoln, and "Strike Me Pink," at the Stuart, were pulled at the end of six days.

They're going to the MOVIES...

And whether they enjoy themselves depends not on how long it took to make the picture, nor on how many extras were employed, but on what they see on the screen. And what they see on the screen is only what the print brings to it. The print is the show. That's why it should be the finest you can buy. It is the finest you can buy when made by Consolidated—a sharp, clean, vital reproduction of all the sound and action in the master negative that does full justice to the producer's best efforts.

LOUISVILLE, April 27.—"Captain January" topped the town with a gross of $10,500, besting par by $6,000. This figure is by far the best showing made at that house for some time, and was helped no little by a teachers' convention. Matinees were big, due to a three-day vacation for the children.

Some opposition was furnished at the Memorial Auditorium Tuesday where Nazimova closed the legitimate season in "Ghosts." The engagement showed a profit, grossing $2,500 for one performance.

"Dorado" and Show $20,000 In Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh, April 27.—The return of stage shows to the Stanley after an absence of more than a month pushed that house back into the high-gross bracket last week, with such names as Block and Sully and Roger Pryor in person, helping "Robin Hood of Eldorado" to a healthy $20,000. Also hitting old-time form again was the Penn, where "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" collected $14,500.

The other two first run sites, however, were somewhat off. The Warner couldn't climb above $4,500 with "Brides Are Like That" and "The Preview Murder Mystery," while the Casino nose-dived with "Hi Gaucho" and "Doughnuts and Society," getting only $1,400. The Alvin, closed since the flood, opened again last week with "The Ghost Goes West," but it didn't get under way until April 21 and therefore isn't included in this tabulation.

Last week was a week of mixed weather, ranging from typical spring mildness to a raging snowstorm, which had some effect on business. So did the opening of the baseball season, particularly on Sunday when a game between St. Louis and Pittsburgh drew close to 20,000 customers.

Total first run grosses were $40,400. Average is $36,800.

Academy Rules Upon Weekly Contract Pay

Hollywood, April 27.—Weekly contract players are not entitled to further compensation after a production has been suspended was the decision handed down by the Academy Conciliation Committee after studying the case of Sam Jaffe, actor, against Paramount. The difficulty arose out of the termination of production on "I Loved A Soldier" after Margaret Sullavan broke her arm.

The case was heard by the committee on appeal from a previous decision of the Actors' Adjustment Committee. The committee ruling came under the section of Paragraph 29 of the Academy minimum contract applying to "accident" rather than to "illness."

Writers Take Up Challenge Of Producers

Predict Guild Approval Of Demands May 2

Hollywood, April 28.—The board of directors of the Screen Writers' Guild has taken up the challenge flung by the producers Sunday in opposing the Guild shop and has issued a statement detailing its aims. It denies the purposes which were attributed to the guild leaders in the producers' statement.

The guild expressed confidence that all points of the Authors' League amendments will be ratified at the meeting to be held May 2 depsite the threatened split of a conservative group from the main guild body. The guild statement follows:

"The best proof that the Screen Writers' Guild has at last an effective plan for attaining the league shop is the hysterical outburst of abuse from the producers. Despite this outburst the proposed amalgamation will be submitted for ratification on Saturday at the annual guild meeting. The board has every expectation that the amalgamation that has been proposed with the Authors' League will be approved by an overwhelming majority.

"We don't want control of the film business or any bar to new writers, nor are we asking the same authority over screen material as is enjoyed by

British Trade Expects Quota Rise Over 20%

By BRUCE ALLAN

London, April 28.—The British trade at large anticipates the quota will be increased from its current high bracket of 20 per cent on exhibitor and distributor alike.

No comment is made in reply to reports in circulation that the Federation of British Industries has asked that the quota be increased to 35 per cent at a minimum percentage cost per foot of £2.

There are indications that the increase will be asked for tactical reasons as a counterfoil to an anticipated exhibitor demand for abolition, leaving unanswered any forecast as to what exactly the new law will provide.

Duovac and General Seeking $37,850,000

Wilmington, Del., April 28.—Duovac Radio Corp. and General Talking Pictures Corp. filed suit in Federal court here today against Erpi for claims totaling $37,850,000, based on injuries the plaintiff companies claim to have suffered through acts of Erpi and others in allegedly curbing competition in film production.

Tax Decision Seen Helping In N.Y. Fight

Washington Levy Voided By Supreme Court

The U. S. Supreme Court's refusal on Monday to review for the State of Washington a decision denying it the right to tax film rentals was interpreted by distribution attorneys here yesterday as having a favorable bearing on local efforts in opposition to the subjection of film rentals here to the city sales tax.

T. Newman Lawler of O'Brien, Driscoll & Raftery, attorneys for the local United Artists exchange, which is conducting a test case designed to prove that film rentals are not subject to the city's two per cent sales tax, said that the Supreme Court's refusal to review the Washington case could be regarded as a reaffirmation of the Binderup decision holding films to be in interstate commerce. As such, they may be proved to be not subject to a state or local taxation.

Lawler said that the Washington tax was slightly different from the New York city sales tax as it was an occupation tax on film renting and had been levied against the entire receipts of the Seattle exchanges. The appeal from the assessment was taken by Paramount Pictures, Inc., and eight other distributors in the State of Washington, against the chairman of the state tax commission.

Harry Thomas Quits; Will Take Vacation

Harry H. Thomas yesterday officially resigned as president of First Division Exchanges and as a director of First International, having disposed of his five-year personal service contract which had more than three years to run to Pathe. Although he has several plans in mind, Thomas stated he will not decide on his new venture until he returns from a much needed vacation.

Entering the business in 1907 when he became an exhibitor, Thomas in 1913 became associated with Greater New York Film Co., later aligning with General Film Co. and then joining Fox. In 1921, he organized Alexander Film Co. and subsequently became general manager and vice-president of Merit Film Exchange. In 1926, Merit was absorbed by First Division, which Thomas organized.

Edward L. Alperson, president of Grand National, which is liquidating First Division, and Frank Kolbe, president, and Robert W. Atkins, vice-president of Pathe, both expressed regrets and wished Thomas success in his new enterprise.

Kolbe and Atkins were reelected to their Pathe posts at a board meeting immediately following the annual meeting of Pathe stockholders at which the following directors were elected: Atkins, Henry J. Guild, Robert M. McKinney, Charles L. Stillman, Charles A. Stone, Theodore C. Streibert, W. C. Stettinius, Charles B. Wiggin and Kolbe. McKinney, Stillman and Stettinius are filling vacancies created by the resignations some time ago of Paul Fuller, Jr., Ellery W. Mann and George S. Montgomery, Jr.

Rogers Wins Move In "U" Deal Suit

they entered into a joint venture for acquisition of the controlling stock interest in Universal and its subsidiary corporations. Rogers said that it was agreed that the stock interest and profits from the proposed deal were to be equally divided and shared and that he was to assist in financing the venture and the defendant was to conduct negotiations in Los Angeles. The plaintiff charges that the defendant, in order to deprive him of his share and in violation of their agreement, secured an option contract on Oct. 26, 1935, in his own name and that of Standard Capital Co. and that the contract had onerous requirements obligating the plaintiff to provide $375,000 within four days of the signing of the option agreement.

The complaint further charges that necessary information was withheld from him and that difficult restrictions were imposed, making it impossible for him to see the contract in order that he might secure the necessary financing. Inasmuch as Gustavus Rogers in his complaint refers to others, Charles R. Rogers insisted yesterday that these others be made parties plaintiffs to the suit.

Writers Take Up Challenge Of Producers

the Dramatists' Guild. We do want protection of our earning power. We have not forgotten the attempts to lower it during the past few years. During 1933 a 50 per cent cut was taken by unorganized talent which was not taken by organized labor. In the same year the general booking office was defeated by the Screen Writers' Guild and during 1933 and 1934 salary control by the NRA Code was defeated by the guilds and Authors' League, which also defeated anti-raiding through the NRA Code. (Writer not to receive offers until the 60-days' period of the contract expires.)

"Only with a truly strong organization will writers be able to put an end to long standing abuses on the part of producers against writers. Only with such newly found respect and responsilibity as the present plan and program promises will writers be induced to give the screen the full value of their talents."

The Authors' League coast council members also met last night at the guild offices to study the league constitution changes proposed by a conservative group of the guild. The league will hold simultaneous meetings here and in New York tomorrow, according to plan, for additional study of the proposed amendment changes suggested by the conservatives.

A typical rerecording layout was shown in connection with the paper, as well as diagrams of various types of installations.

In a paper on the "Analysis of Sound Waves," Harry H. Hall of the Cruft Laboratory at Harvard pointed out that analysis is valuable in that it provides information concerning the source of the sound and the possibility of good transmission and reproduction. It also furnishes a measure of the quality of sound, Hall declared. He described methods of analysis and some results.

In his report of the Screen Brightness Committee, C. Tuttle of Eastman Kodak, chairman, declared that the evidence obtained on the subject will be presented in the May issue of the S.M.P.E. Journal. Refunding Bonds Issued

TORONTO, April 28.—To save approximately $175,000 in interest, Famous Players Canadian Corp. has decided to redeem its 6% first mortgage bonds and 6½% debentures, both due in 1948, refunding them with a 4½% 15-year issue to the extent of $7,100,000, the balance of close to $700,000 to be paid for in cash from the company's $1,800,000 in cash, call loans and Dominion Government bonds.

This refunding will represent a saving of more than 45 cents per share on the 378,790 common shares outstanding, most of which are held by Paramount Pictures of New York. Assets of the company securing the new bonds have a book value of more than $13,000,000, or practically equivalent to $2,000 for each $1,000 bond of the new issue. Earnings since 1932 have shown a steady increase, and during the past six years annual earnings have never been less than double bond interest requirements before depreciation. The decision to refund the bonds was one result of the recent conference in Toronto between Austin Keough and Y. Frank Freeman of New York Paramount and President N. L. Nathanson of Toronto whose contract as head of the Canadian company was renewed for five years starting from June 1.

The acquittal is the first victory in Special Sesisons for a case of this kind which has actually gone to trial.

Bank Nighters Tour Chicago In Daily Rush

All-Day System Starts Ticket Scrambles

CHICAGO, April 29.—Local theatre patrons have a new game. It's called "Playing the Bank Night circuit." They register at all theatres using Bank Night that are within a day's traveling distance. Then when the Bank Night award gets up around the $1,000 mark visit each theatre during the day the number is to be drawn and buy a ticket. Thus they are eligible to win even if they are not present when the number is drawn.

The reason this is possible is that local theatres are using the "all-day" bank night plan, whereby if you buy a ticket and register your name on a card, the money will be paid to you if your name and number are drawn that evening. This makes it possible for one person to "attend" several Bank Nights on one day.

Theatre men who handle Bank Nights report that hundreds of people are participating in several Bank Nights all on the same day, since the new "all-day" plan has been adopted. They seem to care little about see-

M-G-M Extends Its Sales Meet 3 Days

M-G-M has extended its annual sales convention from two to five days. The meetings will start May 11 at the Palmer House in Chicago. About 250 home office executives, division, district and branch managers will attend in addition to salesmen and chief bookers.

Several coast executives now in New York will attend the Windy City meetings.

Nearly Set

George J. Schaefer, yesterday said all terms and details of the deal by which Walter Wanger would join the ranks of United Artists had been agreed upon, although contracts have not been signed. "We expect signatures will be affixed on the coast this week," he added.

Schaefer's Hollywood trip waits on Samuel Goldwyn, who has been confined to Doctor's Hospital.

Federal Ascap Case Is Going Over to Fall

Stipulations Cannot Be Finished Earlier

The trial of the Government's monopoly action against Ascap cannot be resumed before next fall, attorneys identified with the case said yesterday.

Since the trial was halted late last spring counsel for both the Government and Ascap have been working on stipulations designed to shorten the trial if and when it is resumed by removing the necessity of taking lengthy testimony on points which could be covered by the stipulations. It was learned yesterday that the work of effecting agreements on the stipulations cannot be completed before the summer recess of the Federal court here, which automatically eliminates the possibility of a resumption of the trial before fall.

When the stipulations have been completed the case will be given to

Quigley Awards Made At Luncheon on Coast

LOS ANGELES, April 29.—Between 60 and 70 representatives from the production and distribution branches of the industry met for luncheon this afternoon at the Roosevelt Hotel for the presentation of the annual Quigley Awards to Harry Goldberg and Lester Pollock, this year's winners of the citations.

The presentation climaxed the winners' week in Hollywood during which time they toured the studios as guests of Quigley Publications.

Brief addresses of good-will, talks on showmanship and proper exploitation were delivered by toastmaster Jesse L. Lasky, Dr. A. H. Giannini and A-Mike Vogel of the Managers' Round Table, Fred Meyer, Goldberg, Pollock and others. The talks stressed the value of Martin Quigley's service to the industry through his pioneering efforts in its behalf.

Applaud 'Show Boat'

It was a big day at Universal yesterday. The first print of "Show Boat" reached New York and was immediately screened for home office executives and important New York circuit buyers. They—the circuit buyers—greeted the picture at its conclusion with a lusty round of applause.

J. Cheever Cowdin, board chairman, emerged from the projection room enthusing like a branch manager in a chain operator's office.

Sale Practice Sessions May Wait for Week

The M.P.T.O.A. sales policy conferences which were scheduled originally to get under way early next week with the exhibitor committee meeting with individual companies may be deferred for another week, with the first being held about May 12, it was learned yesterday.

The reason for the probable delay is understood to be the desire of Ed Kuykendall, M.P.T.O.A. president, to have Morgan Walsh of San Francisco and L. C. Griffith of Oklahoma City,

Distributors Lose By Print Refusals

Distributors are alarmed over the practice of exhibitors of arbitrarily refusing to accept prints sent through public transportation firms by the exchanges fulfilling exhibitor booking commitments, it is stated in Motion Picture Herald, out today. The distributors are losing thousands of dollars annually in transportation charges, which they have to pay both ways under shipping guarantees with the transportation companies, it is said, while the exhibitors are facing higher

Seek Cullman As New Leader Of Exhibitors

Moves Await Completion Of TOCC-ITOA Merger

Howard S. Cullman, trustee for the Roxy, is being sought to head the combined T. O. C. C. and I. T. O. A. exhibitor units shortly after the merger is effected, it is understood.

While no direct offers have yet been made to Cullman, it is understood that such moves await completion of merger details between the two independent exhibitor groups. It is likely a salary may go with the offer.

Cullman's successful operation of the theatre since he took it over three years ago and the high regard he holds in the trade are said to be the influencing factors for sponsoring his entrance into the theatre owners' picture.

Harry Brandt, head of the I. T. O. A., yesterday announced officially for the first time to the membership that a merger with the T. O. C. C. would go through. A committee comprising Maurice Fleischman, Louis Meyers, Hyman Rachmil and Bernard Barr was appointed to work out details and report back next Wednesday.

WILMINGTON, DEL., April 29.—Chancellor Josiah O. Wolcott in Chancery Court here, in authorizing former Senator Daniel O. Hastings, receiver for General Theatres Equipment, to put up at public sale on May 18 the assets of the company, pointed out that it would be to the interest of stockholders, creditors and holders of voting trust certificates to effect a prompt sale of the assets and property.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

IF you read editorials long enough in the Hearst newspapers, you'll develop an amusing pastime. For example, any movement which, through San Simeon eyes, takes on the "ism" of Communism, you can depend upon will meet with a published attack. That's as axiomatic as the appearance each morning of The New York American. You will also have impressed upon you the erraticisms and inconsistencies that embarrassingly creep into subsequent editorials which fail to establish proper relationships with their predecessors. . . .

The other day, the subject matter was the peonage in which the Hollywood's stars exist and the coolie contracts under which they pursue their art. There ought to be a law, a Hearst spokesman thought. Now, and in about the same space on the amusement page of The American, is a long dissertation on the Screen Writers' Guild "ordering all members to refrain from signing contracts for services or material beyond May 2, 1938," describing this as "an unwarranted and intolerable move to establish a closed shop for the writing profession in the motion picture industry." . . .

"The screen writers are amply paid. They are liberally paid. They receive $500 or $1,000 or $1,500 a week. In other businesses it would be said that they are enormously paid. There are no injustices to be corrected. The object of the guild is either to secure higher wages or salaries for the writers who are already tremendously well paid, or else to prevent other writers from sharing in the benefits of these handsome salaries. . . . The result of this guild movement, if successful in forming a closed shop, would be to limit the amount of writing and, consequently, the amount of production and the number of productions. . . . Furthermore, it is a stupid proposition, because, obviously, in order that producers shall pay good money they must be allowed to make good money. . . . The Screen Writers' Guild move is a device of Communist radicals who apparently do not mind cutting their own throats if they can only manage at the same time to cut the throats of the producers and the workers generally." . . .

In this wise, the editorial goes on and on. Yet, it is very curious to us, at least, that this latest verbal flagellation from the Hearst throne, or regions near it, suddenly should become so solicitous over the welfare of producers who "cannot be hampered and restricted in their production, tied hand and foot with rules, regulations, restrictions and extortions, and then be told to go out and make this money to pay the fabulous moving picture salaries." These must be the same producers, we assume, who are paying writers fabulous salaries, but keeping their starring talent under the iron heel. . . .

If Hearst sees fit to make stars boil over on the false theory they are underpaid and so ought to rise in armed revolt against their producer-employers, why does he object to his own analysis of the guild aims which he declares are "either to secure higher wages or salaries for the writers who are already tremendously well paid, or else to prevent other writers from sharing in the benefits of these handsome salaries." We take it that, in a competitive field and despite a Federal Administration which further and further encroaches on the prerogatives of business liberty, the individual is privileged to drive the hardest bargain he either knows how or can get away with. . . .

Producers are challenging the guild move. Naturally. The guild states it welcomes the challenge. Of course. We don't know who is right and we do not propose guessing. Facts in the guild movement make it quite clear that, embraced in the current movement, are many of the highest priced and most substantial names in the Hollywood writing fraternity. Their grievances may be real or not; with them, they are, of course, genuine. Their drift may be toward Communism and with little regard for slashing their own economic throats, as the Hearst comment sets forth, but all that we heard in Hollywood on this score indicated that writing men and women now earning princely salaries were much more concerned with maintaining, and augmenting, the luxuries of their existences than in embarking on any sort of brotherhood of man Utopia. . . .

Perhaps another Hearst editorial might be persuaded to pierce our impenetrable skull with an explanation as to how, exactly, a closed shop for writers will limit the amount of writing and "consequently, the amount of production and the number of productions." Whether a good or bad proposal, the unionization of writers, the the majority of whom in Hollywood already are unionized anyway through the guild, would be no different from the labor organizations which recently renewed their agreement with major producers in New York. There seem to be enough electricians, grips, teamsters and the like around to accommodate production demands and there appear to be enough writers, actual and styled, if they don't mind being classed with their more lowly workers. Aside from all that, if any scarcity should develop, it might be a pretty good thing. We'd have fewer bad pictures, predicated on authors' brainstorms and ideas of drama and life. . . .

Of all the astonishing happenings in an amazing business, the deal marking the return of Manny Cohen to Paramount as a producer on his own rates some sort of accolade. It has been generally accepted as the truth that Cohen made whatever arrangements he made for the outside pictures permitted Mae West, Gary Cooper and Bing Crosby under their Paramount contracts while he was an officer and in charge of production for that company. When the day arrived to mark Cohen's departure from Paramount ranks, off with him he carried commitments earlier arranged. Ensued deliberations with Columbia, finally for something to jam the works sufficiently to keep the outside Wests and Coopers unattached while the initial outside Crosby ended up with Harry Cohn. But now Cohen holds a Paramount contract to make and deliver pictures with Paramount's own stars financed by Paramount's treasury. And that's as funny as it sounds. Why did Paramount make such a deal? Merely to keep its starring roster sans breaks. . . .

The well-known Hollywood technique, meaning agents—10 per centers and press—explains the inspired yarn that Junior Laemmle is expected to make three a year for United Artists. We shouldn't be too critical, unless it be too critical of ourselves. For, we fell for the trial balloon along with some others. . . .

Moskowitz and Loew Acquire More Stock ing the pictures (but go for the lottery angle).

During the coming week various B. & K. theatres will have the largest group of awards available since the game was started here a year ago. Four of their larger houses will have prizes well over the $1,000 mark. The Uptown with $1,800 leads the list, with the Tivoli at $1,600, the Southtown at $1,500 and the Harding with $1,200 not far behind. To get an idea as to the kind of business these houses do with such a large award one needs but look at the business done at the Marbro last week when $1,900 was awarded to a prospective bridegroom. Between 9 o'clock in the morning, a Monday, when the house opened, and 6 P. M. 12,000 admissions were sold. Between 6 P. M. and 10 P. M. 8,000 tickets were sold, making a total of 20,000 admissions to the theatre for one day, an all-time record. The Marbro seats 4,000 but the "all day" plan eliminated the long lines of standees that were previously prevalent. The Uptown with capacity for 5,500 persons, plus standing room, is expected to break records for any B. & K. theatre when the drawing for the $1,800 is held next Monday night.

"Largest" Planned

Plans to again run the "world's largest Bank Night" are being made for this summer at Riverview Park, an amusement center here. Last summer the park played the giveaway game with tremendous success. It awarded a $250 weekly prize which finally accumulated into $2,750 before being won. More than 280,000 persons registered for the game. That same list will be used this year, regardless of the fact that hundreds of changes in address, etc., have probably taken place. This year the park men will start the award with $500, plus $250 weekly. Chances of winning will start at 280,000 to one and probably reach the half million mark before many weeks have passed. Theatre registration in the larger theatres here are around the 100,000 mark. This gives the patron about a 100,000 to one chance.

Operators on the theatre office switchboards have all the information about Bank Nights at the various circuit theatres and hundreds of calls are received daily as to the amount of the awards at the various houses. Until the total is near the $1,000 mark business is comparatively light, but after that it's generally terrific.

Local theatre men and Bank Night officials here predict a bigger summer this year for the game than last year which was the first season for it. Unlike most places where the game operates, one has to buy a ticket to participate. This puts it in the lottery classification, but so far nothing has been done by city or county officials to stop the game.

Seattle Bank Night Case

Kansas City, April 29.—The suit of Affiliated Enterprises, Inc., Bank Night, patentees, against George Shilkett of the Rex, Joplin, Mo., brought because of alleged refusal to pay Bank Night royalties, has been settled for $300. Bank Night, according to R. W. McEwan, distributor, secured judgment for $275 in Justice Court here about 14 months ago. The case went into Circuit Court, where the judgment was affirmed. Shilkett paid part of the court costs.

Bank Night Revised

Terre Haute, Ind., April 29.—New arrangements have been made for Bank Night at the Indiana, in which matinee patrons may leave the theatre on the night of drawing and still be eligible for the drawing. Registration cards are signed, and if a matinee patron wins the check will be mailed.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Half Angel"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

Hollywood, April 29.—A boisterously amusing comedy, this production offers the extra appeal of a fast-moving murder mystery that holds the interest right up to the giddy, serio-comic finale.

Frances Dee, accused of poisoning her father, is helped by Brian Donlevy, rough-and-ready reporter, to obtain an acquittal. Donlevy then tries to get her life's story for his paper. Helen Westley and Henry Stephenson, a romantic and sympathetic couple, spirit Miss Dee away from the mob of sensation seekers after the trial. Still the murders continue, and confusion increases through the hilarious confessions of escaped lunatic Etienne Girardot, whose work is a comedy highlight of the picture.

Speed is maintained throughout, thanks to the excellent performances of the principals and the supporting cast, which includes Charles Butterworth, Sara Haden, Paul Stanton, Gavin Muir, Julius Tannen, Nigel de Brulier, Hilda Vaughn, Philip Sleeman, William Ingersoll, Paul McVey and Bruce Mitchell, all assisted by the direction of Sidney Lanfield. Bess Meredyth, Gene Fowler and Allen Rivkin did a sparkling screen play from the story by F. Tennyson Jesse. Darryl F. Zanuck produced, with Kenneth MacGowan as his associate.

Plug the comic aspects of this particular murder mystery and the relentless pursuit of the girl by a reporter.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"La Croisiere Noire"

(John S. Tapernoux)

The photographic record of the Citroen automobile expedition through Africa is presented in this offering. While the narrative is spoken in French the film should be found interesting to "Little Theatre" audiences who understand the language.

The photography of the piece suffered from the effects of the tropical heat, and is mostly clear, but sometimes fades and wobbles. A good job of cutting and montage makes the picture an effective history of the expedition.

Starting from a town in the French Sudan, the expedition progresses southward through little known country and meets varied people, records strange customs and racial types, sometimes horribly realistic. Against all the natural, strange background there is always the modern intrusion of the specially built cars overcoming obstacles as they traverse the roadless continent. The usual animal scenes are present; the film conveys the mood of an adventure and ends in Madagascar, with crowds and ceremonies as a triumphal conclusion.

It is something new in the way of African films and, if the problem of the narrating language can be solved, the picture should be successful in a limited way.

Previewed without production code seal. Running time, 90 minutes. "G."

Lowry on AFA Ticket

Ed Lowry has been added to the official ticket of nominees to fill eight vacancies on the council of the American Federation of Actors. He replaces Harry Miller, resigned. The annual meeting will be held May 5 in the Hotel Paramount.

Ralph Whitehead, executive secretary, has deferred his countrywide trip to attend.

Garbo Here Saturday

Greta Garbo will arrive Saturday on the Gripsholm from Sweden. She will leave immediately for the coast to begin work in her next M-G-M picture.

"Ziegfeld" Keeps Up Fast Pace at Astor

"The Great Ziegfeld" continues to a landslide business at the Astor, tallying $17,950 for the third week on a two-a-day policy with $2 top. The third week of "A Message to Garcia" ended with a gross of $9,800 at the Center. "The Country Beyond" opened at the house yesterday and a raft of other Twentieth Century-Fox pictures have been booked into the Center which will remain open until July 15.

The last 11 days of "Desire" and Little Jack Little and his band, Ethel Merman and Jane Cooper at the Paramount garnered approximately $48,000. "13 Hours by Air" opened yesterday with Guy Lombardo and his orchestra and will be followed by "The Moon's Our Home" and Ray Noble and his orchestra.

"Things to Come" wound up its first week at the Rivoli with about $28,000. The first two days drew more than $15,000, but the balance of the week found the intake tapering. The second week of "Small Town Girl" at the Capitol wound up with $17,000.

Minnesota Company In Expansion Moves

MINNEAPOLIS, April 29.—The Minnesota Amusement Co. has begun expansion with the acquisition of the Victory, Hibbing, Minn., and the Granada, Virginia, Minn., under a partnership deal with Louis Edelstein and Max Deutsch of the Edelstein-Deutsch circuit. The arrangement ends the competition existing between the companies in the two towns.

Under the deal the Victory will be operated on a part-time basis, with a new policy to be determined in the future. Edelstein will be in active charge of the house. R. P. Deutsch will manage the Granada. Minnesota Amusement has the Garden and State in Hibbing and the Garrick in Virginia. John J. Friedl, operating head of the circuit, closed the two-city deal.

a Federal judge here who will then determine whether or not the trial should proceed. The possibility of the Government agreeing to a complete withdrawal of the case in advance of this is believed to be remote, particularly in the event that the Duffy Copyright Bill fails of passage at this session of Congress. Passage of the bill, however, is seen as accomplishing many of the major objectives of the Government action, particularly those affecting radio broadcasters, who are said to have been instrumental in bringing about the action originally.

Looking 'Em Over

"The Golden Arrow"

(Warners)

Evolved from a story by Michael Arlen, this picture brings together two stars of recognized drawing power at the box-office, Bette Davis and George Brent, in what is for the most part a lightly entertaining, romantic comedy-drama. Interest and amusement are heightened considerably midway in the film by an ingenious story development. Altogether it is an engaging picture, well handled in the performances of its players and the deft direction of Alfred Green. The feminine trade especially should enjoy it.

In the Florida bright spots where most of the film is set, a young daughter of newly developed oil-gushing millions is vulgarly sporting her money and surrounding herself with bogus and attentive foreign "titles," when she is smitten jealously with the arrival in a swank yacht of Miss Davis, heiress to the Appleby facial cream dollars. Miss Davis, thoroughly fed up with the attentions of those after her money, is looking hopefully for a real person. Brent, poor reporter, is assigned to interview Miss Davis. Accidentally, he is successful, and they become friends.

She sells him the idea of marrying her, for convenience, to save her from the parasites. Then it is suddenly revealed that Miss Davis is a former cafeteria cashier, used by the Appleby firm as a fake heiress to promote the sale of the product. Brent is still unaware of the truth, and there ensue amusing moments as he rebels against the style in which they live, refusing to admit that he loves her, while she, on her part, cannot make him admit it. Eventually, when he is ready to walk out on her, he learns the truth, as it is about to be made public by the jealous competition in wealth, and Brent carries off Miss Davis to what is expected to be poverty, but happiness.

New Competition in New Orleans Looms

NEW ORLEANS, April 29.—A new form of theatre competition is in sight. The Commission Council has instructed Gen. Allison Owen to prepare plans for an open air municipal theatre in the West End at an estimated cost of $60,000, the funds to be secured from WPA.

The idea is to have shows from 10 cents to $2 with free street car fares.

This was the original purpose of the $2,000,000 Municipal Auditorium, but practically all of the affairs that have been held there, with the exception of some free food shows have been too expensive for the masses.

Flushing Previews Stir Up Excitement

Inauguration of Mondav night previews at Loew's Prospect in Flushing, indicating that the theatre has adopted a triple feature policy for that night of the week, is causing quite a furore among first run exhibitors in Long Island.

While the general understanding has been that the first runs stick to duals, the Loew move is believed to be the first step in what may result in a number of other first runs following the same practice.

Loew's charges 30 cents evenings while its competitor, Keith's, continues its 35-cent level until the time it may see fit, because of Loew's move, to either cut the admission or add a third feature. Meanwhile, the Prospect is advertising for next Monday a third feature without mention of the title.

Charges Government Barred the Public

SUPERIOR, WIS., April 29.—Among the charges included in the anti-trust and conspiracy in restraint of trade suit, filed in Federal Court by Minnie Pulverman against major companies and Upper Wisconsin exhibitors is one that the defendants' pressure induced the Government to bar civilians from CCC camp showings of films.

She also charges that threats, intimidation and unlawful inducements were used to coerce distributors into stopping her film supply. The defendants, in addition to Paramount, U.A., Twentieth Century-Fox, Vitagraph, M-G-M and G.B., are E. F. Daniels, Iron River; Roy McMinn, Superior; A. I. and Bertha Latts, Ashland; N. C. Grange, Spooner, E. R. Mitchell, Bayfield; A. L. Lighter, Mellen.

rentals because of the increase in distribution costs due to the practice.

It was frankly admitted by the distributors that they have no solution for the problem. The exhibitor practice is said to be increasing since compulsory arbitration and the distributor system of credit ratings were abolished by Federal court order as illegal. Exhibitors, according to the Herald article, have been known to accumulate as many as six features for one day, picking the best and refusing to accept the others, thus causing a loss to five distributors. The individual amounts involved are too small to warrant court action, it is pointed out.

However, the individual conferences may be opened next week as scheduled if Jack Miller of Chicago, also a member of the committee, can attend. Miller's presence, it was stated, would make sufficient the committee's representation, as O. C. Lam of Rome, Ga., and Lewen Pizor of Philadelphia, will be available next week, in addition to Kuykendall.

Quota Change Study Goes to C.E.A. Group

By BRUCE ALLAN

London, April 21. — The C.E.A. General Council has referred to the general purposes committee the question of the exact character of the representations to be made to the Board of Trade committee which is to consider films act revision. Suggestions were made during the council discussion that the C.E.A. should press for the abolition of the quota or that, as a minimum, the quota on distributors should exceed by 10 per cent that on exhibitors.

The Ass'n. of Cine Technicians, which has recently been agitating against the admission, on a large scale, of technical and other specialists from Hollywood, is presenting a case urging, in chief, that there should be a quality clause for British films and that the "75 per cent British" condition should apply in the case of technicians.

It has been stated in the House of Commons by Walter Runciman, president of the Board of Trade, that the report of the Advisory Committee would be confidentially available to the departmental committee. The advisory committee, appointed under the original act, recently made definite suggestions for the revision of the measure, but these have not been published by the Board of Trade.

Ernest Turnbull, Australian cinema magnate, will probably give evidence to the committee. He is in London on a production deal and also makes the suggestion that British producers should take steps to deputize the New South Wales Government in regard to the Australian quota.

The general council of the C.E.A. has by a large majority, rejected the standard contract. Details of the contract, which represented a compromise arrived at by discussion between C.E.A. (exhibitor) and K.R.S. (distributor) members, have already appeared in Motion Picture Daily.

Its outstanding features were the formal recognition of a three and one-quarter hour program limit and of the distributors' right of access to the box-office for the purpose of checking percentage takings. The distributors' right to include special provisions for payment on short terms was also recognized. Many exhibitors described the draft as "a distributors' contract."

It has been shown at several leading theatres in Buenos Aires under the patronage of Government officials.

B. & K. Net for 1935 Goes Up to $638,134

Chicago, April 29.—Balaban & Katz Corp. earned $638,134 in 1935 after deduction of all charges, Barney Balaban reported at the annual stockholders' meeting today. This figure is the best since 1931 and is equal, after regular preferred dividend requirements, to $1.72 per share on the common stock. In the preceding year the net profit was $425,477 or 92 cents per share on the common.

Consideration of the resumption of the common dividend will have to wait until the end of the year. Balaban stated that the management hopes to retire the balance of the preferred stock in a year or two if conditions warrant. One-half of the preferred stock has been called for retirement on May 1.

Balaban stated that business is better, but added that the recent cold spell cost the circuit $100,000. The company's bank loan, he said, aggregates approximately $3,000,000 after giving effect to the loan made for retiring preferred stock. Publix Great States Theatre, a subsidiary, has retired $250,000 in mortgages through the bank loan and has paid off back dividends.

John E. Otterson was elected a director succeeding George J. Schaefer.

Building Boom Seen Underway in Phila.

Philadelphia, April 29.—Philadelphia's greatest concerted movement toward new theatre building, particularly among the independents, is being launched this spring, with at least six new theatres in prospect.

The South Philadelphia district will be an important center of activity. Warners plan a 1,000-seat house at Broad and Morris Sts. The Felt interests, which already operates the Southern, plan another house in the same neighborhood. On the west side of South Philadelphia Charles Stiefel is to erect the 1,000-seat President.

West Philadelphia will have the Terminal, to be built and operated jointly by William Goldman and Warners on the site of the new 69th St. Terminal.

Jake Fox will build a house in the near future in northeast Philadelphia, while Erny and Nolan, real estate operators, are planning a theatre in West Oak Lane.

"Wings" First Color Feature in England

London, April 29.—Natalie Kalmus is here to supervise the color work on "Wings of the Morning," first Robert Kane-New World picture for Twentieth Century-Fox and first all-Technicolor film to be made in Europe. It will be filmed at Denham. Glenn Tryon will direct and Ray Rennahan will be the cameraman.

The technical crew is expected to stay here to initiate and possibly to complete "Lawrence of Arabia," Alexander Korda's first in color.

"Wings" will include this year's Derby in color.

Dr. Herbert T. Kalmus is expected here in June and, it is understood, will visit Berlin and Moscow to view laboratories there.

British color film will be processed in Hollywood until the British plant opens.

Split Car 50-50

Tampa, April 29. — This town has the only man who ever won half an automobile, so far as known. His wife held the lucky number at a Broadway Theatre drawing, but he drove the car away. She filed suit.

Circuit Judge Parks listened to testimony to the effect that the husband had given his wife a ticket prior to a family quarrel and that she also had one of her own. The question before the court was: "Which ticket won?"

It remained unanswered, so the court decided the car would have to be sold and the proceeds split.

Regent in Montreal Has 20th Birthday

Montreal, April 29.—The progress that has been made in screen entertainment during the past 20 years was depicted in a "film jamboree" to commemorate the 20th anniversary of the Regent here, a unit of United Amusements Ltd.

A number of old films were shown, including "The Trail of the Octapus," "The Screaming Shadow," two early Chaplin comedies, a 1916 reel and an old Keystone comedy. Two musicians who played at the Regent for many years during the silent days, Alan McIver and Edgar Herring, supplied the sound effects.

Lawler, publicity director, Wichita, is publishing The Contact, weekly paper containing exploitation hints, standings of managers and the like.

Japan Ass'n In Drive for Better Films

By TETSUYA MORI

Tokyo, April 10. — The Japanese Ass'n. of the Motion Picture has launched a vigorous campaign to promote the production of cultural pictures, with a view to improving the quality of the Japanese product. Each of the three leading companies will produce one such feature for the 1936-37 season. Shochiku, Nikkatsu and P.C.L. will participate. Exhibitors have indicated no objection to the program.

The proposal of the association to develop a 10-day run system, one of the most striking of the organization's efforts at correction of current policies, met with such strenuous opposition from exhibitors that it has been virtually abandoned.

Nikkatsu has made a radical shift in its production policy, in an effort to meet the competition of Shochiku, and attract particularly the feminine contingent of Japanese patronage. Future pictures of the company will be featured by modern romantic stories, in which the company's product has been noticeably deficient. Comedies and musicals are also planned by Nikkatsu.

Japanese audiences have recently begun to take a new interest in newsreels. Until recently local theatres made no effort to show the reels, but now exhibitors cannot get enough of them. Shochiku established a newsreel division at its new studio late last year. Shinko also was working on the development of a reel unit. The film companies, however, have been unable to compete with the newsreel activity of the newspapers, among which the five leaders are in Osaka. Their vigorous competition to sign circuits for their reels is partly responsible for the new interest in the material. Film producers, who have not been geared to the production of newsreels, have virtually stepped out of the field.

Local theatres enjoyed the best business they have had in months during March, favored by improved weather after a long period of cold and rain. The business, however, has been going to American films rather than the domestic product. Among the outstanding American films which have grossed heavily during the month were "Fang and Claw," "Broadway Melody of 1936" and "The Milky Way."

Banquet Is Held by S.M.P.E. at Chicago

CHICAGO, April 29.—The third day of the current convention conducted by the Society of M. P. Engineers was climaxed by the banquet held this evening in the ballroom of the Edgewater Beach Hotel. The affair followed afternoon visits of the delegates to various Chicago equipment plants, including the Underwriters' Laboratory.

The morning was given over to the reading of a number of technical papers.

W. Barth and F. Schoeck of the Agfa Ansco Corp., in their paper on "A Film Emulsion for Making Direct Duplicates in a Single Step," pointed out that the emulsion is of a different type from all other photographic emulsions. The commercial possibilities of the new type emulsion were indicated.

Puller, on Reproduction

George Puller of the Bell Laboratories, New York, was the author of a paper which described "A High Quality Reproducing System for Small Theatres." The new system, for theatres seating up to 600, permits a simple and easily operated film drive control. A control cabinet arranged for mounting on the wall in front of the projector contains a gain control and apparatus for switching from one machine to another. The control cabinet is operable from either projector position.

In his paper on "Projection and Projectors," A. J. Holman of East Orange, N. J., declared that although projection is one of the industry's most important aspects, producers, directors and exhibitors show little interest in new projectors. He criticised the principle of intermittent illumination, which is still in universal use, and indicated the value of continuous illumination.

The importance of complying with the regulations of the National Board of Fire Underwriters in obtaining adequate provision for safe handling and storage of film, was stressed by A. H. Nuckolls and A. F. Matson of the Underwriters' Laboratories, Chicago. The reasons for the ready susceptibility of film to ignition were explained, and recent tests described.

New Carbon Described

A new 13.6 super high intensity carbon for projection was described by D. B. Joy of the National Carbon Co., Fostoria, O., who said the new carbon has a higher intrinsic brilliancy and more uniform distribution of light than the regular 13.6 carbons. Tests have indicated the new carbon provides 30 per cent greater light on the screen than the old.

Thomas J. Connors, formerly in charge of southern and Canadian sales, has been named eastern sales manager, and Edward M. Saunders continues as western sales manager. All three worked closely with Feist for a number of years.

The appointments were made known, following the return here from the coast of Al Lichtman, by Nicholas M. Schenck. Lichtman, since joining the company after his resignation from United Artists, had cooperated with Feist on sales, concen-

St. Louis Trust Action Ended; Court Approves

Three Weeks of Negotiations Succeed; Warners Quit Mound City—F. & M. Get Major Company Product

After three weeks of negotiations, the Government's civil suit against Warners, Paramount and RKO was settled yesterday afternoon, precisely at 4:20 P. M., when Federal Judge John C. Knox signed a petition presented by Russell Hardy ending the litigation which has been in the courts since December, 1934.

The stipulation, which was approved by the court after a five-minute hearing, was signed by Bruce Bromley of Cravath, De Gersdorff, Swaine & Wood, for Warners; Louis Connick of Simpson, Thacher & Bartlett, for Paramount; William Mallard, general counsel of RKO, and George S. Leisure of Donovan, Leisure, Lumbard & Newton, for RKO; Louis Nizer of Phillips & Nizer, for George J. Schaefer, Sam Dembow, Jr. and Ralph Kohn; Hardy and Walter Rice, for the Government.

Under terms of the stipulation, F. & M. will get Warner and RKO product in St. Louis for a period of 10 years. Paramount does not commit itself for any length of time, but the agreement states the company shall not refuse to sell for any reason other than price. The rentals are to be agreed upon from year to year and in the event the buyer and seller cannot reach an accord, each will appoint an arbitrator and the two men will name a third to decide the figures in dispute.

In addition to the franchises, F. & M. will assume operation of the Shubert-Rialto and Orpheum, Warner first run houses, and 20 neighborhood theatres in the Mound City controlled by the St. Louis Amusement Co., a Warner subsidiary.

This deal is covered under letters dated April 14 and 28 and brings to the surface Sol A. Rosenblatt's part as mediator in bringing about harmony between St. Louis, April 30.—Circuit Judge John W. Joynt today continued until May 21 the hearing on whether an injunction sought by Attorney General Roy McKittrick against major companies in the F. & M. product controversy should be made permanent.

It is believed here that this indicates the court was familiar with settlement moves concluded in New York and that the state case will be dropped as a result.

Kennedy Not To Join Para. As an Adviser

Joseph P. Kennedy will not become associated with Paramount in the advisory capacity which has been the subject of discussions held with him over the past few weeks by members of the Paramount board.

It is understood that the decision not to confirm Kennedy's appointment resulted from an inability on the part of both Kennedy and Paramount to meet with the conditions imposed by each for his entrance into the company. Kennedy told Motion Picture Daily early this week that he would not accept the appointment if it met with opposition from within the company. The possibility of the associa-

"U" Sets First New Season Major Deal

Universal's first major deal for next season has been closed with E. C. Beatty, general manager of the Butterfield circuit, 91 houses strong, and embraces the company's entire lineup of features and shorts. James R. Grainger, general sales manager, represented Universal.

Grainger will spend today and tomorrow in Universal's Washington office on deals in that area.

F. & M. Made Main Factor In St. Louis

As soon as negotiations have been completed with Warners, F. & M. will have complete control of the first run situation and hold a dominant position in the second run field in St. Louis. At the same time, Warners' theatre operations in the Mound City will come to an end.

Under terms of a deal virtually set, except for the date of transfer, F. & M. will assume operation of the Orpheum and Shubert-Rialto, Warner first runs. With these two houses joining F. & M.'s present lineup of five, including the Ambassador, Fox, Missouri, St. Louis and New Grand Central, Loew's, operated by Loew's, will be the only other first run in both the downtown and Grand Ave. sectors.

The St. Louis, New Grand Central and Missouri are closed. Whether

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

IT'S largely a habit in this business and, we suppose, in others, to air ideas about who will succeed whom, if and when. Long before Felix Feist's health began to fail and where film men foregathered to dine and talk, Bill Rodgers, in many opinions, was viewed as a logical successor to Felix, should a successor have to be determined upon. An inscrutable fate decided the necessity, Feist unfortunately passed on and, with the thoughtfulness which characterizes many of his actions, Nick Schenck waited until yesterday to name the man. . . .

Rodgers, long with the company as have been all of its ranking executives, has built a reputation for himself as sales manager in the East from which Metro, like other national distributors, draws the heaviest proportion of its domestic revenue. The stories which are told of his fairness are many and praiseworthy; his record of accomplishment extremely substantial. Therefore, his promotion to the general sales managership will be viewed at large as a proper reward for service delivered. Moving into Rodgers' former post is Tom Connors, formerly in charge of the South and Canada while Eddie Saunders continues handling the West, his territory for many years. Where three divisional sales heads formerly prevailed, there are now two. . . .

Another significance ties in with the Rodgers appointment. It concerns Al Lichtman, regarded by some who thought they knew as Feist's successor. The importance of maintaining Lichtman as Schenck's executive assistant with an eye on special sales situations, is interpretable only one way and that way strengthens the belief that it is Lichtman's shoulders which some day will be covered by part, perhaps much, of the mantle of power and responsibility which is now Schenck's. . . .

The St. Louis blues are over. Charging monopolistic drifts, the Government sued and sued Warners, Paramount and RKO all for the sake of relief for F. and M. Now Fanchon and Marco, already operating the Missouri, Ambassador and New Grand Central, will acquire the Shubert-Rialto and Orpheum, leaving outside their fold in the downtown first run area only Loew's. It is also arranged for them to purchase Warner's 42 per cent interest in the St. Louis Amusement Co. neighborhood string, twenty theatres strong, and the Hi-Point there, completely owned by Warners. In toto, it makes F. and M. a bigger noise in St. Louis than ever the Warners, who had been charged with many things, were. It's all too complicated for our simple mind. . . .

Robert Atkins of Pathe spilled it. At the annual stockholders' meeting the other day he told one and all assembled Eddie Alperson "and associates had been persuaded" to make a substantial investment in the company, mentor of Grand National Films. Alperson, readily enough, says "sure." Also quickly enough, he denies the "associates" are the Skourases who, by widespread report, are credited with having joined hands with Alperson in the venture. The remainder of the widely aired yarn places the sum at $100,000. Alperson now: "I suppose in view of my close association with the Skourases, they'd tie me in if I opened a bootblack parlor. Only it is not so." . . .

When contracts expire and new ones are made, the consequence is the Joe E. Brown situation which will prevail next season. Warners will have two: "Earthworm Tractor," completed, and "Polo Joe," to be made before the comic finishes his current pact. Dave Loew will make three for Radio. The first will come up from the cutting room before the year runs out. . . .

Where pictures are evaluated, the new Gary Cooper captures plenty of attention these days. There is his excellent job of acting in "Desire." There is also "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town." There was "Bengal Lancer." There is the wit who yesterday said: "I don't understand it. Cooper must have been a typographical error up until now." . . .

If he has his way, he'll never again direct a film in black and white, says Lloyd Corrigan who did "Dancing Pirate" for Pioneer-Radio. Holding a long-term contract with Jock Whitney, Corrigan probably will never get any other kind of a chance. . . .

Bank Night Ruling Given in the Bronx

Bank Night won its first ruling in a Bronx Magistrate's Court yesterday when Judge Klapp dismissed a case against Felix Mayer, manager of the Bronx, a Harris house.

Mayer was arrested last week. When the case was called Judge Klapp informed attorneys for both sides that he had already made up his mind to do as he had done in similar cases before—hold the defendant for General Sessions.

John M. Keating, Bank Night attorney, requested that the evidence be heard. This was done, and the dismissal followed.

the conflicting interests. Two letters signed by Albert Warner, vice-president of Warner, were addressed to the former NRA administrator. Harry C. Arthur, vice-president of F. & M., likewise addressed two missives to Rosenblatt agreeing to the terms. All letters are attached to the stipulation signed by Judge Knox.

As soon as the final details have been ironed out, the theatres will be turned over to F. & M. Under the terms of the deal, Warners will get $150,000 for the leases and equipment in the Shubert-Rialto and Orpheum. The Shubert-Rialto lease runs until September, while the Orpheum arrangement does not expire until 1940. F. & M. will pay Warners $195,000 for its 42 per cent stock interest in the St. Louis Amusement Co. and $40,000 for the Hi-Point, a St. Louis subsequent run house. The $385,000 is payable monthly over a period of 10 years, the first payment to be made as soon as F. & M. takes over the properties.

Warners Have Claim

Warners have a claim for $135,000 against the St. Louis Amusement Co., representing cash advanced to the subsidiary, which will be turned over to F. & M. The distributor also has a $22,000 debt outstanding against another St. Louis subsidiary, which will be given to Arthur.

Despite the three-week period of negotiations, Hardy was not called to sit in on the meetings until April 22. Attending the sessions were Louis Phillips and Austin C. Keough, Paramount; Mallard and Leisure, RKO; Arthur and Ernest Wilkinson, F. & M., and Rosenblatt. Hardy yesterday stated Rosenblatt's entrance into the settlement negotiations was not at the Government's solicitation. Wilkinson denied that anyone identified with F. & M. asked the former administrator to try to iron out the dispute.

Rosenblatt was not in court yesterday, having left on an early afternoon plane for Cincinnati to attend a convention of radio dealers. His brother, Herman, affiliated with Rosenblatt's firm, acted for him. Rosenblatt is due back Monday or Tuesday.

Federal Approval Needed

Paramount and Warners, it was learned, signed the stipulation Tuesday afternoon. Although RKO was prepared to affix signatures at the same time, a question arose because RKO, the parent company is in reorganization, and no action could be taken unless Federal Judge William Bondy approved such a move. Andrew Christiansen, representing Irving Trust, and Mallard and Leisure conferred with Judge Bondy on Wednesday and suggested submitting an affidavit. This was done yesterday with Judge Bondy approving the 10-year franchise and signatures for the company to the stipulation.

According to the terms of payment for the theatres, F. & M. will pay Warners around $4,500 every month for the next 10 years. This includes interest on the $385,000.

Commenting on the settlement, a Paramount executive said that the company's attitude is not to enter into long-term franchises and only in a few instances have two and three-year term deals been made. It was added that Paramount has sold F. & M. partners in several situations and the ending of the civil suit opens the way for negotiations in other spots.

The brief session before Judge Knox found Hardy moving for dismissal of the Government's case based on the petition which he believed removed the restraint of trade complained of in a previous petition.

Questions Hardy's Authority

Leisure announced Judge Bondy's approval of the 10-year franchise and brought up the question of whether the Assistant Attorney General, meaning Hardy, had the authority to act. Judge Knox settled the matter without further adieu by stating Hardy would not come into court unless he was authorized by the Attorney General to do so.

"If the various attorneys are satisfied with the plan, I see no reason why I should take a contrary view," the court said and then signed the papers.

All of the settlement palavers have been held in Rosenblatt's office in the International Bldg. in Radio City.

F. & M. did not sign the stipulation as the company was not a party to the action.

"The decree of dismissal," Hardy asserted yesterday, "is based on the understanding that the arrangement establishes a situation in harmony with the law and consistent with the essential purposes of the action."

Attending yesterday's court sessions were Hardy, Rice, Arthur, Marco Wolff, Jack Partington, Wilkinson, Robert W. Perkins, Bromley, Leisure, Connick, Keough, Herman Rosenblatt, Christiansen, Mallard and Joe Spivak. Rice, Hardy and Wilkinson returned to Washington last night. Wolff plans to leave for Los Angeles tomorrow.

Delay Radio Session

A scheduled meeting of the board of Radio Pictures, Inc., was adjourned without date yesterday because a number of board members were engaged throughout the day on the final arrangements for the settlement of the St. Louis Federal suit.

Cost of U. S. Suits Put at $1,060,000

Legal costs, unofficially estimated, for the criminal and civil actions instituted by the Government against Warners, Paramount and RKO, are said to have run in the neighborhood of $1,060,000.

It is figured that the defendants spent as much as $1,000,000 for counsel fees, exclusive of the time and effort put in by home office executives. Of this total, Warners are reputed to have spent more than half. RKO is said to have spent the second highest amount and Paramount the least.

The Government's expense is conservatively estimated at $50,000, while F. & M. is reported to have spent about $10,000.

they will be reopened after the Orpheum and Shubert-Rialto have been thrown into the setup will be determined shortly. It is likely that a general shift of the runs on Grand Ave. will take place with the Fox and Missouri scheduled for first runs and with the Shubert-Rialto and New Grand Central as second runs.

With the 20 in St. Louis Amusement Co. group and the Hi-Point switching to F. & M., Harry C. Arthur and his associates will hold sway in the neighborhoods. Arthur has been after this group of theatres for some time, but has not been able to make a deal with John Cunliff, the receiver. Whether Leto Hill, supervisor for the houses, will continue in that post or be transferred by Warners to another territory has not yet been determined. Hill stands well with Cunliff and Warner home office executives. In the event he is shunted to another spot, it is likely Charles Kurtzman will succeed him.

Harry Greenman, manager of the Fox, most likely will be appointed supervisor of the first and second runs downtown and on Grand Ave.

F. & M.'s interest in the Fox and St. Louis is 50 per cent, which it holds in the operating company, known as the Eden Theatre Co. The other half is controlled by local interests.

Majors to Continue On St. Louis Appeal

equity case without prejudice on Jan. 29.

Both the Government and the defendants agreed Wednesday on the part of the record to be submitted for the appeal. This portion of the civil case was airmailed late Wednesday night to Judge Molyneaux in St. Paul for his execution. Following Judge Molyneaux's approval, the record will be sent to the clerk in the Federal Court in St. Louis and he in turn will file it in the Supreme Court by Monday.

The defendants which had 60 days to appeal from Judge Molyneaux's ruling in St. Louis and took advantage of the opportunity on the 59th day. The time for filing the record for appeal expires on May 6. It is still possible that Warners, Paramount and RKO may decide to have the record returned to them before it is sent to Washington.

Meanwhile, the Government says it has no control over Attorney General Roy McKittrick of Missouri who recently filed a quo warranto action to stop the three distributors from doing business in the state. However, it is felt that this action will be withdrawn as a result of the settlement signed yesterday.

Actors' Guild Gives Its Support to SWG

Hollywood, April 30.—While producers and members of the Screen Writers' Guild continued to fire verbal bombshells back and forth as a preliminary to the final showdown Saturday night when the guild will vote on the questions of amalgamation with the Authors' League and on future contractual commitments, the board of directors of the Screen Actors' Guild planned to back the writers in their fight.

In a resolution adopted by their board, the actors' group said, "The attack of the producers on the Screen Writers' Guild is the opening gun of an attack on all talent organizations. With this in mind, and fully realizing the deep significance of our message, we assure the Screen Writers' Guild that we are solidly behind it in its fight."

Reports of a threatened strike by writers should amalgamation be voted unanimously are current. Both factions are standing pat on the original war declarations.

The Authors' League council met here last night while a simultaneous meeting was held in New York for the discussion of the next move.

Rogers Files Denial In Suit on "U" Sale

A general denial was filed in Federal Court yesterday in connection with a suit for professional services brought by Gustavus A. Rogers, New York attorney, against his cousin, Charles R. Rogers. Another suit brought by Gustavus against the same defendant for an accounting was filed earlier in the week.

A motion will be heard this morning in which Charles R. Rogers asks that the plaintiff be compelled to include several other persons as plaintiffs in this action which involved arrangements for the purchase of the controlling stock interest in Universal.

Force Labor Holiday On Mexican Theatres

By JAMES LOCKHART

Mexico City, April 30.—Every film theatre in Mexico is shut for the day by Governmental order in recognition of the nation's Labor Day, strictest of its holidays. Exhibitors' reminders that the pictures are of high educational and recreational value were of no avail. The Government insisted that all film industry employes must have a full holiday to participate in parades and in the general glorification of the Mexican labor movement.

Exhibitors estimate that the revenue lost by the compulsory closing amounts to $20,000 at least.

Leichter Closes Deals

Mitchell Leichter, independent producer, left for the coast yesterday via Dallas, Denver and Salt Lake City after closing a number of deals for distribution of six Margaret Morris action pictures and eight Conway Tearle outdoor melodramas.

Sales have been set, he says, in practically all of this country, Canada and Europe. The American spots covered include upper New York state, Buffalo, all of Ohio, Detroit, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Portland and Seattle.

Stipulation of Agreement

Text of the stipulation of agreement which brought the Government suit in equity on behalf of Fanchon & Marco against Warners, Paramount and RKO and various of their subsidiaries to an out-of-court settlement yesterday:

The undersigned parties to this stipulation have agreed as follows:

Circuit Management Corp. covering the RKO 1935-36 motion pictures in said contracts referred to, including the contracts for feature and short subject motion picture photoplays and Pathe newsreels for the Shubert-Rialto and Orpheum Theatres, located in the City of St. Louis, Mo., and will consent to the assignment of said contracts therefor to Fanchon & Marco, Inc., upon its agreement to assume performance of said contracts in accordance with the terms thereof; and that it will sign, execute and deliver to Fanchon & Marco, Inc., a franchise for ten (10) years beginning with the 1936-37 motion picture season covering first-run in the Ambassador, New Grand Central, Missouri, St. Louis, Fox, Shubert-Rialto or Orpheum Theatres in the City of St. Louis, Mo., covering RKO feature and short subject motion picture photoplays and Pathe newsreels, the prices and playing arrangements and in which of the foregoing theatres the RKO product shall play to be mutually agreed upon annually, and in the absence of agreement to be determined by arbitration, subject, however, to the acceptance and execution of said franchise by Fanchon & Marco, Inc.; it being further understood that the agreement on the part of defendant RKO Distr. tion at a later date, however, is understood to be still open, but dependent upon the results shown by the management under its new order of freer action.

It was reported following a meeting yesterday of the executive committee of the company at which assurances of a new order of cooperation with the management, on the part of the board, are said to have been given. It was learned also that one of the principal functions which Kennedy was intended to perform, had his appointment been confirmed, was that of arbiter between board and management where these were at odds on subjects of company policy.

The executive committee has the power to act for the board on all matters of the type of that under discussion yesterday. The committee's assurance of more extensive cooperation with the management in the future is interpreted by those close to the situation as an indication that the the administration of John E. Otterson, president, may continue intact with fuller powers to act, unhampered by the board, than has been the policy up to now. All of the potent financial factors within Paramount are members of the executive committee. They include John Hertz and Floyd Odlum, who conducted most of the discussions with Kennedy; Stephen Callaghan, Percy Johnston and H. A. Fortington. Otterson and Adolph Zukor, as president and chairman of the board, respectively, are ex-officio members of the committee.

Kennedy remained at his office in the RCA Bldg. in Rockefeller Center until 6:30 yesterday evening, at which time, presumably, he was advised of the committee's decision. He left without making a statement.

Court Stay Delays Tower Acquisition

Chicago, April 30.—Judge Evans of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals here today granted to Balaban & Katz a stay of all proceedings regarding the Tower Theatre until the court can review a decision of the lower court concerning the house. B. & K. will file a $50,000 bond tomorrow as required by the court.

The actual taking over of the Tower by Jones, Linick & Schaefer, which was made known yesterday, will be delayed possibly for months, since the court calendar is crowded. Jones, Linick & Schaefer were to have taken over the house on May 1.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Neighborhood House"

(Roach-M-G-M)

Hollywood, April 30.—With satire and slapstick as the main selling angles this film should be acceptable as a secondary feature on many programs.

Charlie Chase, ably supported by Rosina Lawrence, Baby Darla Hood, Margaret Irving, Donald Meek and others unfolds a story which kids Bank Night.

Established as a family who bolt their dinner to arrive early at a neighborhood theatre for the drawings, Chase, Miss Lawrence and Baby Darla encounter difficulties when the child draws Chase's number, then her own, and the situation is further complicated when Miss Lawrence's number is picked. With cries of frameup from the audience, Chase is kidnapped by mobsters who had their own plan for capturing the prize. Chase returns the money the following night after escaping from the mob and the prize is won by his boss. As an exit from complications the authors of the film have the money finally paid in silver and a mad scramble ensues when the change falls from a bag.

Alan Hale and Harold Law co-directed, pacing the action suitably and making several time-worn gags seem somewhat fresh. The script is by Robert Flournoy and Arthur Jones from an original story by Chase and Law.

"Brilliant" Film

London, April 30.—Gainsborough-Gaumont's "Tudor Rose," premiered here tonight at the New Gallery, as a historical picture surpasses in colorful glamour, charm and authenticity of atmosphere anything from England since "Henry VIII."

The tragic story of Lady Jane Grey, queen of England for nine days, is told in scenes which are pictorially brilliant and dramatically stirring. Nova Pilbeam as Jane is a high spot of the production. The entire cast is excellent, the big names including John Mills, Cedric Hardwicke, Felix Aylmer, Leslie Perrins and Sybil Thorndyke.

America should welcome enthusiastically a cultured, yet thrilling film which makes 16th Century England live again in a story of plot, battle and innocence sacrificed to statecraft against a grim background of the Tower of London and the execution block.

"Tudor Rose" will be released in the U. S. by G. B. on its 1936-37 program under the title, "Lady Jane Grey."

The dimensions were reduced after a survey conducted through the M. P. P. D. A. and Film Boards of Trade in key cities. Revised specifications are now being distributed to all reel manufacturers with orders expected to be placed within a few weeks for the Aug. 1 changeover.

BY E. de S. MELCHER.

"THE MARCH OF TIME" is getting to be a habit, like breakfast, the Marx brothers and Charlie Chaplin (when you can get him). It can no longer be called a newsreel. It is a fullfledged dramatic entertainment, or rather three fullfledged dramatic entertainments, on facts and presented with enormous vitality. It raises the standard of any theater's program about three notches. It offers its current day to… beating around the bush. And any subject which it chooses to handle you can count on knowing before the film is finished from A to Z.

There is more of a kick in "The March of Time" than there is in Mae West. Furthermore, its influence on public thinking should not be minimized. While the beauty of it is that it does its thinking for you, before it has been moulded into shape a smart scenario expert has whipped it up to a boiling point.

S.M.P.E. Concludes Spring Convention

CHICAGO, April 30.—The Society of M. P. Engineers today concluded its four-day annual spring convention at the Edgewater Beach Hotel here, during which numerous technical and scientific papers were read and several symposiums on equipment matters held.

Today's final session was devoted to a discussion by a number of experts on the uses of the slide film during the morning meeting, and on apparatus and equipment in the afternoon.

During the convention it was decided to hold the annual fall meeting in Rochester from Oct. 12 to 15.

An outline of the papers read at today's session follows:

Marie Witham of the Society for Visual Instruction discussed the development of slide film stereopticons and improvement in new types of equipment.

Cites Value of Slide Films

The experience of the Dep't. of Agriculture's extension service in the preparation and use of slide films was outlined by C. H. Hansen of the department. He noted the increasing popularity of that form of illustrating lectures. The development of better equipment for the purpose was urged by Hanson.

The recent progress and development in various branches of the non-theatrical use of the screen were outlined by R. F. Mitchell, chairman of the Committee on Non-Theatrical Equipment. The chief advance has been in industrial and educational fields, he said, and tremendous advances have been made in the use of 16 mm. sound prints.

The outstanding growth of films for advertising purposes and in other business forms in recent years was pointed out by W. F. Kruse, of Bell & Howell, in his paper on "The Business Screen, Some Demands Made by and Upon It." Most of the business films now in use are on 16 mm. film.

E. M. Honan of Erpi in Hollywood discussed the installation and operation of an accurate system for timing and judging horse races at the Santa Anita track on the coast.

Sound on 16mm. Film

A new 16 mm. sound-on-film projector of advance design, using a 1,000-watt lamp, was described in a paper by R. Fawn Mitchell and W. L. Herd of Bell & Howell. In conjunction with the paper a typical 16 mm. advertising reel was shown to demonstrate the use of the new projector.

In a two-part paper on "Copper Oxide Rectifiers for Motion Picture Arc Supply" and the application of the rectifier to projection, by I. R. Smith and Westinghouse and C. E. Hamann of General Electric, the unusual value of this type of rectifier was pointed out. The device is capable of almost unlimited life, it was said.

A new high fidelity telephone receiver and a uni-directional ribbon microphone were described in two separate papers by Harry F. Olson of the RCA Manufacturing Co., at Camden. Tests on the receiver were outlined and the value of the new ribbon microphone in discriminating against undesirable sounds was emphasized. The device has been found of considerable value in sound film recording, it was said.

In a paper by F. J. Loomis and E. W. Reynolds of RCA Manufacturing was detailed the design of a new rotary stabilizer soundhead. All the convenient features of the previous soundhead types are retained and new ones added, the description indicated.

"The Magazine Cine Kodak" was described by O. Wittel of Eastman Kodak, who pointed out the unique developments in the design of the magazine. The camera contains a novel finder system which provides correct fields for any of the several lenses applicable for use with the camera.

Cleaves 726-Carat Diamond

Kaplan Makes Perfect Job of Cutting Jonker Stone After Studying It a Year.

After Lazare Kaplan, the New York diamond cutter, and his son, Leo Kaplan, had completed the delicate task of cleaving the million-dollar 726-carat Jonker diamond yesterday as a preliminary to cutting the great stone into a dozen smaller stones, Mr Kaplan's first act was to phone his wife, who was anxiously waiting at their home, 800 Riverside Drive

"Mamma. It's a 'success. I told her," Mr Kaplan said today in the Rockefeller Center offices of Harry Winston, present owner of the Jonker diamond "Than I remembered to call Mr Winston and tell him it was a perfect job without any splits or cracks to the pieces."

The drama of the cleaving process may be glimpsed to what Mr Winston had to say about the risk of cleaving the great stone.

My insurance brokers informed me that it was utterly impossible to get coverage on Mr Kaplan's work." Mr Winston said "Lloyds of London refused to write a policy saying that the risk of splitting the diamond was too great. A mistake might cleave it the wrong way or shatter it, costing a hundred thousand dollars and forever damaging the magnificent stone. We had to trust to Mr Kaplan's skill."

NEW YORK, April 29—Successful cleavage of the Jonker Diamond is announced by its owner, Harry Winston, diamond dealer, of 620 Fifth avenue.

The actual drama of the cleavage took place Monday afternoon. Lazare Kaplan, master diamond cutter, working alone with his son, Leo, tapped a steel wedge with a brass hammer and the 726 caret gem fell lightly apart.

SLICING FAMOUS JONKERS GEM IN THREE

Lazare Kaplan and his son, Leo, demonstrate how they cleaved the Jonkers diamond.

A score of reporters, photographers and newsreel men gathered in Rockefeller Center today to witness the cleaving of a million dollars' worth of crystallized carbon known as the Jonker diamond, fourth heaviest rough stone ever unearthed by man.

However, Lazare Kaplan, bald and mustached Belgian, confessed he had gone ahead and split the 726-carat stone into three neat pieces last night.

That thought struck a chill into the heart of Harry Winston, the owner, who has the diamond insured for $1,000,000 but had to take his own chances with the risky business of cleaving.

To Mr. Kaplan, trained among the diamond-cutting masters of Antwerp, the Jonker diamond was the climax of a career.

It fell into three pieces—just as he'd planned—and he breathed a huge sigh of relief

The three pieces will be cleaved again to make twelve cut and polished diamonds, ranging in size from 11 to 165 carats. That will take about six more months, and Mr Winston expects the whole group to be worth about $2,000,000.

Mr. Kaplan pasted the three pieces together and obligingly did a bit of synthetic cleaving for photographers.

Cutting a diamond, both Mr Kaplan and his twenty-three-year-old son insisted, is part of their profession. Cleaving a diamond as big as the Jonker, they said is a task for which even a family of cutters gets little practice.

The M. P. T. O. A. sales policy conferences with individual companies will be resumed here on May 12, it was learned yesterday. A schedule of meetings with each of the seven distributors who are cooperating with the exhibitor organization in bringing about trade practice concessions will be prepared by Ed Kuykendall, M. P. T. O. A. president, on his arrival here next Friday.

Indications are that the exhibitor committee which will meet with the seven companies for final agreements on a trade practice program will consist of Kuykendall, O. C. Lam of Rome, Ga.; Lewen Pizor, Philadelphia; Jack Miller, Chicago; L. C. Griffith, Oklahoma City, and possibly Morgan Walsh of San Francisco. Resumption of the meetings was deferred for one week in order to make it possible for Griffith and Walsh to participate.

Indications of an agreement between the Dramatists' Guild and the League of N. Y. Theatres on the use of the former's contract were seen in the naming by the guild of a special committee to meet with the producing managers and discuss their objections to the guild contract. The first meeting was held late Thursday and another is scheduled for Monday.

The guild, up to this time, has refused to meet with the managers to discuss changes in the contract, having rejected bids for such meetings with the statement that they would be a "waste of time." The managers,

Appeal Moves In Trust Case Hanging Fire

Contingent on F. & M.'s Carrying Out Pledges

Although Warners, Paramount and RKO are going through with the appeal from Federal Judge Joseph West Molyneaux's decision dismissing the Government's civil suit without prejudice on Jan. 29 last, such action will not be pressed, it was learned, provided the contingencies contained in the stipulation ending the equity suit out-of-court are met by F. & M.

Under the settlement reached Thursday, F. & M. has to turn over certain documents and meet other requirements and until this is done the distributors will continue with the appeal to the U. S. KENNEDY GOES TO PARA. AS ADVISER

JOSEPH P. KENNEDY

Reaches Agreement With Board—Leaves for Coast Monday

Weeks of negotiations between Paramount directors and Joseph P. Kennedy were concluded yesterday when arrangements for Kennedy to join the company on a basis satisfactory to both were agreed upon at a special meeting of the company's board attended by the former Pathe and F. B. O. head.

In his capacity of adviser Kennedy assumes no direct authority within the company, a statement from the Paramount board asserted. His principal function will be to survey the company's studio situation and to make reports and recommendations to the board and officers. While the length of Kennedy's association with the company is undecided, he told Motion Picture Daily that it would be temporary. In a formal statement issued to the press he said that this would be determined "by the time required to make my findings."

Kennedy also told this publication that Paramount's production problems would be his first concern and that he would leave for Hollywood and the company's studios on Monday to begin a survey of the situation. He

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Case Against Mrs. Ames"

(Wanger-Paramount)

Hollywood, May 1.—Skillfully blending dramatic, romantic comedy elements that have quick appeal, this newest Walter Wanger production looms as absorbing entertainment for class and mass audiences. A closely knit story balancing melodramatic incident with intriguing love interest, rigid suspense and laugh-provoking comedy makes this an impressive film for Madeleine Carroll. It, likewise, allows George Brent to present a convincing, highly polished performance.

The attraction has quality to interest any kind of an audience.

Unsuccessful in prosecuting Miss Carroll for the murder of her husband, the district attorney castigates the jury as moronic, sympathy-influenced sycophants. He is jailed for contempt of court.

Miss Carroll, whose objective is to clear her name and regain the custody of her son, Scotty Beckett, from her hateful mother-in-law, Beulah Bondi, obtains his release and engages him to investigate the case. The ensuing dialogue and action furnish Arthur Treacher, Alan Baxter and Ed Brophy many opportunities to make comedy lighten the dramatic tension. Miss Carroll and Brent fall in love.

Gathering new evidence which reveals that Alan Mowbray, who had defended Miss Carroll in the first trail, had a motive for killing her husband, Brent builds the story up to a climax with Mowbray attempting suicide. This brings about a happy, romantic ending.

The picture has plenty of power and sock. It was directed by William Seiter from Arthur Somers Roche's story. Gene Towne and Graham Baker did the screen play.

Sold from the angle of a woman at bay with emphasis on the finished quality of the production and the work of Miss Carroll and Brent, the film should prove an audience-pleaser.

GTE Suit Trial Set In St. Paul May 6

Kansas City, May 1.—The suit of Jacob Smith, Lee Hamlin and other General Theatres Equipment Corp. bondholders against Chase National Bank, National Theatres Corp., Fox Film Corp., et al, has been set down for argument before the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals at St. Paul, May 6.

Bondholders in the suit are seeking to impress a lien in favor of them and General Theatres Equipment, Inc., on properties which, before their sale to National Theatres in bankruptcy proceedings, here in April, belonged to Fox Midland and Fox Rocky Mountain.

The original petition of the complainants, filed just prior to the sale of the Fox properties, was dismissed by Judge Albert L. Reeves in U. S. District Court on grounds the suit had no standing in his court. Complainants amended their petition and refiled. This petition Judge Reeves also dismissed on the same grounds.

Plaintiffs, represented by C. A. Randolph and R. R. Brewster, had two methods of appealing. They used both. Last December they applied to the Circuit Court of Appeals under the bankruptcy laws to allow the appeal, which the circuit court did; and they appealed in the regular way, from the District Court here. Inasmuch as each appeal involved two bankrupt properties, there were two appeals in each case. These four actions have been consolidated for argument at St. Paul.

Kennedy Goes To Paramount As an Adviser

said he would also have an office in the Paramount Building here.

The statement from the Paramount board said that the invitation to Kennedy to become associated with the company was unanimous on the part of the directors and officers. Kennedy had stated that he would not accept the invitation under any other circumstances. From this it is inferred that a lack of unanimity may have existed on Thursday when Kennedy advised a meeting of the Paramount executive committee that he would not accept the proffered post, and that the situation altered to the satisfaction of both yesterday.

The Paramount board's statement follows.

"The board of directors of Paramount has been giving careful consideration to the many serious problems concerning the motion picture industry, especially to those touching upon Paramount in particular. Costs have risen rapidly in the studio and substantial losses have been taken on pictures made since January, 1935.

"The board has made a search for a man best equipped to advise the company. Finding that Joseph P. Kennedy was available, the directors and officers unanimously invited him to become a special adviser for the purpose of making a survey of the situation to report and make recommendations. Kennedy has accepted.

Experience Long and Varied

"Kennedy brings a long and varied business experience to the aid of the company. He was for a year and a half chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, from which he recently resigned. Previously he had been a banker and for four years he had an important and personal experience in all activities of the picture business.

"Paramount, after a long and profitable record, underwent reorganization in 1935. On the completion of the reorganization Adolph Zukor was elected chairman of the board and John E. Otterson was elected president. Both continue in their offices," the board's statement concludes.

Kennedy said, "I have seen the statement issued by the Paramount corporation and there is nothing I need add to it, except, perhaps, this:

"I have been called into the situation by the unanimous vote of the directors and officers to give such help as I may to a company that has a great potentiality but which recently has had rough sledding. How that potentiality can be most fully realized; what lines it should take, what changes, if any, in major policies—those are the questions I shall try to answer in my role, which is equivalent to a committee of survey and policy.

"I shall take an office in the Paramount Building and shall soon go to the coast. How long the engagement will be is undecided; that will be determined by the time required to make my findings. I am assured of the unqualified support of the directors and officers. I take up the survey with no preconceptions."

preme Court for a hearing, if such a move is found necessary.

After Judge Molyneaux approves the record, it will be sent to the clerk in the St. Louis Federal Court, where the action was heard. The clerk, in turn, will send it to Washington by May 6, where it will be docketed on the Supreme Court calendar.

Two motions, one by the Government for preference on the calendar and another by distributors for a bill of particulars, were cleared from Federal Judge John C. Knox's docket yesterday as a result of the out-of-court settlement reached Thursday.

Helen Kane "Betty Boop" Appeal Lost

The Appellate Division yesterday unanimously affirmed an order of the N. Y. Supreme Court dismissing the complaint in a $250,000 damage suit brought by Helen Kane against Max Fleischer, Fleischer Studios, Inc. and Paramount Publix Corp.

The complaint, in addition to damages asked for a permanent injunction restraining the defendants from using without Helen Kane's consent any pictorial representation of her in films or animated cartoons, particularly the Betty Boop pictures. She also asked for a temporary injunction to enjoin the defendants from unfair competition. The decision of a higher court pointed out that during the course of the trial of the complaint before Justice E. J. McGoldrick, the complaint was dismissed on June 23, 1934, as to Max Fleischer. This decision was an appeal from that dismissal.

Lorre, Bennett, Set

Constance Bennett, who did "Everything Is Thunder" and who returned to America on the Europa Thursday night, will also star in another film.

F. & M. will assume operation of the Shubert-Rialto, Orpheum and Hi-Point in St. Louis between May 15 and June 1, it was learned over the week-end. Acquisition of the trio from Warners is part of the terms contained in the settlement last Thursday of the Government's equity suit against Warners, Paramount and RKO.

With the change in management of the three houses, a general revision of the Grand Ave. and downtown theatre policies, with the exception of Loew's, operated by Loew's, will follow. Harry C. Arthur, vice-president, now in St. Louis on a week's trip, will move his headquarters to that city following his return here to wind up personal affairs. He will personally supervise operation of all the F. & M. interests

Studio Costs Survey First Kennedy Act

A complete study of Paramount studio costs will be the first task to be undertaken by Joseph P. Kennedy in his new role of adviser to the company, it was learned on Saturday.

The results of the study will be reported to the Paramount board with recommendations which are expected to have a direct influence on the company's new season production policies, including production budgets, allocations for "A" and "B" pictures, decisions on increases or decreases in budgets of various studio departments and recommendations on length and type of important contracts which may be up for renewal or under consideration.

C. J. Scollard, who was executive vice-president of the old Pathe company at the time Kennedy was chairman of its board, and Arthur B. Poole, Kennedy's former Pathe treasurer, have been added to the latter's new Paramount staff and leave with Kennedy for the coast today to aid in the studio survey. While retaining his present office in the RCA Bldg., Kennedy will have quarters in the Paramount Bldg. for his home office contact on the new assignment. John Ford, at present general manager of Maine-New Hampshire Theatres, may join Kennedy's home office staff later.

Sabath Para. Study Set for Washington

The Sabath Congressional committee will resume its open hearings on Paramount's reorganization proceedings within the next three weeks at Washington, Murray W. Garsson, director of investigation for the committee, said Saturday.

All officers and directors of Paramount will be called for questioning at the hearings. Max D. Steuer will be counsel for the committee.

RKO to Build Its National Theatre Setup

To Drop Some; Realign Other Holdings

Leo Spitz, head of the RKO circuit, is working on a number of deals whereby the national situation will be strengthened.

In some spots theatres will be dropped, while in others units will be either added or pooled with the circuit's present holdings. Most of the activity is being concentrated in the east and midwest.

Presently, RKO operates about 100 theatres exclusive of those pooled with Walter Reade in Trenton and New Brunswick and with the major circuits in other cities.

Nate J. Blumberg, operating head for RKO, recently made a survey of the field and it is believed it is from his report that Spitz is weeding out the weak sisters and planning to solidify the circuit's status generally.

An initial step will dispose of two theatres in New Jersey and is scheduled to be consummated some time this week.

Cullman May Refuse To Head Exhibitors

Howard S. Cullman, trustee for the Roxy, will not accept the presidency of the to-be-merged T. O. C. C. and I. T. O. A., it was learned from authoritative sources over the week-end.

Although Cullman would not commit himself by handing out a routine statement, it is understood that Cullman has another offer in mind which is of far greater importance than the post in the local exhibitor combination. This, however, will not develop for another week or two, it is said.

Cullman's answer to queries on the acceptance of the New York spot is: "To the best of my knowledge and belief, I have no statement to make."

Strong Pictures Not To Interrupt Duals

Despite the list of strong pictures available within the next few weeks, Loew and RKO will not discontinue twin bills in their Greater New York theatres.

Among the pictures Loew intends to double are "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," "These Three," "Little Lord Fauntleroy" and "Show Boat." None

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

"WE do have saddled on us, as exhibitors, what is known as the 'score charge,' an extra charge on each picture over and above the copyright license fee or film rental, collected by most distributors," Ed Kuykendall recently told the House Patents Committee in Washington. Finally, somebody has said it. "What this actually represents, Heaven only knows; we have been given all sorts of stories about it by various distributors, but exhibitors uniformly feel that it is an unwarranted extra charge for which there is no real justification," he continued. "It's just a racket to get extra money out of us for which we get exactly nothing in return. Protests by exhibitors against this unfair charge are of no avail; the distributors can see only the money they get out of it and won't give it up." . . .

Why the score charge at this stage of the game anyway? Any answer which we might develop here could not be as effective as the further statement made by Kuykendall when he said: "The complaint of the exhibitor is that the composer or publisher has already been paid well for the tune and again paid for the right to record it, but that, while the tune is an inseparable part of the picture, it still cannot be exhibited until the music tax is paid by the theatre. Exhibitors naturally feel that they are forcing him to pay a third time for something that he has already bought and paid for, to wit: a license to publicly perform or reproduce in his theatre the motion picture as recorded by the studio, intact and complete." . . .

Eddie Cantor has turned down $20,000 against fifty-fifty of the gross at the Roxy for a personal appearance with Bobby Breen when the youngster's picture, "Let's Sing Again," plays there the week of May 8. Croesus must have felt like that once. . . .

It was Bill Shapiro, the Boston independent exchangeman, incidentally, who first interested Sol Lesser in Bobby. The entire gamut of producers rejected the boy and finally, as Lesser himself puts it, the proposition traveled far enough down the line to reach him. Sol's deal for the first Breen and two others is about set with a major distributor who was the first to turn hands down on Bobby in a direct deal. That makes everything just about normal. . . .

> Milwaukee—An increase in Sunday adult admission prices will be effective. Under the schedule, early admission prices are abolished and all houses will charge their top prices all day Sunday with the exception of the Riverside and Princess. The former is charging 20 cents to 1 P.M. instead of the usual 15 cents and 30 cents to closing. Former top price was 25 cents. . . . The increase represents a general boost of five cents, although for some houses charging reduced matinee admissions on Sunday the increase is as high as from 15 to 20 cents.

But a significant something lurks behind it. Gradually and with as little attention as they know how to muster, what with Federal tax and the play it allows, circuit operators in an increasing number of situations are stepping up admissions. The general attitude is two-fold: (1) That the depression is gone, even though the American Federation of Labor continues to compute the unemployed at 12,000,000 or more and (2) that product at large has improved to a point where more money can be gotten for it. Probably, it is too early to describe the development as completely national, although the markings are clear and quite definite. . . .

This makes for a curious situation. While the double feature, spawned in the days following the '29 crash, flourishes and grows and continues to maintain show business as very much of a bargain business, the price the public is asked to pay for such entertainment is imperceptibly going up, thereby raising the not too illogical question if pictures face any danger of being taken out of the bargain idea classification. We believe the entire problem of admissions and what to do about them should be scrutinized with great care. The logical impulse, naturally, is to get all the traffic can bear, but haste made slowly might be well to observe. . . .

Word of the uppage will please Hollywood and will fall on gratified ears in the sales departments in New York as well. On the coast, negative costs, as we have pointed out several times in the past few weeks, are clambering to a new high at a gait which makes even some in Hollywood, that gilt-edged town, wonder about the end. The producer who told us that the million dollar negative today is merely a trailer sounded off in jest, but no doubt meant it seriously. The way the studios are going makes it very apparent that distributors either will seek higher percentages for 1936-37 or designate more attractions in the higher brackets. Now that the money is being spent, wisely or otherwise, obviously the return must come from the theatres and the public. But the public, little knowing and caring less about Hollywood costs, computes its values now on a double feature basis made available at box-office prices attractive to it and is not, nor should it be, interested in studio costs. This represents the issue and the exact point at which the men running the nation's theatres should concentrate their attention, exercise their judgment and formulate the proper decisions. . . .

Hoffberg Deals Set On Leichter's List

Jack H. Hoffberg, who recently formed a production-distribution partnership with Mitchell Leichter, has closed with a number of independent exchanges throughout the country for the new lineup of 14 pictures. The deal marks the most important step Hoffberg has made since he entered distribution in the domestic field.

Contracts already have been signed with Superior Pictures for Chicago, St. Louis and Milwaukee; American Exchanges, for New England; Adams Film, for Texas; Oklahoma and Arkansas; Metropolitan Pictures, for Washington and Oregon; Monarch Pictures, for Detroit; Select Pictures, for Ohio and Kentucky; Monarch Pictures, for Pittsburgh; Elliott Exchanges, for Minneapolis, North and South Dakota and northern Wisconsin; F. C. Pictures, for Buffalo and Albany; Principal Pictures, for New York. Foreign rights have been sold to Guaranteed Pictures.

Leichter is en route to the coast and will stop off at Atlanta, Des Moines and Omaha to complete arrangements for local tieups. Hoffberg shortly will close for the handling of the product in Philadelphia and Washington.

Conway Tearle will be starred in eight and Margaret Morris in six. The first of the 14 will get under way as soon as Leichter reaches Hollywood.

Stromberg Coming East

Hunt Stromberg is due in town early in the week for a few days before sailing on May 9 on the Rex for a vacation. He has stopped off in St. Louis, his home town, and he also saw the Kentucky Derby.

Paramount takes the guesswork out of SHORTS with the PARAMOUNT BOX-OFFICE TEST

Knowing the importance to you exhibitors of shorts that are absolutely surefire box-office, Paramount uses a statistical test for Paramount Short Subjects that guarantees them 100% box-office.

THE TEST Every one of the 43 Paramount Exchanges in the United States and Canada selects from the theatres in its territory a representative group of theatres playing Paramount Short Subjects. These theatres include all types — from the key city house to the little theatre in the country town. These theatres are asked to rate each Paramount Short as to box-office power, in the following order: Excellent, Good, Fair and Poor, and to give their opinions in detail on each short. Thus Paramount is able to get a first-hand, statistical report on the pulling power not only of each short, but on the characters or elements in each short. From these statistics, which represent a cross-section of theatres all over this continent, the Paramount Short Subjects Division is able to determine exactly the kind of short subject that will do the most business for you.

Phenomenal growth of POPEYE shown in typical PARAMOUNT SHORT SUBJECT TEST

In July, 1933, Paramount first placed Popeye in a Betty Boop cartoon. A statistical checkup, or test, showed he rated top billing in a picture of his own. He was starred in September, 1933. We don't need to tell you the results. In 1934 Popeye led the cartoon comedy field.

The 1935-1936 box-office test figures by Exchanges, representing the Short Subject market from coast to coast in the United States and Canada, are shown below. They tell the story.

Spring Boom On; Building Takes Spurt

Planned and current construction of new theatres and extensive remodeling of others is going forward at a rapid pace in almost all sections of the country, indicative of improved business generally, and especially in the film field. It is significant, for example, that in the Kansas City area this spring building and remodeling is running well ahead of the same period last year.

Following is a summarization of recent developments in theatre activity, divided by sections of the country.

Kansas City Area Active

Kansas City, May 3.—Fox Midwest will spend $30,000 in remodeling the Lincoln here. Moran and Isely have opened the Columbia in Coffeyville, Kan., after remodeling. Lee Sproule plans a new house at Hutchinson, Kan., to seat 700. Chakeres Theatres will spend approximately $15,000 improving the Murphy at Wilmington, O. Galanes following complete renovation. A new theatre and office building will be constructed at Mattoon, Ill., for E. F. Clarke. A new house, the Mars, seating 600, has been opened by A. R. Workman and Clarence Hartford at Marsailles, Ill. The opening of the Plaza at Neosho, Mo., by Charles Tuggle has given the town three theatres.

Harry E. Miller shortly will start work on a new theatre and office building in Festus, Mo. The house will seat 500, and the building will cost about $40,000. Contracts have been awarded for the two new theatres of the St. Louis Amusement Co. One will be in St. Louis and the other in Clayton, Mo. Total cost will be about $200,000. The house which the Leko Realty Co. is erecting in St. Louis will have 125 seats equipped with hearing aids for the deaf. The house is expected to be ready by the end of the summer. Paul Gusdanovic, James E. Scoville and Howard Reif, Cleveland circuit operators, have bought property in Parma, O., on which they will erect a theatre.

The Folly of the United circuit is undergoing complete renovation. Otto Hauberg has resumed exhibition with a house in Pineville, La. The Joy-Houk Co. has added the Avalon in Hammond, La., to its circuit. The Vaudette at Brewton, Ala., and the Atmore at Atmore, Ala., have been taken over by the R. E. Martin circuit.

Piatt and Meade have opened their new house, seating 250, at Sulphur Springs, Ark., the town's only theatre. Little River Theatre Corp. and Beach Theatres, Inc., have been chartered in Florida to operate theatres. The Avalon, new $32,000 house at Pass Christian, Miss., has opened. It replaces the Kozy, which burned some time ago.

Malco Theatres plans to remodel the Joy at Fort Smith, Ark., and the Rialto at Camden, Ark. The company also will install air conditioning equipment in the Paramount, Hot Springs, and the Strand in Memphis. W. Schuler Snidow, owner of the Palace in Christiansburg, Va., shortly will open his new 750-seat house there. Construction is under way on a new $30,000 theatre in Pasadena, Texas, for D. P. Rathbone. Strauss All Wrong

Vienna, May 3. — That "Blue Danube" business is all wrong, according to Trem Carr. After hearing the Strauss waltz for years he's here now and finds it yellow, and thinks all the studio technical departments should know about it in case they should ever want to use the river in a Technicolor feature.

Carr has gone to St. Moritz for the spring sports—whatever they are. Then he will rest at Milan and on the Riviera. He has already gondoliered on the Venetian canals and has fed the pigeons at St. Mark's. Eleven more suitcase labels and he'll go home.

New Pittsburgh House

Pittsburgh, May 3.—Mark Browar, veteran local exhibitor, has started construction of a 1,000-seat neighborhood house in the wealthy Squirrel Hill section. The house, to be called the Marrowfield, is expected to be ready for occupancy by Sept. 1.

Building in Portland

Henry Hower plans a 784-seat house at Worthington, Minn., to cost about $85,000, to be called the New State. Central States theatre Corp., operating the Ritz in Chariton, Ia., will open a new house, the State, there, with an expenditure of $10,000 planned for remodeling the property. C. E. Carragher, manager of the Park in Clear Lake, Ia., starts construction shortly on a new $20,000 theatre. Federal Aid Assured for Mexico Films

By JAMES LOCKHART

Mexico City, April 28.—The young film production industry of Mexico definitely will have the moral and financial assistance of the Government. The aid was assured by President Lazaro Cardenas during a recent visit to the newest and largest studio in the country, Cinematografica Latino Americana, S. A. (CLASA), located at Tlalpan, near here. CLASA has completed its first film, "Vamonos Con Pancho Villa" ("Let's Go With Villa"), and has started its second, "Su Gran Aventura" ("His Great Adventure").

The President expressed gratification that the country's film industry has advanced to the extent where it can maintain a large and modern studio. He declared that the time is at hand for the Government to do something for the industry. Cardenas said that he considers the production of good Mexican pictures an excellent advertisement for the country. He favors the production of high class scenics and films that depict the folklore of Mexico.

The chief executive has instructed the ministries of the Interior, Foreign Relations and National Economy to draft a program to provide for Government assistance to the industry, but without meddling in it.

Evasion of the local tax of 13 per cent on each day's admission gross will not be tolerated by the authorities. This was clearly indicated in the arrest of the manager, two assistants and the cashier of a Mexico City neighborhood house on charges of regularly holding out on the municipal tax collectors when they made their rounds each night after the show. The city treasurer claims the evasion has cost the city several thousand dollars.

The public health bureau of the Government has produced 63 two-reel talking films on general sanitation, personal hygiene and health education, which are being exhibited free in workers' and peasants' recreation centers throughout the country. The new Federal physical education department is producing a six-reeler to demonstrate to the public the benefits to be derived from systematic physical exercise.

Republic to Start Nine

Hollywood, May 3. — Republic will put nine films into production within the next eight weeks. On the 1935-6 schedule are: "Ticket to Paradise," "Sitting on the Moon," "The Gentleman from Louisiana," "Legion of the Lost" and "Michael O'Halloran." On the 1936-37 schedule are: "Follow Your Heart," starring Marion Talley, "Danger Below," "The Country Gentleman" and "Portia on Trial."

"Fury" Is New Title

Hollywood, May 3. — "Fury" is the final title of Norman Krasna's original heretofore known as "Mob Rule."

Second New House Opened in Toronto

Toronto, May 3. — For the second time in as many weeks Toronto has witnessed the opening of a new theatre in which smoking is permitted in the upper section of the auditorium. The latest is the Casino, an independent downtown house. The weekly programs will change each Sunday midnight while week-day performances start at 9:30 A. M., which is the earliest of any daily opening in Toronto. Prices range from 16 cents to 50 cents.

The first theatre in Canada to permit smoking was the Elginton, a suburban house which was opened recently under the direction of Famous Players Canadian.

Griffin Circuit for Sale

Toronto, May 3.—An echo of the pioneer past is heard in the offer to sell three theatres in Ontario of Griffin Theatres, Ltd., by O. M. Griffin. The houses are the Palace at St. Catharines and houses at Woodstock and Chatham. The Woodstock is now operating under a lease to Famous Players Canadian.

This circuit in many cities and towns of Ontario was the original film theatre group in Canada and set the pace in the early days of silent films under the direction of the late Paddy Griffin.

Strong Denver Competition

Denver, May 3. — Stiff summer competition from the Elitch Stock Co. is expected as a result of the cast lined up by Arnold B. Gurtler, manager, who has just returned from New York.

In the unit this season will be Kenneth Mackenna, Irene Purcell, Lynn Kendall, John Seager, Phyllis Welch, Harry Richards, Frank Wilcox, Edith Gresham, Forest Orr, C. Bradford Ashworth and Lucian Self. George Somnes will be the director.

Crew to Des Moines

Des Moines, May 3. — Maurice Crew, formerly manager of the Paramount in Waterloo, has come here to take charge of the Roosevelt, and Bob Leonard, who has been managing the Roosevelt, will be transferred to the Garden. Both are Tri-States theatres.

Henry Workman, who has had charge of the Garden the past year, has returned to Excelsior, Minn., to assist his father in managing a string of theatres.

Devaney Goes to Albany

Cincinnati, May 3. — William Devaney, for several years M-G-M feature booker, has been transferred to the Albany exchange as head booker. He is succeeded by Tom Smiley of the local M-G-M advertising department. Devaney, charter member and treasurer of the Booker's Club here, was presented a watch by that organization, while M-G-M employes gave him a fitted traveling bag.

Charter Trans-Lux Firm

Dover, Del., May 3. — Trans-Lux Washington Theatre Corp. has been incorporated with a capital of $50,000. The incorporators are Allen G. Miller, Robert McLeod Jackson and John V. Woodhull of New York.

Electreporter, Inc., has been formed to deal in sound recording and transcribing machinery by J. M. Frere, J. A. Frere and C. R. Murphy of Wilmington.

All Alone

Worcester, Mass., May 3, —Working alone and unattended, Joe Anstead, manager of the Elm Street here, repaneled and completely redecorated the lobby of his theatre. He did the single-handed job by working each night after the audience had left the last show. History does not record how long it took him, but the job is done.

Phonotone Music Co. has been chartered to deal in music machines, etc., by M. C. Swearer, M. E. Pinder and A. G. Foulk of Wilmington.

John Danz Renovating

Seattle, May 3. — John Danz will close his Rex, first run film and vaudeville house this week for approximately six weeks. The house will be reseated, stage improvements will be made, sound equipment renovated and the entire house redecorated. Reopening for the summer season is scheduled for June, with the film-stage policy continuing. A new name will be selected.

Danz's State, second run picture and burlesque house, is slated for a renovating job following the Rex repairs.

Plan 3rd Canada House

Toronto, May 3. — Toronto is to have still another new suburban theatre of ultra-modern design, the third this year. The newest one is being erected at Bathurst Street and St. Clair Avenue in the North End. Reuben R. Dennis is the builder and Jay I. English the architect. It will seat 800 persons and will cost around $100,000.

Ask Avalon Interest Cut

Milwaukee, May 3. — The Avalon Realty Co., owner of a theatre, store and apartment building on the city's south side, has filed a plan in the U. S. District Court for reduction of the six per cent interest on a first mortgage bond issue of $285,000.

The present bonds mature serially to June 1, 1944. A new issue is proposed to mature in 15 years.

Fox Midwest In All Houses at Iola

Kansas City, May 3.—Fox Midwest acquired control of all theatres in Iola, Kan., when it took over the Uptown from E. Van Hyning. The circuit leased Ira E. Kelley's two houses, the Iola and Kelley, several weeks ago.

The deal with Van Hyning included sale of the property on which the Uptown stands. A clause of the contract stipulates that Van Hyning shall not operate in Iola for the next 15 years.

Van Hyning will devote most of his time to his two second run houses, the Ritz at Parsons, and the Best at Independence, Kan.

Fox will soon close the Kelley, according to Harry A. McClure, district manager, and will operate only the Uptown and Iola.

Jasper House Opened in the Mound City. Arthur intends to travel between St. Louis and New York every other week.

Under the new setup, it now appears, the Fox will be the ace house, dropping its dual feature policy for singles. The Ambassador and Orpheum will continue first runs without the assistance of a second picture. Now closed, the St. Louis will be reopened with stage shows and first runs. The Missouri and New Grand Central will be second runs. The Shubert-Rialto will continue first run until the lease expires in September. The Hi-Point will remain second run.

With the purchase of Warners' 42 per cent stock interest for $195,000, Arthur is expected to be named a director of the St. Louis Amusement Co. and take an active part in the operation of the 20 neighborhood houses. Admissions are expected to be raised and giveaways eliminated entirely. This also applies to first and second runs in the downtown and Grand Ave. sections.

Charles Kurtzman, manager of the Ambassador, will be retained in that post, and Harry Greenman, manager of the Fox, will continue without change. Byron (Dinty) Moore, city manager for the Warners' three houses, and Robert Hicks, pilot of the Shubert-Rialto, will be asked to stay under the new setup. Leto Hill, supervisor of the St. Louis Amusement Co., is expected to be transferred by Warners to another territory.

With the [illegible]angement of runs and relighting of the New Grand Central and St. Louis, the F. & M. move will mark the first time in several years that all first and second runs on Grand Ave. and in the downtown business section will be operating full blast.

U. S. Pictures Dominate the Paris Houses

By PIERRE AUTRE

Paris, April 25.—American films are dominating the first run theatres of Paris. Of the 35 theatres in the city currently playing foreign product in original versions, 22 of which are first runs, American pictures are shown exclusively in 13.

Among the American films enjoying successful runs here are "I Dream Too Much," "I Found Stella Parish," "The Payoff," "Thanks a Million," "Prisoner of Shark Island," "Little Lord Fauntleroy," all in their third week; "Strike Me Pink," "If You Could Only Cook," "Rose of the Rancho," "Millions in the Air," in their second week; "Rendezvous," "Rose Marie," "Alice Adams," in the first week. "Modern Times" is playing its seventh week.

"The Ghost Goes West" is in its 12th week on the Champs Elysees. "Whom the Gods Love" and "Rhodes" are among the other more important English films showing here.

Pathe's Marignan is the only theatre on the Champs Elysees showing French pictures, and only five other houses on the boulevards are showing French films.

In the provinces, however, French films are ahead, as well as in the neighborhood districts of Paris. American films are shown in dubbed versions, and generally used as support for double bill programs. The bigger American films are shown as the main feature on the dual bills.

The opening of a new newsreel theatre on the Champs Elysees here has increased to 15 the number of such houses in the city. In general the theatres are connected with the daily newspapers. Four of them, part of the Reginald Ford Newsreel Theatres circuit, are connected with Le Journal. Another Ford house is working through L'Intransigeant. Three are connected with Paris Soir. Several of the houses are independently owned and operated.

Television experiments have been conducted in several theatres here during the past few weeks, but without conspicuous success. For the most part the pictures were transmitted from a room in the theatre, and shown on very small screens.

Patrons have been disappointed with the results, as they expected large and clear pictures. The experiments seem to be attracting very few patrons.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Desert Phantom"

(Haeckel-Supreme)

HOLLYWOOD, May 3. — Combining elements of mystery, suspense and romance, this picture emerges as an interesting action melodrama.

Johnny Mack Brown, a traveling ammunition salesman, is seeking the bandit responsible for the death of his sister. During his journey he meets Sheila Mannors, a ranch owner whose property is being attacked by a "phantom" killer. Ted Adams, Brown's bandit enemy, soon shows up, and a series of battles between the two follow.

When it seems most likely that Adams will also turn out to be the phantom, a switch is made in the plot, and the mysterious killer is revealed as Hal Price, who has appeared before this as a respectable town merchant. S. Roy Lubin, who directed, has handled these situations nicely, developing a suspense which does not suffer because of the trick denouement.

Karl Hackett, Charles King and Nelson McDowell give good performances in support. The screen play is by Earle Snell from an original story by E. B. Mann. The production is suitable throughout, and some good camera work has been done by Bert Longenecker. The picture should please followers of outdoor stories.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,046. Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

Overseas Preview

"The Robber Symphony"

(Concordia)

LONDON, April 25.—For specialized publics and for "art" theatres this is probably the biggest attraction offered from Europe since the outstanding post-war work from Germany.

Original to the point of freakishness, musically brilliant and pictorially of very great beauty, it is every bit as different as one would expect the first "composed" film to be. Music, story and direction are all by one man, Friedrich Feher, and the unity achieved is more than a skilful blending of sound, picture and dialogue. These three elements are used, in turn and together, to express a single artistic conception with a consistent rhythm.

The shortest description of the film is that it is a fantastic screen interpretation of a musical theme. Presenting a wildly impossible story of the theft and recovery of a fortune-teller's stockingful of money, it employs the methods of opera and of ballet and draws its incident and settings from the most far-fetched imaginings of the fairy-story teller. Its acting, definitely stylized, is on an amazingly high level.

Typical of the atmosphere is the whimsically absurd strategem adopted by a robber band to steal from the vagabond boy-hero the wheeled piano in which the stocking has been hidden. Scores of precisely similar pianos, drawn by identically seeming donkeys, are lined up by the side of the original and later driven after it through snow-drifts and over Alpine mountain tops.

This wild and light-hearted departure from the dullness of real life is the feature of many scenes, notably one in which the gendarmes are distracted in the search for the robbers by pianos which play to the left, right, front and rear in snow-drift, forest and precipice.

This delightful air of fantasy,—sometimes almost of nightmare,—attaches also to the characters, among whom are a clarinet and bassoon player, in Chaplin headgear, who bob in and out of the picture in company with a Main in a Straw Hat, a puppet maker's idea of a villain.

It will certainly delight, and puzzle a bit, the public that goes for Continental films. But don't, without seeing it, write it down as just an "art" film. It may be a real proposition, if it is handled right. See it, anyway, as a fine piece of screen imagination, backed by amazing technique.

Running time, 125 minutes. "G."

Short Subjects

"Adventures of Popeye"

(Paramount)

A novel departure from the regular procedure of cartoon, this strikes a new note for an entertaining short. Standard photography is used at the start and finish to illustrate what spinach will do for the young. A child is shown buying a copy of a Popeye cartoon book and later is roughed up by an older boy. As he sits on the ground crying, Popeye, on the book's cover, comes to life and shows him a few of his exploits in past pictures. A few shots from some old efforts are used to illustrate how spinach has always revived the sailor. The child is shown again eating spinach and encountering his former opponent. Production Code Seal No. 0613. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Underground Farmers"

(Van Beuren-RKO)

No. 5 in the "Struggle to Live" series, produced ably by H. L. and Stacy R. Woodward, this pictures, under the microscopic lens, the truly amazing activity of an ant colony in the South American jungle, which, seemingly organized with the utmost modern skill, yet behaving solely by instinct, carries on a completely self-contained community. Divided into various types of workers, the colony builds its underground stronghold, held against attack by large ants which are soldiers, and nothing else. The climax is an exciting and almost thrilling sequence, as two ant colonies fight to the death for possession of a new home. Production Code Seal No. 2,142. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"Victoria and Vancouver"

(FitzPatrick-M-G-M)

This is another sterling travel film, done in Technicolor, from the traveling cameras of James FitzPatrick. Hollywood Race Club May Be Given Permit

SACRAMENTO, May 3. — Governor Merriam indicated recently that he favored the granting of a permit for a horse racing track to the Hollywood Horse Racing Ass'n., rather than to the Golden State Jockey Club. Film stars and executives are represented in both organizations, Wallace Beery being president of the latter group.

The Governor's reason for favoring the Hollywood H. R. A. was the club's decision to give the major portion of its take to an old age pension fund after paying off the investment and taking six per cent interest.

Looking 'Em Over

"The Criminal Within"

(Invincible-Chesterfield)

A murder story with plenty of clews strewn about and many trails to follow, this melodrama is average entertainment for a double bill. The action and comedy are well mixed and there is enough excitement to satisfy.

John Miljan, a detective of some note, is on his vacation, at the same time doing some literary work. He gets himself involved with neighbors and is invited out. At a party all sorts of hints for possible crimes are evidenced and soon after he leaves Irene Ware three people are killed. The case is taken by the local police and soon solved, to their way of thinking. However, Miljan does further investigating for Miss Ware's satisfaction and uncovers new angles. There is a rather thrilling trap set and foiled and the piece gradually comes to a satisfactory conclusion when the real killer is found, shielded, and brings about her own end.

The performances by Miljan and Miss Ware are convincing. Iris Adrian delivers an excellent job, blending comedy with her interpretation of a golddigging blackmailer. The rest of the cast, including Noel Madison, Oscar Apfel and Barry Norton, deliver the goods.

Frank R. Strayer directed. Morton Lippincott penned the adequate screen play from a story by John W. Kraft.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Dracula's Daughter"

(Universal)

HOLLYWOOD, May 3.—A creditable successor to the original, "Dracula's Daughter" makes its debut as an efficient chiller, packing a nightmare twist that is certain to please the horror patrons. Backed with appropriate exploitation, the film should have little trouble packing them in where mystery chillers go.

Situations are built adequately for edge-of-the-seat suspense, with Gloria Holden showing potential promise and beauty in the sinister role of Dracula's blood relation. Like its predecessor, the story deals with a vampire who creates a reign of terror by emerging at night to satisfy a blood-curdling obsession and leaving a trail of dead.

Otto Kruger, as a psychiatrist, with the aid of Edward Van Sloan and Scotland Yard, uncovers Miss Holden as the vampire after a thrilling chase by plane from London to a mythical hamlet in Transylvania.

Dracula's daughter and her assistant, Irving Pichel, are effectively destroyed at the fadeout with a romantic thread linking Kruger and his secretary, Marguerite Churchill, at the finale.

Performances of the principals and the supporting cast are excellent. Lambert Hillyer has done a creditable job of directing, with George Robinson's photography aiding substantially. Garrett Ford did the story and screen play.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,019. Running time, 74 minutes. "G."

Baranco Is Promoted

Moe Baranco, who has been with Skouras for the past four years managing the Rivoli, Hempstead, L.I., and the Embassy, Port Chester, N.Y., in addition to other houses, has been named Jersey City district manager for the circuit, succeeding Al E. Kaye, resigned.

Prior to Baranco's joining Skouras, he was with Warners in Philadelphia.

The theatre last week added a third picture to the regular dual feature show, creating quite a furore with other first runs in the vicinity. Short Subjects

"Bridge Ahoy"

Bluto operates a ferry in this cartoon which features the spinach-eating mariner. His treatment of passengers disturbs Popeye who decides to build a bridge nearby where patrons may pass free. Bluto becomes enraged and starts to wreck the structure and Popeye, after the usual business has transpired, subdues him. A good cartoon offering. Production Code Seal, No. 0812. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"The Poodle"

(Paramount)

Having to do with the raising, care, training and exhibition of curly-haired dogs, this short is an appealing bit of entertainment. The dogs go through their paces, many fine types are shown and the photography does the rest. An intelligently spoken narrative blends humor with the interpretation of the finer points of the breed. It is tasteful and effective. Production Code Seal, No. 0799. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

not included in the original deal, which embraced 13. The other nine are made up of three Century circuit units and six Walter Reade houses.

Two of the three RKO theatres are second run. They are the Yorktown and Costello on upper Broadway. The third is the Strand, Yonkers, a first run, which will play the picture for four days at a date to be set shortly. The Yorktown will run the Max Reinhardt spectacle for a full week, beginning May 15. The Costello will start a three-day run on May 19.

Although the dates have not been decided upon, the Century trio in Long Island to play the picture for two and three days the latter part of the month are the Huntington, Huntington; Strand, Rockville Center; Beacon, Port Washington.

The half dozen Reade houses have not been definitely set, but one of the circuit's theatres in each of the towns listed will show the picture for three and four days the latter part of the month and early in June. The towns are: Asbury Park, Red Bank, Plainfield, Long Branch, Freehold and Perth Amboy in New Jersey. All situations will be first runs.

In practically all instances the two-a-day policy at upped prices will be a radical departure from programs which have been in vogue since the theatres opened.

Jefferson City Aims Taxes at Carnivals

Kansas City, May 3. — A bill providing for a license of $25 a day for carnivals carrying minstrels, athletic shows, riding devices and soft drink stands, with an additional $10 or $15 for each concession that does not quite assume the character of gambling, will be introduced in the City Council at Jefferson City, Mo., at its first meeting in May.

"It is, in effect," one of the proponents of the ordinance said, "a method of easing carnivals out of the picture in Jefferson City. Few carnivals will 'light' here with such an ordinance, nor will many concessions pay such a license."

The apparatus measures the electric voltage of nervous shocks. It will be a big help to those who want to make a film record of a hang-over.

Ross Federal Mushes Northward to Alaska

New Deal colonization of Alaska has forced exhibitors in the territory to keep the lights up through the six-months Arctic night, boosting business to new all-time high levels and presenting distributors with a new headache through their inability to check on the increased receipts.

The problem will be solved for the distributors in about two months, for northward with the course of percentage deals goes Ross Federal Service. W. H. Earles, manager of the Ross Seattle office, leaves today for Alaska to direct and train a new field force to operate in the chilblain belt. Headquarters will probably be established in Juneau and by July 1 there should be a Ross checker near the entrance to every cinematic igloo along the Bering seacoast.

Last reports mushed out of the territory handed Alaska a count of 17 theatres with a total seating capacity of about 10,000. Juneau, Nome and Ketchikan had three each.

Exhibitors Protest Free Gimbel Films

Philadelphia, May 3.—Downtown exhibitors have begun to object to Gimbel Brothers' free films to be shown four times daily for a month by the department store. The program consists of about an hour of screen entertainment culled from old-time films, including a William S. Hart western, a Chaplin and a collection of early newsreels.

Exhibitors are complaining that the shows will cut into their matinee grosses as they depend on the shoppers for much of their business. One exhibitor stated that he was going to advertise a "January White Sale." On the other hand, another exhibitor chalked it up to retribution. "If theatres give away dishes and home supplies, I suppose we can't object to a store giving away films," he said.

Highest Court Denies Metro "Lynton" Plea

Plagiarism Ruling Stands In Domain Case

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The U.S. Supreme Court today refused an interpretation of the copyright act as it applies to material in the public domain, in denying a petition by M-G-M, in which a number of other producers joined, for a review of the decision of the N.Y. Federal courts in the action involving the M-G-M picture, "Letty Lynton."

The suit, which was brought against the company by Edward Sheldon and Margaret Ayer Barnes, authors of the play, "Dishonored Lady," charged the film plagiarized the stage play. The U.S. District Court in 1934 found in favor of M-G-M, but the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reversed the lower court decision on Jan. 17, this year. The petition to the Supreme Court

Donat Denies Deal

London, May 4.—Robert Donat denies he has signed a two-picture deal with Max Schach of Capitol Prod. as stated by Schach recently.

WHY WE ARE NOT USING "SHOW BOAT" AS A ROAD-SHOW:

We are not entirely crazy in refusing to yield to the temptation to use "Show Boat" as a road-show.

Everybody who has seen it says it should be a road-show, with openings at high prices.

Under our contracts, we could do this, but we have a feeling that it would not be quite the proper thing to do.

We are asking all exhibitors who have "Show Boat" under contract to improve the terms of their contracts and they are doing it. They know as well as we do that we undersold it.

In fact they are so decent about it, so willing to meet us more than half way, that it would be a rather indecent thing for us to milk their territories with road-shows.

Therefore "Show Boat" will go to regular movie theatres when they need it most.

The new Universal starts off by offering the finest picture it has ever made without a single road-show—and it does so solely for the purpose of showing its good faith.

When you see "Show Boat" you will still think we are crazy for not road-showing it!

President, Universal Pictures

306-Allied Merger Moves Are Suspended

but for us, the word of Local 306 doesn't mean anything any more," the spokesman said.

When Allied and Local 306 began a cross-picketing campaign in the Bronx recently, the latter organization viewed the rupture as minor holding that this would not interrupt negotiations at the time. Local 306's attitude today has undergone a complete change.

Meanwhile, the Century circuit and Rugoff & Becker over the week-end went into Kings County Court and obtained an injunction against picketing by wives, relatives and friends of several Empire operators let out at the Midwood, Patio and Sheepshead. As soon as the operators were discharged, pickets began parading the three houses and Mitchell Klupt, attorney for Century, went into court.

In answer to Allied's charges, Local 306 yesterday stated:

"We are out to unionize every theatre in Greater New York. The so-called truce between Allied and Local 306 has been broken repeatedly by the action of Allied in reducing the wage scale of men employed in non-union houses. In accordance with the truce we said nothing, but when Allied began to picket our houses in the Bronx with the avowed object of reducing wages and increasing hours we determined to fight."

The rupture is said to have started when the University in the Bronx, employing Allied, changed ownership and switched to Local 306. Under the truce neither union was to bid for unionizing theatres employing the other union. When the Allied men were ousted at the University, the union's executives became irked and started to picket Loew's Grand, on the same street.

The number of houses Local 306 is picketing in the Bronx and Manhattan totals 21; in Brooklyn, 20; in Queens, five.

Rumanian Duties on Film Are Increased

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The increase in the "established value" of films and a corresponding increase in the ad valorem duty will have an adverse effect on distribution in Rumania, according to a report received by the U. S. Dep't of Commerce from Consul Sheldon T. Mills in Bucharest.

According to the new regulations, all imported merchandise is subject to a new 12 per cent ad valorem tax in addition to existing duties. An increase in the turnover tax was also effected by the adoption of new forms for determining value. It raises the "established value" on films from 1,500 lei per 100 kilograms to 2,300 lei, at which rate the regular 12½ per cent ad valorem tax is to be assessed.

Key Grosses Dip Slightly After Easter Week Boom

After their swift Easter week comeback grosses fell off slightly for the week ending April 20-24 to $1,703,822 in the 29 key cities reporting to MOTION PICTURE DAILY. This was $28,278 below the previous week.

The slight drop, however, still left the total well up among the high spots recorded since the opening of the current theatrical season last September. Grosses have been higher only seven times during this period; in mid-November, Christmas week, New Year's, in late February, mid-March and last week.

Pleasant spring weather usually has an adverse effect upon grosses, but so far this has not been apparent. At present 179 key city first runs are open. This figure compares with 180 first runs which were listed as open during the prevous week.

K. C. Insurance Rate For Robbery Raised

KANSAS CITY, May 4.—Costs of theatre operation have been increased here. Rates for holdup and robbery insurance have been increased from $27 to $50 per $1,000. This is applicable to Greater Kansas City, including Kansas City, Kan.

The rates, promulgated by the National Board of Surety & Casualty Underwriters approximately every two years on experience of the preceding three to five years, did not change for theatres in the out-state Kansas and Missouri territory. The St. Louis rate remained the same.

Burglary (forceful entry to the premises after closing) rates were reduced 25 per cent last July, and this reduction remains effective.

Kansas City now becomes one of the five places in the United States in which the highest rate is applied to risks under the robbery-holdup heading.

as for review of the Circuit Court f Appeals decision, which awarded e plaintiffs $21,000, plus attorneys' es, as damages for 84 showings of e film, based on the $250 minimum amage clause in the copyright laws.

In its petition, M-G-M pointed out at on the minimum damage basis, might be subject to penalties runng as high as $2,000,000 since the lm was played in 8,000 theatres.

Both the play and the picture were ased on the account of a poisoning rial in Scotland about 80 years ago, nd the material, it was contended by M-G-M, was in the public domain. he case was held to be of major imortance to the industry because of e effect of the decision on other picures founded on material in the pubc domain which is used by authors nd playwrights.

"The questions decided are of great nportance because they involve the onstruction of the copyright act, and heir decision directly affects the purose of said act as declared by the onstitution, and because of their effect pon a great industry of international cope which through the medium of notion pictures is engaged in the ramatization of historical events and tandard works in the public domain," M-G-M asserted in its petition. "They re of great importance in the trial f all copyright cases in the Federal ourts."

Plea Made by 18 Producers

The company was joined in its lea for review by 17 other producers nd distributors, including Twentieth entury-Fox, Warners, First Naional, Paramount, RKO, Columbia, Republic, Liberty, Resolute, B. F. Zeidman Prod., Stage and Screen Prod., Spectrum, DuWorld, Academy, Talisman, Aeolian and Aladdin.

"The film industry could not long ive nor progress without the free use of public domain material and treatments; nor do we think it was the purpose of the copyright act to restrict the legitimate use of the prior art nor the free and untrammeled use of existing dramatic rules and natural forms of treatment," the companies told the high court in their plea.

In their brief opposing the granting of the review, the authors declared that, "if even a 'very modest grade of art has in it something irreducible which is one man's alone,' the apprehension of amici curiae seems unwarranted, and if authors can be secure for limited times to the exclusive right to their writing, the useful arts will be promoted and the dearth of material visioned by the petitioners and amici curiae will in some measure be alleviated by stimulating their own writers to individual effort and encouraging other authors by the protection thus afforded."

casting of a ballot. However, only the principle of Article 12 was voted on, with the legal phase awaiting changes in the Guild constitution, as stipulated by the conservative element, which is now represented on the Guild board of directors.

The major producers, in an earlier meeting attended by Will Hays, Fred Beetson and Edwin Loeb and presided over by Irving Thalberg, met for a general discussion of the situation and declared they would fight any Guild effort to put through Article 12. There is no change in the producers' attitude with regard to the proposals to establish a closed shop for writers. It was declared that any plan to curb the free and independent relationship of producer and writer will be resisted to the utmost.

Kuhn, Loeb; Cravath Win On Para. Fees

Loeb & Co. a $25,000 fee. The bank had asked $100,000 and its petition had been denied in toto by Judge Coxe. Cravath, de Gersdorff, Swaine & Wood, whose petition for $150,000 was also denied in toto by Judge Coxe, was allowed $60,000 by the higher court, which found that both had been engaged by the Paramount bondholders' committee to prepare a reorganization plan and had substantially advanced such a plan by the time of the withdrawal of the two from the reorganization proceedings. The withdrawal followed the naming of officials of Kuhn, Loeb as defendants in an action for recovery brought on behalf of Paramount by the trustees in bankruptcy against former officers and directors of the company. Judge Coxe ruled that the withdrawals disqualified Kuhn, Loeb as reorganization managers and held that, therefore, neither the bank nor its attorners was entitled to fees.

Root, Clark, Buckner & Ballantine had asked a fee of $700,000 and were appealing from Judge Coxe's allowance of $200,000. Cook, Nathan & Lehman had petitioned $250,000 and were appealing from Judge Coxe's allowance of $150,000. The stockholders' committee appealed on behalf of Coverdale & Colpitts, which had asked $30,000 and was awarded $18,000.

Five additional petitioners are appealing from Judge Coxe's rulings on fees and their arguments will be heard by the circuit court during the first week of June.

It was reported yesterday that Paramount might ask a writ of certiorari of the U. S. Supreme Court in a further contest of the allowances made yesterday to Kuhn, Loeb and its counsel.

Looking 'Em Over

"F-Man"

(Paramount)

Taking a few comedy pokes at the G-Man type of film yarn, this picture has some amusing moments, for which Jack Haley, an entertaining comedian, is chiefly responsible. As the small town soda jerker who goes to the city to be a G-Man, Haley succeeds in getting in the way, but emerges victorious—and cured.

The film should be good general audience stuff, and probably will get best results if it is sold for what it is, comedy, with accent on Haley as the big-little G-Man.

Haley is given a big sendoff by the townsfolk and his best girl, Adrianne Marden. when he goes off to be a G-Man. But to the Federal men in town he is a first class pest. He gets a job behind a soda fountain, and is disconcerted when Miss Marden drops in upon him unexpectedly. When the Federal man, William Frawley, in order to dispose of him once and for all, puts him through a framed "test," in a gymnasium, the result is really entertaining comedy.

Mistaking a picture of the head of the office for a wanted desperado, Haley the ambitious knocks out the Federal chief and finds himself without the "F-Man" designation Frawley had given him. Meanwhile, without knowing it, he had been running errands for the criminal, living nearby. His final example of detection comes when he spoils Frawley's attempt to trap the gangster, who takes Frawley and Miss Marden in attempting to escape. Haley follows them, and finally aids Frawley in making his capture, although he is wounded. Then, with Frawley's congratulations in his ears, Haley and Miss Marden plan to open a drug store after they are married.

Set Quiz on Alleged Fraud on Bank Night

LEXINGTON, Ky., May 4.—County Judge W. E. Nichols tentatively has set tomorrow for a court of inquiry to determine if frauds have been perpetrated in the awarding of Bank Night prizes at Lexington theatres. Commonwealth's Attorney James Park requested Judge Nichols to hold the inquiry after John B. Elliott, president and general manager of the Phoenix Amusement Co., had asked him to make a thorough investigation, after hearing reports that the name of the winner of a $500 prize had been known to a number of persons as early as 11 A. M. the day of the drawing.

Mrs. J. C. Carrier, the winner, told Park she had been informed that she would be permitted to win the $500 if she would agree to turn back all but $50 of the prize money to those "fixing" the drawing. This "fixing." Park said, was done without the knowledge of the theatre management. Elliott said he wanted the entire matter exposed, no matter who might be guilty of the fraud. He said the Phoenix Amusement theatres here immediately will discontinue Bank Nights. as well as Screeno and Sweepstakes.

reinstated at any time should this condition not be met.

It was suggested that the companies think they can save their rights by fighting the St. Louis case through to the end, and, by securing a Supreme Court review, might forestall any further action in New York on the ground that the Government had brought them into court once and had moved for a dismissal.

No decision has been reached by department officials as to how they will meet this move, but it is expected they will call the court's attention to the effect of the New York agreement.

Majors Charge Harassment in Appeal Papers

Government Insists It Had Dismissal Right

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, May 5.—Deliberate harassment of the industry is charged against the Dep't of Justice by the defendants in the St. Louis anti-trust suit in their brief in support of their petition for U. S. Supreme Court review of the dismissal of the case without prejudice by Judge Molyneaux.

While the Dep't. of Justice stated yesterday that no decision had been reached as to whether the case would be fought, it was disclosed today that it was opposing the granting of the petition on the ground that the Government has an "absolute right" to dismiss cases without prejudice.

In their brief, the distributors made it clear that they believe themselves to be the object of a definite campaign by the department to secure a decision in the Government's favor, regardless of how many courts it might have been necessary to appeal to had the New York suit not been terminated by stipulation.

Pointing out that the Government, in enforcing the Sherman Law, has a choice of either civil or criminal

Fight Awaited Upon B. & K.'s. Dualing Plan

Other Chicago Operators Bitterly Opposed

CHICAGO, May 5.—B. & K. will have a fight on their hands in the light of their decision to go double feature in all of their theatres outside the Loop.

Independents and other circuit operators are drastically opposed to the policy shift which John Balaban told MOTION PICTURE DAILY on Monday was dictated by the success of twin bills in other cities. They assert they propose opposing the B. & K. proposal to the last ditch and cite the fact that all contracts for film service here provide for single feature programs, not doubles. Exchanges, on the other hand, assert contracts can be altered to meet the dual demands of B. & K., if necessary.

Doubles have been out of Greater Chicago since October, 1932. Their return inevitably will throw theatre business into an uproar particularly in view of the Balabans' plan to swing into them this season. Commitments already made B. & K. on next year's product would change the situation and make the reinstatement of duals an easy procedure. However, to start them at the tail end of this year is like lighting a keg of dynamite.

Dissension in Writers Guild As 13 Resign

HOLLYWOOD, May 5. — Thirteen members have resigned from the Writers' Guild, it is admitted. Dissension is believed to have crept into the writers' ranks as a result of the insistence of some of the guild membership on a closed shop and the producers' ultimatum that they will fight any such demand.

Earlier this week it was stated by the guild that a unanimous vote had approved the plan to change the bylaws so the guild can affiliate with the Authors' League.

The guild admission that resignations had taken place was to silence

Zukor to Head Production in Company Shift

Will Be Made President Of Studio Subsidiary

Adolph Zukor will be placed in executive charge of Paramount's production operations under a plan of corporate "decentralization" which will accord increased authority to the heads of the company's six principal operating divisions, it was learned yesterday.

Zukor's coast trip is said to be in line with the current plan of departmentalized operations which, if the plan matures as proposed at this time, may require his presence at the studio for an extended period. Indications are that Zukor, who is at present chairman of the board of the studio subsidiary, Paramount Prod., Inc., will be elected president of that company in assuming his new production assignment. John E. Otterson, who is president of the subsidiary company, will replace Zukor as chairman of the board. The shift in the corporate executive posts does not affect William LeBaron's position as head of production.

In the corporate decentralization move Famous Theatres Corp., the Paramount theatre holding company,

Jones Sees Color as Only Screen Medium

Color as virtually supplanting the black and white technique, and the time when the latter will be as obsolete as silent pictures are today, were foreseen yesterday by Robert Edmond Jones, set designer for the stage and screen, who has just returned from the coast. Jones recently completed color work on "Dancing Pirate" for Pioneer and expressed more than a little enthusiasm for the medium. He declared there is a real necessity of complete standardization of projection lamps and screens in theatres in order to insure uniformity of reproduction of color films. At present, he said, such reproduction varies greatly in different theatres.

As sound followed the silent, color will follow black and white, and television will follow color as an entertainment medium, in Jones' opinion. The cost of color, now about one-third greater than black and white, will come down when there is a greater demand for its use, Jones said. He is firm in the belief that color will be as effective a medium for filming a modern story as it is for costume pictures, to which it has been confined for the most part up to now.

Jones is here now to discuss the planned production of "Othello" on the Broadway stage in the fall with Max Gordon, who will produce it. He will return to the coast in about two weeks for conferences with Walter Huston, who will star in the play. Jones expects to return here in July, but hopes to go back to Hollywood and pictures in the fall, although no definite arrangements have been made as yet.

Mo. Supreme Court Accepts State Suit

KANSAS CITY, May 5.—Sitting en banc, the Missouri Supreme Court has accepted the quo warranto proceedings of Attorney General Roy McKittrick. By issuing the writ the court assumes jurisdiction and will hear argument and testimony.

McKittrick recently filed the proceedings against General Theatrical Enterprises, Vitagraph, Paramount and RKO at St. Louis, and against Fox Midwest, Twentieth Century-Fox, Columbia, M-G-M, Paramount, RKO, Vitagraph, United Artists and Universal at Kansas City.

The St. Louis phase of the proceedings grew out of the Federal anti-trust suit there; the Kansas City phase out of the conspiracy suit of a group of independents headed by Emanuel Rolsky, president of the I. T. O., which, now in U. S. District Court here, is based on zoning and protection.

What effect the settlement of the Federal suit in St. Louis will have is not clear yet.

"Little Egypt" Case Will Be Heard Today

Hearing on the suit of Mrs. Frieda Spyropoulos of Chicago for an injunction against M-G-M to prevent the showing of "The Great Ziegfeld" and for an award of $25,000 damages is scheduled for this morning in N. Y. Supreme Court.

Mrs. Spyropoulos says she is the "Little Egypt" of the World's Fair of 1893 and that the portrayal of herself without her consent.

New Music Contract Sets a Closed Shop

A two-year contract calling for a closed shop, minimum wages and hours and a basic price list for arrangers on piece work was signed by Local 802 of the A. F. M. and officials of the Music Publishers' Protective Ass'n, effecting a settlement of the month's strike by the union, as published in MOTION PICTURE DAILY yesterday. Arrangers, copyists and proofreaders returned to work yesterday. The contract is with the 35 members of the M. P. P. A., but 44 independent publishers previously had signed individual agreements. There remain 13 firms still outside of the union agreements.

The agreement calls for the following minimum of $75 for arrangers, $40 for proofreaders, $35 for copyists and studio pianists; a 37-hour week for all employes, no reduction in existing salaries, a basic price list for piece work, two weeks' severance notice and the use of Local 802's stamp on all music manuscripts. All skilled workers not members of the union have until May 15 to join. After that date, the closed shop will go into effect.

Cantor Will Speak On Palestine Fund

Eddie Cantor will address a group of film executives at a luncheon of the Cinema Club at the Hotel Algonquin today, on behalf of the United Palestine Appeal. He will urge the support of the drive to aid in the development of Palestine as a refuge for Jews from various European countries.

Lee Studying Scripts

Rowland V. Lee, director of "One Rainy Afternoon," who arrived from the coast yesterday, has not yet determined on his next picture, he said. He is reading five or six scripts which he brought with him from Hollywood, and expects to make a decision within a few days. The scripts he is studying are from various producers, he said. He has no contract commitments at present. He will remain here for two weeks. during which he will attend the opening of "One Rainy Afternoon" at the Rivoli next Wednesday.

Palugyay from Bucharest, Roumania, to Budapest; Franz Sieter to Bucharest; A. Lichtscheindl, district manager for Austria, Jugoslavia and Roumania, with headquarters in Vienna, takes over Hungary as well.

Howard to Produce And Act in a Film

CHICAGO, May 5.—Leslie Howard, en route to England with Mrs. Howard and their son, said today: "I'll be gone six months. My present plans call for my producing a picture myself. The story will be 'Bonnie Prince Charlie.'

"I'll try to hire myself for the lead," he added, "and will probably windup directing myself. The picture will be shot in Scotland early this fall for Warner release.

"Chicago must be a nice place; you don't have double features here."

John Considine, Jr., also en route to Europe with Mrs. Considine, said: "I am looking for backgrounds for my next film musical, 'Hats in the Air,' starring Eleanor Powell and Robert Taylor. Scenes will be laid in England. We have found the formula for musicals and expect to sign several novelty acts in England."

Considine has just signed a new long term M-G-M contract.

Hanbury Is Chosen Leishman Successor

LONDON, May 5.—Ralph Hanbury has been named to succeed E. D. Leishman as chairman and managing director of RKO Pictures, Ltd., Radio's British organization. Leishman resigned early last month.

Hanbury started in the industry with the Stoll Film Co., rising from branch manager to general manager and holding the latter position for five years. He joined the Welsh-Pearson Co. at its inception as general manager, and after three years went to M-G-M for a short while as branch supervisor, leaving there to join Radio when the firm was started here. He was general manager at the time of his promotion.

proceedings, the distributors told the court that in their case the department chose to invoke both, and after losing the criminal suit, instituted civil proceedings.

Discussing the dismissal of the case, it was explained that the court held it was without discretion to deny the Government's motion, but, the brief declared, explaining the situation which led up to the dismissal, "If there ever was a case in which a dismissal without prejudice should have been denied, it was this case."

"Clearly," it was contended, "if, in any situation, a plaintiff should be required to proceed or subject himself to a dismissal with prejudice, the situation existing at the time the Government's motion in this case was made is such a situation.

"If the Government is right in its contention that its right to dismiss without prejudice is absolute, then it can continue the process of bringing suit, trying its case, and then dismissing before it formally rests, thus indefinitely harassing and annoying the defendants with successive, unsuccessful efforts to prove them guilty, first in one court and then in another, on a charge of which they have already been acquitted.

"By this ingenious procedure the Government is at liberty to inflict upon the innocent persons pecuniary loss and damage far in excess of the maximum $5,000 fine provided by Congress for those found guilty of violating the Sherman Law."

The court is expected to announce whether it will grant the appeal before it adjourns its term next month, but, if granted, the case cannot be heard before next Fall.

Kent and Schenck Deny Gaumont Buy

"Twentieth Century-Fox had not at any time now or in the future contemplated buying control of Gaumont British, nor did they seek to do so."

A. C. Blumenthal, promoter, is generally credited with inspiring stories about the sale of the control of G. B. He has been here from New York for some months working on various deals of which G. B. appears to be his pet.

Bernerd Also Denies

Jeffrey Bernerd yesterday added to the official denial made in London of any move on the part of Twentieth Century-Fox to acquire control of G. B. He said, in part:

"In fact, far from contemplating retirement from the business, the company is going ahead with expansion plans of greater scope. In connection with these plans, the company's program of pictures for next season's release in America has been increased from 16 to 24 productions. Each one of these pictures will be of the 'A' type, first-line calibre; and the entire set-up of 24 have been budgeted accordingly."

they considered their best efforts in one division or another. For example, while Universal was not represented in the trade paper display, it was in the pressbook division. Twentieth Century-Fox was the only major company which did not enter any phase of the competition.

Those of the judges who were not present yesterday will vote at a later date and all ballots will be kept secret until the decisions are announced at an Ampa luncheon later this month.

Judges who voted in the trade paper ad group yesterday were Martin Quigley, Jack Alicoate, Elias Sugarman, Tom Hamlin, Jay Emanuel, Charles E. Lewis, Joe Gallagher, Red Kann and Joseph E. Hanson, executive vice-president of the Frank Presbrey Advertising Agency. Gerald Lauck, vice-president in charge of the New York office of N. W. Ayer & Son, Philadelphia, was absent.

Judges who voted in the best ad addressed to the public were Hanson, Charles McD. Puckette, assistant to the publisher of The New York Times; Karl Egge, advertising manager of Bloomingdale's; George T. Delacorte, Jr., magazine publisher, and Harry Carey, assistant to Robert L. Johnson, vice-president in charge of advertising of Time. Bernarr Macfadden, Frank W. Walton, advertising director of John Wannamaker's, and Lauck were absent.

In the best poster field, votes were cast by the entire group aside from F. S. Dieterich, advertising director of Mennen's, who failed to appear. In this group were Hugh Philbin, assistant to Barron G. Collier; Fred G. Cooper, poster designer and color expert; Ben Nash, poster color designer; Frank Quinn, metropolitan advertising manager for Philco, and William A. Adriance, art director of Dorrance, Sullivan & Co., and Hanson.

The press sheet award will be determined by a straight exhibitor vote. Ballots were cast yesterday by Walter Vincent and Harry Brandt. W. G. Van Schmus appeared for a few minutes, but was represented by James H. MacFarland. Yet to vote in this classification are Ed Kuykendall, Ed Fay, Edward L. Hyman and Si Fabian.

rate on the notes from six per cent to four per cent. This reduction has been consistently urged by Federal Judge William Bondy since early in the RKO receivership proceedings, but Consolidated Film had declined to agree to the reduction. The transaction was solely for the purpose of obtaining the lower interest rate, it was stated by A. H. McCausland, representative of Irving Trust Co. as RKO trustee. The deal was brought about by McCausland and Walton Ament of Donovan, Newton, Leisure & Lumbard, trustee's counsel.

The notes represent the unpaid balance of an original issue of $6,000,000 given to Commercial Investment Trust and Chemical Bank & Trust Co. on July 1, 1931. There was $1,825,208 of the notes outstanding when RKO went into receivership in January, 1932, and this had been reduced to $1,500,000 when Consolidated acquired them from the banks two years ago. Subsequent reductions brought the amount outstanding to $975,000 at the time of yesterday's transaction. Bank of America acquired the notes at par. The interest saving is estimated at $40,000 to $50,000.

The notes are subject to a retirement agreement which provides for $25,000 of face amount maturing on the first of every month up to March, 1937, and at $50,000 a month thereafter. RKO reserves the right to retire the balance outstanding at any time by a payment in full.

If Nathanson retires from the company, or if he should die, the option will lapse.

An excellent public response has been reported on the new bond issue of Famous Players. All of the three per cent and three and one-half percent serial bonds, aggregating $2,100,000, were sold immediately, it was officially announced, and there has been a heavy demand from trust, insurance and other companies as well as private investors in all parts of Canada for the four and one-half per cent bonds maturing in 1951. The amount of these bonds is $5,000,000. No less than 22 bond houses are handling the issue.

He resigned some time ago from the boards of RKO, the parent company, and from Keith-Albee-Orpheum, the principal theatre subsidiary, with Yandell succeeding him in each instance.

The meeting of the RKO Radio Pictures board is reported to have ratified the company's part in the recent settlement of the St. Louis suit, in which it was a defendant.

will be dissolved, it is planned. Y Frank Freeman will continue i charge of the company's theatre operations as head of the theatre department. He is a vice-president of the parent company, Paramount Pictures Inc., and will administer the theatre department under that title. John W. Hicks, Jr., also a vice-president of the parent company, continues in charge of the foreign operations. Paramount International, the subsidiary for foreign operations, has already been dissolved.

Neil Agnew continues as vice-president in charge of distribution. R. E. Anderson will continue to head the financial department as a vice-president of the parent company, and Austin C. Keough, secretary of the parent company, continues as head of the legal department.

Under this plan Otterson would remain as the over-all head in his post of president of the parent company.

Brandt Asks Mayor To Settle Dispute

As a result of a rupture in the negotiations among the local operator unions, which has been followed by a renewed cross-picketing campaign in Manhattan, Bronx and Brooklyn. Harry Brandt, head of the I.T.O.A., yesterday sent Mayor LaGuardia a letter asking him to step into the situation in an effort to bring about a peace pact.

Brandt's letter goes into considerable detail about the negotiations between the I.T.O.A. and Local 306 and states that despite the approval by the exhibitors of increases from 15 to 30 per cent in their present scales, the union walked out on the deal.

In closing, Brandt states: "We would ask that you take some means of consolidating these unions, meaning Allied, Local 306 and Empire, and effectuate a contract with the theatre owners that would arrange for arbitration of any controversial point. I might say at this time that the theatre owners have always been willing to arbitrate and have always been willing to accept your arbitrator."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Jailbreak"

(Warners)

HOLLYWOOD, May 5.—Despite the title, this picture is essentially a murder mystery laid within the walls of a state penitentiary. Joseph King, reformed racketeer, has had himself committed to the jail to avoid becoming involved in a fur robbery. A gang of fur robbers led by Richard Purcell is sent to the same prison after being turned in by Craig Reynolds, a reporter. Purcell, thinking that King has turned stool pigeon, swears vengeance. Charles Middleton, a prison guard, also has a grudge against King.

King is murdered in his cell and suspicion falls on two, after which a third motive for the slaying is introduced when it is discovered that King had confided to June Travis, his secretary, that he had a fortune cached on the outside. Reynolds, the reporter, then seeks the murderer on the theory that robbery was the reason for the crime. Meanwhile, Barton MacLane, police captain, is working on revenge as the motive. Eventually the Reynolds theory is proved correct and MacLane is made to look ridiculous. A mild romantic plot unites Reynolds and Miss Travis at the finish.

The acting in general is good, although stellar names are missing. Competent supporting performances are offered by George E. Stone, Joseph Crehan and Henry Hall. Robert D. Andrews and Joseph Hoffman did the screen play from a story by Jonathan Finn. Nick Grinde directed under the supervision of Bryan Foy. The picture makes good average entertainment.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,072. Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

"Sins of Man"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, May 5.—Jean Hersholt scores a personal triumph in this beautifully produced tearjerker which reeks with sentimentality in its relentless determination to send the audience out red-eyed.

Hersholt plays a simple Swiss bellringer who disowns his older son when the lad insists on being an airplane mechanic instead of following his father as a church sexton. Hersholt's love centers on his youngest son, born deaf, and he journeys to New York in an attempt to arrange an operation for the child. The elder son is killed in a plane crash immediately after his reconciliation with his father, who is stranded in New York when war wipes out his native village and with it his younger son. Wonderful makeup shows Hersholt as an ancient derelict. At the end of the film he hears a symphony in which the melody of his church bells is dominant and in a highly emotional scene discovers the famous composer and conducter is his son whose hearing has been restored by the bombardment.

Don Ameche is assured an important screen career by his interestingly contrasted work as both brothers. J. Edward Bromberg and Ann Shoemaker are excellent as the simple peasant folk. The unusually fine cast includes Allen Jenkins, De Witt Jennings, Fritz Leiber, Francis Ford, Christian Rub, Adrian Rosley, Gene Reynolds, Mickey Rentschler, John Miltern, Paul Stanton, Edward Van Sloan, Egon Brecher, Fred Kohler, Jr., Maxine Reiner and Ruth Robinson under the joint direction of Otto Brower and Gregory Ratoff.

The screen play is by Samuel Engel, based on "Job" by Joseph Roth, and was adapted by Frederick Kohner and Ossip Dymow. Kenneth MacGowan produced handsomely.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,153. Running time, 86 minutes. "G."

20th-Fox Wins Suit

Twentieth Century-Fox yesterday was victorious in a suit brought against David Sohmer, operating the St. Albans, St. Albans, L. I., for $107 as a percentage allegedly due on the showing of "Thanks a Million." Louis Nizer, representing the distributor, claimed this money was due under an oral arrangement which provided for 30 per cent of the receipts. Sohmer held that an application he made for the picture had been rejected, but Joe Lee, Richard Gledhill and M. Seymour of the local exchange testified that the oral agreement supplanted the rejected application.

Night Meetings Stay

Periodical meetings of local branch managers will be held evenings at the New York Film Board, as heretofore, it was decided yesterday at a special meeting. Because of the summer and the desire of some branch heads to leave town early, the question of eliminating the night sessions was discussed and dropped.

Looking 'Em Over

"La Canzone Del Sole"

(Nuovo Mondo)

The latest importation from Italy by Nuovo Mondo, this romantic comedy-drama features the Italian opera star, Giacomo Lauri-Volpi and offers something for lovers of good music everywhere since the singer is in fine voice in the several numbers he renders. Subtitle translations of the Italian dialogue make it a simple matter to follow the trend of the story.

The music was written by Pietro Mascagni, and is entirely enjoyable. For Italian audiences anywhere the film should be easily sold and thoroughly enjoyed. Outside of the music and the appearance of Lauri-Volpi, there is comparatively little in the story itself to draw the patronage of the average American lacking a knowledge of the language.

The story, one of mistaken identity and romance, is set in Berlin, Venice, Rome and Capri. Lilliane Dietz, ambitious to be a singer, hears Volpi but does not see him. An agent seeks to sign the star to a contract, but is told to see the star's lawyer in Venice. But he is sentenced to three days in jail for insulting a policeman and asks the girl to go for him, mailing postcards en route, since he is afraid to tell his wife of his arrest. In Venice the girl mistakes the lawyer for the singer; he does not tell her who he is and they travel about Italy, falling in love.

The agent, released, goes to Italy, while his wife follows when she receives all the postcards at once, which are mailed together accidentally. When the girl learns the truth she leaves for Berlin, but stops off to hear Volpi sing. In return for reconciling the lawyer and the girl, the agent gets the contract and is able to appease his wife.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 85 minutes. "G."

"We Are from Kronstadt"

(Amkino)

In 1919 the Red Army was faced with difficulty as it fought White troops in the vicinity of Petrograd. A detachment of marines from Kronstadt on the Baltic was enlisted and went to the relief of the embattled rebels. They were defeated and a lone survivor made his way back to the base, roused the remaining marines, returned to the scene and scored a victory as they relieved the intrenched troops who were about to be overcome. This is the historical background on which this Soviet importation is based. Of course it glorifies the revolution and may be of interest to the audiences who rabidly attend the "little" theatres for their entertainment.

The situations are well done after the Russian fashion and the camera work, particularly the scenes on the battlefields, is superb. The film has English subtitles which effectively transmute the thread of the story.

The scenario is by Vsevolod Vishnevsky. E. Dzigan directed and N. Naumov-Straj did the photography. In the cast are names perhaps somewhat familiar to American audiences. The outstanding performances are given by V. Zaichikov and G. Bushuev.

No production code seal. Running time, 93 minutes. "G."

A group of notables, appearing as individuals and residents of the district, appeared before License Commissioner Paul Moss to protest the granting of a license for the project to Goelet. A. F. A. Affiliation With Guild Is Voted Legal formalities necessary to the conclusion of the affiliation of the American Federation of Actors and the Screen Actors' Guild on the coast, are expected to be completed shortly without difficulty, Ralph Whitehead, executive secretary of the A. F. A., said yesterday. At the annual meeting of the organization the membership had voted unanimously for affiliation, following the reading of a letter by Whitehead from Kenneth Thompson of the guild, indicating that group had approved affiliation. The agreement will be much the same as that between the Guild and Actors' Equity, Whitehead said.

The affiliation provides for mutual recognition between the two groups, making it unnecessary for a screen player to register with the A.F.A. when appearing in vaudeville, on the stage and the like. The A. F. A. meeting elected Eddie Cantor, Sophie Tucker, Fred Keating, Ed Lowry, Eddie Miller, Frank Lynch, Sid Williams and John Dilson to fill eight vacancies on the council. The membership unanimously voted the council's plan for a death benefit system to be effective in the fall.

A delegation from the stagehands' union presented Whitehead a silver gavel and block in recognition of his work "in behalf of organized labor" on the Federal theatre project. Whitehead will leave shortly on a cross-country trip, during which he will establish an office in Los Angeles.

Cocalis Fined by Court

Sam Cocalis, as head of Sprinco Amusement Corp., was fined $100 for contempt of court yesterday by Judge Louis Goldstein, for failure to appear on April 9 in response to a third party order. Cocalis had been called in connection with a judgment obtained by Columbia for breach of contract against New Union Theatre, Inc., operating the New Union in Brooklyn. Sprinco now operates the house. When Cocalis failed to appear, Phillips & Nizer, Columbia attorneys, moved that he be punished for contempt. The fine followed.

End Moves to Make Deal on RKO's Debts

uled to oppose the allowance of the claim. It is understood that the basis of the opposition will be both the penalty clause in the Rockefeller Center leases which made RKO liable for the unamortized construction costs of the Music Hall and Center and, also, the provision in Section 77-B of the Federal Bankruptcy Laws limiting the liability of a bankrupt under defaulted leases to a three-year period. The Rockefeller Center leases, however, were worded so as to make the lessee liable for the full period of the lease in the event of receivership or bankruptcy. Whether the lease provision circumvents the Federal law has not yet been determined in the courts as no similar lease has been tested yet.

If the RKO trustee is successful on both grounds the claim stands a chance of being reduced to the amount of three years' rent on the Music Hall and Center, a total of $3,600,000.

Even if the claim were to be allowed at this amount, Rockefeller Center still would be the largest, single unsecured creditor of RKO, and as such one of the important factors in the reorganization of the company. The huge claim has been one of the principal obstacles to the advancement of a plan of reorganization for RKO during the past year. Its settlement, either in court or out of court, would permit rapid progress on a plan.

Allowance Recommended

Thomas D. Thacher, former Solicitor General, acted as a special master last summer to decide on the merits of the claim and recommended to Federal Judge William Bondy that the claim be allowed at $9,100,000. His recommendation held that the Federal three-year rent limitation did not apply in the case of the Rockefeller Center leases. Thacher is of counsel for Atlas Corp., which, in association with Lehman Bros., acquired one-half of RCA's interest in RKO and an option on the remainder subsequent to his recommendation on the Rockefeller Center claim. Atlas and Lehman now are major factors in the RKO reorganization and as such are vitally interested in having Thacher's recommendation reversed. The RKO trustee filed exceptions to the Thacher report last summer and the matter was scheduled for Federal court hearings before Judge Bondy but has been postponed numerous times while the settlement negotiations continued.

Sherman, Conn Return

Hollywood, May 6.—Harry Sherman and Maurice Conn returned here today from New York.

Fleischer Damages Approved by Court

Judge Woolsey in Federal court here yesterday approved the recommendation of Special Master Theodore S. Kenyon on damages and costs in the action of the Fleischer Studio and Cameo Doll Co., against Ralph Freundlich, Inc., doll manufacturer, for copyright infringement in the manufacture of Betty Boop dolls. Damages of $5,540 were awarded the plaintiffs, Fleischer Studio, Fleischer Art Service, Inc., and Cameo, and costs of $2,000. Woolsey also approved counsel fees for Phillips & Nizer, attorneys for the plaintiffs, of $15,000, almost three times as much as the amount of the damages.

Judge Woolsey, in approving the fees, declared the most important thing in a copyright case was not merely the damages, but the preservation of the copyright. He declared the attorneys had salvaged the copyrighted character Betty Boop, which had been attacked by the defendants, and in view of the unique nature of the case and the work of Phillips & Nizer, he considered the designated fee as justified, despite the fact that it was apparently out of proportion to the damages.

The action was begun three years ago, when Woolsey decided in favor of the plaintiffs. His decision was upheld in 1935 by the Circuit Court of Appeals and the U.S. Supreme Court, which sustained the injunction to restrain Freundlich from further manufacture of the dolls. Cameo was a licensee of Fleischer in the production of such dolls.

It was pointed out that the decision is unique in the allowance of the large amount of attorney fees in proportion to damages, and in its protection of a cartoon copyright against infringement by a three-dimension figure.

Judge Woolsey, in his approval opinion, set an important point in declaring that he is turning over to Lamar Hardy, United States attorney for the district, evidence taken from the report of the special master, that Ralph Freundlich filed a false account of the sales of the infringing dolls. He suggested investigation by the U.S. attorney looking toward a possible citation for contempt against Freundlich and an indictment for perjury against him.

That phase of the decision was indicated as important in pointing out how far a court will go in the instance of fraudulent accounting.

Hutchinson Given Admittance

Edward L. Hutchinson, night club operator, yesterday won an order from Justice Lloyd Church in N.Y. Supreme Court permitting him to see "Go Into Your Dance" in the Warner projection room and to copy from the script portions of the dialogue which, he charges, represent him as a "big shot racketeer."

Hutchinson is suing for $500,000 on the ground that he has been libeled.

New Setup for Center

Special Referee David L. Weil yesterday filed a report in N.Y. Supreme Court recommending a reorganization of Film Center, Inc., 9th Ave. and 45th St. by means of a foreclosure sale. The petitioner is the Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co., trustee under a first mortgage for $1,900,000 and a second mortgage for $300,000 dated April 23, 1928.

The report recommends a minimum bid of $50,000 by the trustee, the formation of a new company and the issue of a new mortgage for $1,900,000, with the bonds to be distributed among the first and second mortgage bondholders.

Jimmy Sileo has Toscanini's autograph on a photograph. He's quite enthusiastic about it, because he had to pry his way through a collection of detectives and others to get it on the Champlain.

Laemmle Quiz Order Issued

A motion for examination before trial was filed in N.Y. Supreme Court yesterday by Nettie Goldstein, as assignee for Max Seltzer, in a suit for $10,000 against Universal. The plaintiff seeks to examine Carl Laemmle.

The suit is based on an allegation that on Aug. 1, 1934, in The Saturday Evening Post, Universal asked for ideas and suggestions on production of films; that Seltzer furnished ideas, and that these were embodied in "The Man Who Reclaimed His Head" and "The Good Fairy" without compensation to Seltzer.

Universal has filed a general denial.

Orpheum Hearing Set

Referee in Bankruptcy Oscar W. Ehrhorn's report on Orpheum Circuit, Inc., will come up for hearing May 13. He recommends that because of general theatre conditions now the trustees file suits to realize upon the circuit's claims.

The voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed by the circuit Jan. 27, 1933. In his fourth intermediary report on Sept. 26, 1933, Ehrhorn indicated there was a cash balance of $2,343, and that a total of 586 claims against the company aggregated $5,577,855.

End Nebraska Rate War

Nebraska City, Neb., May 6.—The long price war between W. J. Seydlitz, manager of the Overland, and the Paramount and Booth theatres, managed by Bob and Wes Booth, has ended with the scale being forced up from 15 cents to 30 cents on Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The remaining three days will see a scale of 25 cents. The Paramount, the Booth Brothers' "B" house, will have a 20-cent charge for the first three days; 30 cents on Wednesday and 15 cents on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Children will be a dime at all times in all houses.

conferring with the exhibitor committee.

Definite notice was received yesterday that Morgan Walsh of San Francisco, a member of the M.P.T.O.A. executive committee, would be unable to attend the coming sessions with individual companies. The exhibitor committeee, as a result, will include Kuykendall, Jack Miller, O. C. Lam, Lewen Pizor and L. C. Griffith. Kuykendall and Griffith are due here from Oklahoma City Sunday or Monday. The other members of the committee are expected late Monday, by which time Kuykendall is expected to have his schedule of meetings with the individual distributors set. The first will probably be held on Tuesday or Wednesday.

Sales and executive heads of all the participating distributors with the exception of Twentieth Century-Fox and United Artists will be available for the meetings next week. John D. Clark of Twentieth Century-Fox and George J. Schaefer of United Artists will be in Hollywood. Meetings with these companies, therefore, will be scheduled in accordance with their return to New York. It is expected that the eight company meetings will occupy more than two weeks.

While requests for representation on the exhibitor committee have been received by the M.P.T.O.A. from other exhibitor organizations, it is understood that the committee will accept proxies from any exhibitor unit supporting its 10-point trade practice program, but is opposed to enlarging the committee. The M.P.T.O.A. stand is dictated by the fear that a large committee might split on its own objectives and jeopardize concessions which some of the eight distributors already have indicated they would be willing to give.

Two Hundred Attend Griffith Convention

Oklahoma City, May 6.—Two hundred film men attended the second day's session of the convention held here by Griffith Amusement Co. Consolidated Theatres, Inc., at the Biltmore Hotel. The meetings are celebrating the silver anniversary of the Griffith brothers in the show business.

Among those present to extend their felicitations were: Ed Kuykendall, Ned E. Depinet, Neil Agnew, Joe Unger, William Kupper, M. Van Praag, Hal Young, Wallis Walthal, H. B. Walthall, Ed Rowley, Harold Robb, M. A. Lichtman, Cress Smith, Ward Scott and J. B. Dugger.

Tomorrow's sessions will be featured by talks to be delivered by New York executives and district managers of various distributing organizations.

Hollywood, May 6.—John Hay Whitney will leave by plane for New York on Sunday.

Paul Snell has left for Denver, starting a six-weeks' tour on behalf of "Dancing Pirate."

Nassau Spots Told To Stop Giveaways

tion of the lottery laws of the State of New York.

Exhibitors have been notified to clear up outstanding obligations in connection with the games and giveaways by May 25. In the event the practices are continued arrests will be made, District Attorney Littleton declares.

Skouras theatres, which operates seven houses in Nassau County playing Bank Night and Screeno, does not intend to oust the games, it was stated at the circuit's headquarters yesterday. Louis Weber, attorney for the circuit, will contest the alleged illegality in court. Century circuit has about a half dozen houses playing Bank Night and Currency Award.

The circuits feel that the games are legal, according to a spokesman. They claim a person does not have to buy a ticket or be in the theatre to participate in the award. To bring home this contention, Skouras representatives point out that the wife of a police lieutenant recently won $250 without attending the Lynbrook, Lynbrook, at the night the lucky number was drawn.

Lightman Now Acts As a Radio Maestro

Memphis, May 6.—M. A. Lightman, former national M.P.T.O.A. president, now head of the tri-state group of Mississippi, Arkansas and Tennessee, is developing into the Major Bowes of the Mid-South.

Lightman acts as master-of-ceremonies each Sunday afternoon on a talent contest program staged over Station WMC here under sponsorship of a cooking oil and lard company.

Recently also units have been built from the talent found on these radio shows and Lightman is playing them in a number of his theatres around the territory.

Lightman has always taken a keen interest in the acting as well as the business end of the theatre. He takes part in several plays at the Memphis Little Theatre each year and while in Hollywood last summer was given a screen test for the role of Sutter in "Sutter's Gold," a part later assigned to Edward Arnold.

Hit G-Men Pictures

Revival of the "gangster picture" under the pretext of showing the exploits of the so-called "G-Men," is cited in the annual report of the New York Society for the Suppression of Vice, just issued. However, the report noted "an improvement tone in films has been maintained, generally speaking."

Two Gun Crowley had been PAROLED FIVE TIMES before his final conviction for killing a policeman.

The list could be made to cover a thousand names or more.

Yet convict coddlers persist. The criminal gets out, time after time, to commit new crimes, even unto murder.

UNIVERSAL'S TIMELY SENSATION!

British Films Gain In the Philippines

English product is proving a serious competitor to American films in the Philippine Islands, declared C. L. Brookheim, Universal manager there, yesterday, on his arrival for home office conferences with N. L. Manheim, foreign sales head. Brookheim expects to remain uutil after the Universal sales convention, scheduled for June 1-3 at the Astor Hotel. He spent two weeks on the coast before coming east.

English pictures have a first run outlet in Manila, Brookheim said, and are the only serious threat to American domination in the market. They are cutting in increasingly. Spanish product has suffered in his territory, Brookheim declared. Audiences in the islands want action in their film fare, and will not patronize films that lack it. English dialogue is no obstacle to the success of a film if the action is there, he said. Musical pictures also are extremely popular with native audiences.

First run theatre business is on the upgrade, Brookheim said, and is better than last season, but subsequent run houses are maintaining only the level of the past year, which could not be considered more than fair. There is practically no new theatre construction under way on the islands, he said. The State, in Manila, opened last December, being the only new house there within the past year.

Goldsteins Honored By Film Associates

Boston, May 6.—Sam and Nathan Goldstein were feted last night at the Copley Plaza Hotel by over 200 film men. The two brothers who recently took back 14 houses from M. & P. Paramount interests and combined them to form Western Massachusetts Theatres, Inc., were guests at a unique dinner where they and Toastmaster Tom Spry, New England Warner manager, were the only speakers. Vaudeville was supplied by Charles Koerner and Ban Domingo of RKO and Al Somerby of Lathrop Theatres.

A camera and projector were presented to Sam Goldstein while Brother Nathan received a Normandie chime clock.

Tom Baily, RKO divisional head, was chairman of the affair and was assisted by William Erbb, Paramount district manager, and Louis Boas.

Bank Night Used in 5,200 Spots—Ezell

More than 5,200 theatres throughout the country are now playing Bank Night, Claude Ezell, general sales manager for Affiliated Enterprises, states. This compares with 4,500 accounts six months ago, he said.

Ezell is now in Washington and will return to New York in a few days. He added that three cases in the local courts involving Bank Night were won by his company within the last week.

G. B. Picks Sidney Title

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Dancing Pirate"

(Pioneer-Radio)

Hollywood, May 6.—Demonstrating conclusively that great strides have been made in the understanding of color application, especially in its relation to rapid movement, this production devotes a goodly portion of itself to exploiting the efficiency of that technical feature.

The picture introduces Charles Collins to the screen in the title role but has Frank Morgan carrying most of the entertainment appeal. The story is a fantastic comedy-romance-drama told against a background of music, dancing and spectacle. Possessed of many entertainment and commercial qualities, the plot and personnel—with the exception of Morgan—are secondary to the showmanship potentialities of color.

The locale, for the most part, is early California. Collins, a dancing master, shanghaied by pirates, is believed by the Spanish townfolk to be a buccaneer. They are about to hang him in a gay carnival atmosphere when Steffi Duna, daughter of Alcalde Morgan, discovers his dancing talents. The women of the town demand that his life be spared while he teaches them to dance in good old Boston style to the accompaniment of comedy provided by Morgan and Luis Alberni.

Collins and Miss Duna fall in love. Complications enter as Victor Varconi comes to claim the girl's hand. The quality of these sequences is heightened by the work of Morgan, Varconi and Jack LaRue. The tale builds to a comedy-romance climax when Collins, about to be exiled, is aided by Alberni in hamstringing LaRue's thug soldiers, thus breaking up Varconi's marriage plot. As Varconi is shown to be a renegade, hero Collins wins Miss Duna and Morgan's acclaim. The wedding finale is a brilliantly colored ceremony and dance spectacle.

As produced by John Speaks, the picture continuously offers evidence that color must be given serious consideration in future production. That fact is its principal showmanship feature.

Production Code Seal, No. 2,162. Running time, 85 minutes. "G."

"Three Wise Guys"

(M-G-M)

Hollywood, May 6.—Here is good average entertainment based on the old "Boy gets girl—papa stops allowance" formula. Robert Young, son of Thurston Hall, a wealthy railroad executive, falls in love with Betty Furness, partner of confidence men Raymond Walburn and Bruce Cabot. When Betty returns his love and double-crosses her associates to marry Bob, his father disinherits him. Young turns his polo ponies and other assets into cash and takes his bride on a honeymoon spree around the world.

Back home from the honeymoon and broke, the two settle in a small Pennsylvania town and Young gets a job in a factory. Later Walburn and Cabot recognize Bob's boss, Harvey Stephens, as a former confidence man and arrange to rob the plant, Stephens placing blame for the robbery on Bob. Walburn and Cabot, however, clear up matters by returning the stolen bonds on Christmas Eve, after which Young and Betty, released from trouble, return to his father with their heir, born at the height of the excitement.

The tale was freely adapted from a Damon Runyon story by Elmer Harris, who wrote in good comedy parts for Herman Bing and Donald Meek, making the script quite generally acceptable. The George Seitz direction keeps action going at a good pace, establishing much story background with swift, sure shots. Harry Rapf's production is well up to the M-G-M standard for average entertainment.

Mine Rescuers on Stage

Toronto, May 6. — The boss draegermen who supervised the rescue of the two mining officials from the old gold mine at Moose River, N. S., quickly capitalized on their fame by making personal appearances in the Bloom & Fine suburban theatres here. The men, Jack Simpson and George Morrell, attracted big crowds. They gave five-minute talks. Simpson and Morrell "played" either two or three theatres each day. They expect to appear in a feature film sometime in the future.

"Hearts" Ads Unusual

Warners have turned out an unusual series of 10 ads for Marion Davies' "Hearts Divided" and are distributing them in proof form on heavy coated stock. Two are three columns wide and 813 lines deep; four are four columns, running from 672 to 872 lines; four are five columns, running from 610 lines to 1,015 lines, and one is six columns, 1,092 lines deep.

Illustrations are used in a striking way, with type designs intended to emphasize the artistic nature of the production.

Sullivan Goes West For 2nd Operation

During his two-week stay in the east, Sullivan spent about five days at Cornell Hospital where he rested up after the four-day train ride.

Arch Bowles, San Francisco division manager, is now in New York conferring with Spyros Skouras on product buys for next season. He will leave for the west next week.

Moe Baranco, who recently succeeded Al Kaye as Skouras Jersey City division manager, is under observation due to stomach trouble. Baranco reports daily to his doctor and returns to his home in Jersey City without visiting his office.

"Deadline" Is Started

Hollywood, May 6. — George R. Batcheller, president of Chesterfield, has started "Below the Deadline," his company's next release. The story deals with diamond thieves and the title is derived from the locale, which centers around the Maiden Lane district in New York. Cecilia Parker, Theodore Von Eltz and Thomas Jackson head the cast. Charles Lamont is directing.

Walter P. Wiens, manager of Paramount's exchange at Denver, has been transferred to Milwaukee, replacing James O. Kent, resigned. Chester J. Looking 'Em Over

"La Croisiere Jaune"

(John S. Tapernoux)

A fine example of what can be done with travel films, this pictorial record of the Citroen-Haardt motor expedition from Bayreuth, Syria, to Peiping, is an educational, entertaining and historical treat.

The narrative begins with the construction of the cars in France and really starts as the caravan goes across the desert country between Syria and Persia. From there it continues to India and across the Himalayas to a point in the interior of China and finally to the objective.

There were difficulties encountered en route and the scenes of these and native customs in strange lands are novel and amusing. It is a panorama of vitally interesting travel shots of high adventure. The climb up Burzil Pass in the Pamirs was fraught with danger and this is graphically illustrated when part of the mountain path gives way under the caterpillar tread of one of the cars. The fine photography is a triumph. Every moment of the picture shows something of interest, whether it be a travel shot, customs, or the general movement of the cars.

Arriving in China and their objective, the members of the outfit go to Shanghai, arriving in the midst of the Japanese fighting and record some unusual shots of the action and activity.

Tragedy overtakes the party later when Haardt, the leader, dies of pneumonia in Peiping.

The sound, general cutting and effects are first rate, and on the whole the picture should satisfy audiences who are tired of the routine. It is narrated in English.

"Ecstasy" Is Washington's Top, $10,000

Washington, May 6.—Breaking all records, the Czechoslovak "Ecstasy" sent the gross at the Belasco to $10,000, topping the weekly average by $7,000. The regular opening was preceded by a special showing and a midnight show. The picture went into a second week.

"Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" continued its phenomenal run, opening at the Metropolitan morning after it closed at the Earle. The take was $10,500, or $6,200 over the first run average. It was held again.

Loew's Fox, with "The Moon's Our Home" and a personal appearance of Ray Noble and his orchestra, took the week's big money, grossing $24,600 to top the average by $3,700. "I Married a Doctor," with Bill Robinson on the stage went only $600 over par to $19,000. A return engagement of "Little Lord Fauntleroy" at Loew's Columbia topped par by $1,400 at $5,000.

The public was not interested in "Things to Come" at Loew's Palace. The gross was $9,000, under average by $6,900. A revival of "A Connecticut Yankee" at RKO-Keith's for 6 days did $6,500.

"Ziegfeld" 2-a-Day On Circuit Studied

Loew executives are understood to be mulling plans for roadshowing "The Great Ziegfeld" in its Greater New York houses, following an indefinite run at the Astor at $2 top.

Circuit heads are reported closely checking the results obtained by RKO which is now two-a-daying "A Midsummer Night's Dream" in its neighborhood houses. Two independent circuits, Century and Walter Reade, already have booked the Warner spec-

Warner Interviews Daily Reporter; It's a Draw

Arriving yesterday on the Rex after a seven-week trip abroad, Harry M. Warner reversed the tables when approached by a MOTION PICTURE DAILY reporter for an interview.

Tanned to a deep nut brown and apparently in the pink of health, Warner checked the reporter after the first question was put to him.

"How would you like me to interview you after you return from a nine-day boat ride?" was Warner's query.

There was no answer, the reporter noting the excitement what with a customs inspector trying to check the baggage and relatives, friends and business associates gathered about.

As the reporter walked off to contact Sam E. Morris, he heard the Warner president discuss with all the adjectives at his command the wonderful time he had in England, France and Italy.

Morris, foreign head, who accom-

White Again Named President of Ampa

Election of officers and reports by committees high-lighted Ampa's annual meeting at the Astor yesterday. Next week's session will be in the form of a tribute to Jesse L. Lasky, who will be flanked on the dais by numerous industry figures. Anticipating a large turnout, the luncheon will be held in the eastern ballroom.

Gordon White, president, and Herbert S. Berg, treasurer, were reelected while Charles Leonard was named vice-president, Ralph Lund, secretary, and William R. Ferguson, trustee. The board comprises, in addition to White, Leonard, Lund and Berg, the following: Monroe Greenthal, Milton Silver, S. Barret McCormick, George Gerhard and Tom Waller.

White outlined some of the plans for the new semester and Gar O'Neill, retiring secretary, reported 22 meetings had been held in the past year with an average attendance of 50. Berg

Pickets Take Time Off for Afternoon

Pickets disappeared from the Broadway scene yesterday in what was declared an afternoon truce and reappeared last night.

Starting in the morning, due to early openings, sandwich men from Local 306 and Allied paraded in front of the State, Palace, Mayfair, Globe, Rialto and Cohan. They were called off about noon time. Hopes were held

1-Man Conventions

Nate Manheim, foreign sales manager of Universal, finds all this talk about sales conventions old stuff. In keeping with his usual procedure, he has been holding conventions of his own for weeks. It's practically an all-year affair with him.

Manheim brings his representatives in one at a time. That helps avoid complications and makes wielding the gavel easier. Six Universal men already have palavered with Manheim. Currently on the ground is C. L. Brookheim, manager in the Philippines. Due next is Al Szekler from Rio. On the way is K. Tann, Singapore manager.

Spring Warmth Ups Key City Grosses

Advent of warmer weather and the resultant stimulation of outdoor attractions caused grosses in 18 of the 29 key cities reporting to MOTION PICTURE DAILY to drop off during the week ending April 30-May 1 to $1,583,945.

This was $119,877 under the previous week when the total was $1,703,822. The total still ranks among the high figures reported since the opening of the season last September, however. Last week's declines were not uniform, the falling off occurring in Buffalo, Chicago, Denver, Houston, Indianapolis, Los Angeles, Louisville, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, New York, Philadelphia, Portland, Providence, San Francisco, St. Louis, St. Paul, Seattle and Washington. All other spots showed gains. Comparative tabulation will be found on page 14.

Drive is Begun on Games in Brooklyn

As a result of activities by district attorneys in the Bronx and Nassau County in an effort to eliminate the practice, District Attorney Geoghan has started a move to drive chance games from Brooklyn.

Two theatres already have been visited by officers who have handed managers summonses for violating the lottery laws. The contention is based on

Lawrence Fox Financing on "Junior" Plan

Standard Capital Sphere Will Be Avoided

National Film Co., formed last week by Lawrence W. Fox, Jr., will engage in "junior financing" of production beyond that in which Standard Capital Company is now, or may be in the future engaged, Fox indicated yesterday. Fox resigned as a vice-president and voting trustee of Standard Capital in order to devote his full time to the new organization, although he remains as a director of Standard.

National is not actually a subsidiary of Standard, Fox declared. The company "is open to any and all propositions," he said. Fox leaves today on the Berengaria and plans to visit England and the Continent, during which he will make a general survey of film conditions. He hopes also to look over the picture situation in Russia, but that is not definitely a part of his itinerary. He will open a London office for National while

Cocalis May Join Major Group Here

Sam Cocalis, local independent circuit operator, may join one of the major circuits within the next week or 10 days in an advisory capacity, it was learned yesterday on excellent authority.

Several offers have been made Cocalis by important independent circuits in the territory in addition to the invitations made by major theatre companies, it is reported. The offers by the unaffiliated circuit heads are said to carry with them a pooling ar-

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

THE yells in, around and out of Chicago are something, now that the Balabans, succumbing at last, are determined to go double feature in their all-but-the-Loop theatres. Aaron Saperstein, sounding off valiantly, but hopelessly, we are afraid, talks fight insofar as the members of Allied of Illinois are concerned. To what avail? We ask you, but we answer ourselves. No distributor can afford, nor would he try, to fight the will of Balaban and Katz. It's to be twin bills and that's all there is to it. Like the snowball gathering momentum, the revival of doubles to the Windy City will spread. Inevitably, this must be so. . . .

Whether or not exchanges there openly countenance what is to come has not reached the surface. Yet. But there can be no doubt whatsoever about their attitude and it's all explainable, simply and obviously, with elementary mathematics. Doubles mean more revenue. That's what sales managers in New York constantly hammer home and this is a likely and ready means of meeting and surpassing quotas. If, therefore, the dispatches out of Chicago in the next weeks appear to take on a tinge slightly resembling the startling, pause and figure out the available answer. It'll help explain away what's going on. . . .

Already firmly entrenched in many of the nation's most productive areas, the double feature vogue is spreading beyond Chicago. The next development, as suspicioned in the confidential deliberations of sales managers here in New York, has to do with Minneapolis. There, some of the neighborhood houses now cloak what is twin bills with a flimsy device advertised as the "Added Attraction" grafted to the usual Saturday show. There, too, most of the exchanges are keeping their fingers crossed and hoping, as they do so, that doubles will come in. It's the lure of the additional revenue again. For some weeks, it has been viewed as highly probable that Pennsylvania, one of the last of the country's better show territories, will succumb. Like it or not, deplore it or not, here are the facts, present and future, of the troublesome, but popular, double feature situation across the land. . . .

In Philadelphia downtown theatre operators are disturbed over the free films shown four times daily at Gimbel's, one of the city's largest department stores. The program runs about an hour and is made up of old-time pictures, including a Bill Hart, an early Chaplin and newsreel shots. Exhibitors go quaintly plaintive in this matter. They observe, of course, that Gimbel's is cutting into their matinee grosses and keeping shoppers out of their houses. As long as theatremen continue to step into fields in which they have no business, any protest which they might develop flops of its own dead weight. Theatres, too many of them, give away everything but a shave and a haircut. Why squawk about a department store giving away free films? On what grounds anyway?

The Hirliman deal with Grand National, which is to say Eddie Alperson, is expected to total ten pictures. The breakdown: Five in Hirlacolor which will be English-speaking versions of the same pictures originally acquired in Spanish by Metro for Latin markets; five in black and white, starting with "Gorgeous." The six George O'Briens already placed with RKO for next season make the Hirliman enterprise one of the most active of the younger and newer producing groups which have sprung up in the last year or less. . . .

Time was when David Sarnoff and Merlin Aylesworth were very close business associates. Time, more recent, also was when Sarnoff and Aylesworth saw the same problems through slightly different glasses. Time now is when both again lean toward the same point of view. The reason? They say it is NBC about which the Deacon knows a great deal. More, in fact, than some now charged with the responsibility of running the broadcasting system. . . .

J. R. McDonough's contract with Radio runs until September. Any minute word will come through that his pact has been bought off which will take him from the lot and out of the picture company's affairs. This is designed to give the new regime under Sam Briskin smoother sailing by removing the former head of the studio who has not been that and does not like it since January 1 or thereabouts. . . .

Theatre League to Act Upon Contract

A membership meeting of the League of N. Y. Theatres will be called for today or Monday to pass upon proposed changes in the playwrights' contract which have been tentatively agreed upon by the contract committee of the league in conferences with the Dramatists' Guild contract committee.

League members will also be asked to authorize the organization to act for them so that any agreements on a new contract which may be arrived at will be binding upon the members. Following the league's membership meeting, the organization's contract committee will resume meetings with the guild's committee providing favorable action is taken by the membership on both requests.

"Two Flags" Pulls $85,000 First Week

"Under Two Flags" in its first week at the Music Hall tallied $85,000. Indications are that the second week will end with around $70,000. At the Center where "The Country Beyond" has just completed a week's run, business for the stanza was approximately $6,500.

"The Moon's Our Home" and Guy Lombardo and his orchestra on the stage grossed around $30,000 at the Paramount.

"Parole!"

Another Victim of Our Imbecile Mercy for Criminals

The sheer imbecility of nine tenths of our solemn farce of "stamping out crime"—as for some unknown reason it is called—is enough to make angels weep and mere mortals wonder if the land they live in is not run by a combination of crooks and lunatics.

If the keeper of a zoo turned a tiger out on parole to roam the streets, in the naive belief that it would reform him, that keeper would be justly considered crazy and treated as such.

But some of the custodians of our criminal population, who suspend sentences at the drop of a hat, and parole boards with tender sympathies or political tie-ups—these turn human tigers out to prey on the public and are considered "enlightened penologists."

NEW YORK EVENING JOURNAL

Parole 'Psycho' Warned of Peril

Haunted by "narcissistic personality deviations," John

DAILY MIRROR

IN THE FACE OF WARNING.

IN January, 1935, the diligent May, 1934, Grand Jury reported a study of the parole system, including a section on "Failure of the Courts to Co-operate with the Board of Parole."

This is exactly the situation described over and over again in the Grand Jury presentment which had become public three months before. This is the conduct on the bench which the Grand Jury described as "lack of co-operation" and as developing "a pernicious practice." With prophetic earnestness the Grand Jurors urged that "the courts complete their cases and impose sentence upon parole violators convicted of new crimes before they are returned to the penitentiary, prison or reformatory as parole violators."

Montreal, May 7.—Three holdovers indicate a business pickup here. "The Great Ziegfeld," roadshowing at His Majesty's, went into a third week after a take of $9,000. "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," topping the bill at the Princess, was responsible for an extension to a second week after doing $8,500. The Imperial started a new French film policy with a double bill headed by "Le Secret de Polichinelle" and the show was held after a first week at $4,500.

Top take of the week was $12,000 at the Palace on "Wife vs. Secretary," aided by a stage presentation. With two features and vaudeville, Loew's registered $11,000, and the Capitol absorbed $9,000 on a screen dual with "Colleen" as feature No. 1.
